To solve the problem researchers developed a mini-pig. It weighs only 40 pounds at the age of five months. Another medical team devised a method of rapidly introducing advanced coronary heart disease in the mini-pigs.

The popular image of a hog wallowing in the mud, grunting at the trough, and snoring in the sun does it less than justice.

Besides contributing to medical research, pigs are superbly efficient meat factories. They store 35% of the energy from their food. In less than four months, a sow can produce a litter of eight or more piglets. The young are ready for market in just six months.

The versatile animals also have snuffles, flushed game, helped win the American West and even entertained royalty.

When Louis XI was down in the dumps, nothing could cheer him up faster than a troupe of gaily garbed little French pigs dancing to bagpipe music. And that was nearly five centuries before Walt Disney.

The miniature and all other domestic species are descended from wild pigs that roamed from Europe to eastern Asia in prehistoric times. By the time of the New Stone Age, men had domesticated swine.

Long after the cave man gnawed his first pork chop, pigs still were performing a variety of jobs. In ancient Egypt, pigs were used to trend seed into the ground and thresh grain.

Inhabitants of the New Forest in medieval England were forbidden to keep hunting dogs. But poachers trained pigs to point and retrieve snipe, partridges, rabbits, and other game. In southern France, trained hogs with sensitive noses still sniff out the delicious underground fungi called truffles.

Queen Isabella, who enjoyed hunting wild boars, supposedly encouraged Columbus to take hogs on his second voyage to the New World. Liberated in Cuba and by others later on the North American mainland, the pigs flourished.

Those early "woods hogs" were admirably suited to go westward with pioneers. The energetic, self-reliant razorbacks foraged for roots, acorns, insects, and other forest foods. A contemporary account described them:

"They will go a distance from a fence, take a run, and leap through the rails three or four feet from the ground, turning themselves sidewise. These hogs suffer hardships no other animal could endure."

The woods hog found the promised land in the Midwestern corn belt. A rich corn diet and careful breeding converted the wiry pig into the enormously fat "lard hog". With increased demand for lean hams and bacon, the lard hog was, in turn, streamlined.

SIX FILMS BANNED IN SIX WEEKS

The first motion picture to treat the American Indian in every detail of his life with unparalleled accuracy "A man called horse" was among six films banned by the Board of Censors within the last six weeks.

This film, with three others, namely "The loser", Three into two won't go" and "Entertaining Mr Sloane" were on order by Mr Ron Vea owner of the Finau Theatre.

Two westerns, filmed in Italy, "Viva Django" and "I Want Him Dead" ordered by Mr Hale Vete for Tali'eva were also banned.

The chairman of the Board of Censors, Hon. 'Akau'ola was asked by the Chronicle the reasons for banning these films. He said that they were films, portions of films, or posters which encourage or justify crime or immorality; sedition or sabotage.

The Minister added that films, portions of films or posters which are likely to give offence to any creed, friendly nationality, or country are banned.

40 Tour Groups Cross Tonga Off Itineraries

By PAUA MANU'ATU

Forty tour groups expected to visit Tonga during this year have cancelled because of the uncertainty of Air Pacific service to and from the Kingdom.

In the past two weeks several flights have been cancelled or late and numerous tourists with confirmed bookings have found themselves stranded in Tonga.

The manager of the International Dateline Hotel, Mr Karl Brosig, said two tour groups expected here last week cancelled for these reasons.

Mr Brosig said there was a great fear by tourists that they would be stranded in Tonga and have their whole intinerary upset.

The Tourist Officer, Mr Peter Wallis said he was concerned at the business being lost because of uncertainty of the air service and his office was investigating.

A meeting was held at the Tonga Visitors Bureau last Friday attended by local tour operators and travel agents who discussed the flight bookings situation.

The Civil Aviation Adviser, Mr Ken Saker, said he believed Air Pacific was experiencing difficulties in maintaining the service because one of its aircraft had been grounded in the Solomons because of a hurricane.

He said he also believed they did not have adequate crews at present because some had gone to England for training in handling the new BAC111 which was due in Fiji at the end of this month.

Air Pacific used Polynesian Airline's new HS748 for some of its flights between Fiji, Tonga and Samoa two weeks ago.

The aircraft was chartered because one of Air Pacific's own HS748s was having a flawed window replaced.

Relaxing With A Good Book

Just the way to relax after a hard day at school. Sunia Soakai (5) reads his favourite and only Tongan-language story book, "Dolfini". The book was written by Mrs Jean Tūfui and Sunia is the inspiration for one of the characters in the story. "Dolfini" is available at the Chronicle office.

GIRL SURVIVES ELECTROCUTION

Prompt action by a 17-year-old boy and the Tonga Electric Power Board probably saved the life of a 12-year-old girl, Kalaita Tu'itupou of Pahu, who was electrocuted last Saturday.

The power at the town area was immediately switched-off for 15 minutes when the operator at the powerhouse had a phone call informing him of the accident.

Kalaita was on the roof of the house where she and her parents live and touched a wire connected to the house.

She was knocked unconscious by the shock and remained clinging to the wire until the power was switched off. Then she fell about 15 ft, but was caught by Mesake Moala before hitting the ground.

Seventeen-year-old Moala, in an attempt to revive the Kalaita wrapped her with rugs and gave her a drink of milk before she was rushed to Vaiola Hospital.

Kalaita's condition was normal when the Chronicle went to press yesterday.

Sugar Price Increase Authorised

The Acting Controller of Prices, Mr L. W. Robertson, has announced that authority has been granted to O. G. Sanft & Sons, who imported sugar on the "Taveuni" to sell at the following prices :

Town - - -
- Wholesale a bag . . . T$9.01
- Retail a bag . . . T$9.24
- Retail a pound . . . 14 seniti

Country prices - - -
- Retail a bag . . . T$9.40
- a pound . . . 14 seniti

Mr Robertson said all other traders are reminded they must submit their costings for sugar received on any vessel arriving at Nuku'alofa after the "Taveuni" to the competent authority, for certification of price before offering sugar for sale to the public.

Mr. Robertson said this Chronicle article was to be regarded as an official public notice.

They have been selected to represent Tonga at a triangular tournament, between Tonga, Tahiti and Hawaii, to be held at Papeete in the middle of this month. The team will be accompanied by Dr Lutui Fonua as manager.

Before receiving his Doctorate in in educational administration from the University of Southern California, Elder Dunn was a professional American baseball player.

Elder Dunn served as mission president of the New England States mission and also as a coordinator in the Church's seminary and institute programmes before being called to the position of a General Authority in the Mormon Church.

Sitmar Lines Cruises Cancelled

Sitmar Lines has cancelled its new South Pacific Cruises because labour unrest has postponed indefinitely the delivery of the liner "Fairwind" from the Italian shipyards.

The cruises, due to start next month, by the "Fairwind" and the "Fairsea", have been cancelled until such time as the company is in a position to establish dates that can be maintained, a Stimar Lines statement said.

The company feels this will not be possible till the latter half of the year, when the "Fairwind" is commissioned making alternative arrangement for those who have already responded to their advertising and a new schedule will be announced when details have been settled.

The two liners were scheduled to call at Nuku'alofa and Vava'u, on six occasions this year, starting with the "Fairwind" on April 13.

Red Cross News

By MARJORIE PITMAN

The British Red Cross Field Officer for the Pacific Miss Anne Sopper, has just completed a trip around the northern islands for the purpose of introducing the Tonga Field Officer, Katokakala Savieti, to Red Cross members. Their reception everywhere showed the interest taken in Red Cross activities and particular mention must be made of the ready assistance given to Anne and Kato by the Medical Department throughout the groups.

The two Field Officers visited many welfare cases and encouraged the formation of Junior and Youth Red Cross Links in Niuatoputapu, Vava'u and Ha'apai. Kato hopes to make a follow-up visit to the islands as soon as she possibly can.

Ha'apai warrants special mention for their well co-ordinated committee and for the programme they have planned for 1972 – good luck Ha'apai committee and it is hoped you will get good support for all your Red Cross activities.

Anne Sopper, who has been visiting Tonga over the past 10 years, will shortly be returning to Britain. Her help, enthusiasm and support has been greatly appreciated and the Tonga Red Cross hopes Anne will manage one last visit to Tonga before she leaves the Pacific area.

The Junior Links Officer reports that an album made by the St Andrews Youth Group, was sent to the British Red Cross Headquarters as a goodwill gesture. The London office, was so impressed with this album they sent it to Geneva, the headquarters of International Red Cross, for their archives, where it was well received.

"DEAR SIR..."

Bus Services

Dear Sir. — We are students of Liahona High School and we are concerned about how the buses run and about the standards of the buses.

Drivers should be careful when people board. There should also be bells in the buses so that yelling to stop wouldn't be necessary. When visitors from other countries ride the buses they feel ashamed to yell out.

Also, the number of passengers should be limited. The buses are always too crowded.

We think buses should run at certain times and on a regular schedule.

We hope the Government will solve these problems not only for the benefit of visitors but for the local people too.

18 STUDENTS.

* * *

Dear Sir. — Every person has a duty to perform, which should be done to the best of ones ability.

Regarding the police, they have their duties to fulfil and perhaps one of those duties is to drag down passengers from an overcrowded bus.

If it happens that the prime reason for this measure is to prevent accidents, just think of how many accidents happen between two vehicles which carry just enough passengers on board. In my opinion it may be wiser (provided the reason behind this is to prevent accident) if the police stopped those drivers who are driving too fast.

The bus which has its passengers dragged off contains people who are civil servants, but more important are those primary and secondary students who are trying not to be late to school. It so happens that with these police measures, the students usually come late to school.

At one time or another, every individual who is occupying a post in the Kingdom must have gone to school. From experience he should realise the consequences when one is late.

If this police measure cannot be altered why are only some of the buses being stopped and those which have some senior police officers on board are left alone.

'EPALAHAME TULI.

Dear Sir. — We are students of Liahona High School and we have some problems to discuss with you.

The problem is to keep the Sabbath Day holy. We think that every one should keep Sunday holy but the hotel and clubs open to serve beer. Even the airplanes go on Sunday.

It's not fair for the people of Tonga. The automobiles should run on Sunday to take our families to church and to take the sick to the hospital.

The Lord wants His day kept holy so we should keep His day holy.

22 STUDENTS.

* * *

Dear Sir. — We are students of Liahona High School concerned about transport on Sunday.

Why do some people work on Sunday yet transport people don't work? We need transport to go to church and to take sick people to hospital.

Almost all meetings of our church are held on Sunday, but they are sometimes cancelled because of transport problems.

Policemen work on Sunday to keep the peace. Some think that transport is only for money but it is the need that we are concerned about.

21 STUDENTS.

Letters to the Editor.

* * *

Dear Sir. — We're students of Liahona High School. We're in form IV, and would like to talk about buses and the main roads.

There are not enough buses in Tonga. When we were at Talamahu Market we saw the people waiting at the bus station and when the bus came the people ran to the bus, and some of them fell down on to the ground.

When women get into the bus the men pull the women out from the bus because they want to go back home first and the bus is too small to hold everyone.

We suggest that there be no smoking inside the buses.

We suggest to fill up the potholes on the roads from Liahona to Nuku'alofa.

If these things are done then the people of Tonga will be in good health and they will be happy. The Pālangi people will be happy to live in Tonga together with us if these things are corrected.

MISSION TO MINERVA

By the EDITOR

Tonga has repudiated the claim of ownership of Minerva Reefs by the Ocean Life Research Foundation, an international group, by setting up a refuge station for shipwrecked mariners on South Minerva Reef.

Late in January, the foundation claimed the reefs as a republic with the idea of building a city on one of them, presumbly the southern reef.

The Tonga Government ordered a mission to Minerva, under the command of Captain Sioeli Fotu, and on Saturday, February 19, the "Ekiaki" sailed with men, equipment and materials for establishing a refuge station on South Minerva Reef. This was completed on Monday, February 21, and the "Ekiaki returned to Nuku'alofa last Wednesday night.

The Tonga Marine Department has issued a Notice to Mariners and the Fiji Director of Marine and the Hydrographers of the navies of New Zealand, Australia and the United Kingdom have been advised of the location of the refuge station.

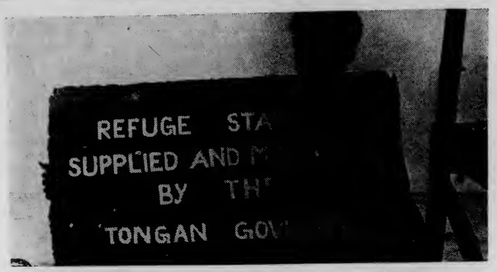
Under international law, a refuge station is inviolate and must not be disturbed by anyone except mariners in distress.

Tonga will maintain the station and a vessel will be sent about every three months to check the station, according to the Marine Superintendent, Captain Chris Hill-Willis.

A Government spokesman said the establishment of the refuge station substantiates Tonga's longstanding connection with the reefs. To interfere with it would be a "crime against humanity".

Minerva Reefs are usually associated with Tonga and the Government has said it will not recognise any claims of ownership by any other body or organisation. The establishment of the refuge station is an indication to all concerned how seriously the Government views any claims.

It is a fundamental principle of international law that a claim must be repudiated as soon as possible so as not to give rise to a presumption of implied or tacit acquiescence. Tonga has now done this.



Refuge For The Shipwrecked

By the Editor

The refuge station is a red tubular steel tripod construction, bolted together and set in concrete on firm coral on the highest part of South Minerva Reef.

The station is about 18ft high in three levels with a wooden platform at the first level. At high tide a survivor sitting on the platform would be able to dangle his feet in the water.

On the top section is a triangular steel box containing the survival kit-medical supplies, lifeboat rations for about 12 persons, blankets, canvas cover to build a shelter and fishing equipment.

Surmounting the beacon is a a sign saying "Refuge station, supplied and maintained by the Tongan Government."

Tonga's refuge station is only about five yards away from one of two marker beacons set up on the South reef by the Ocean Life Research Foundation in January. The second marker is on the Eastern edge of the reef, about half a mile from the wreck of the Japanese fishing which sheltered for 102 days David Fifita and his crew of 16 from the "Tuaikaepau" when it was wrecked in 1962.

Both marker beacons last week were flying the flag of the "Republic of Minerva" dark blue with a gold circle in the centre enclosing a gold flaming Olympic-type torch.

On the voyage to South Minerva, the "Ekiaki" called at North Minerva Reef and discovered the flag of the "republic" flying from a pole on the western rim of that reef. In view of this, it is possible the Government may decide to set up a refuge station on North Minerva also.

No other signs of activity were seen on either reef.

In Suva, at the end of January, a director of the fundation, Mr Mike Oliver, and American citizen, said two dredges would be arriving at the reef in "about three weeks" to begin reclaiming up to 400 acres, 10ft above sea level.

Mr Oliver said he was going to Brisbane early in February to complete a contract with a dredging company for the reclamation of the land. Nothing further has been reported about the scheme since.

Apparently the reclamation is feasible, but the cost is mind-boggling.

The building of the refuge station on South Minerva reef was nearly completed when this picture was taken. Yet to be attached was a ladder which gives easier access to the survival kit on the top section.

INHOSPITABLE MINERVA IS BARELY A PLACE AT ALL

BY THE EDITOR

Minerva Reef must be one of the bleakest places in the world. It is barely a place at all, because the only dry land, if you can call it that, is the pieces of coral rock that stick out of the water at low tide.

There is no shelter and while I was there last week there was an incessant wind. The sound of the surf is forever pounding in your ears.

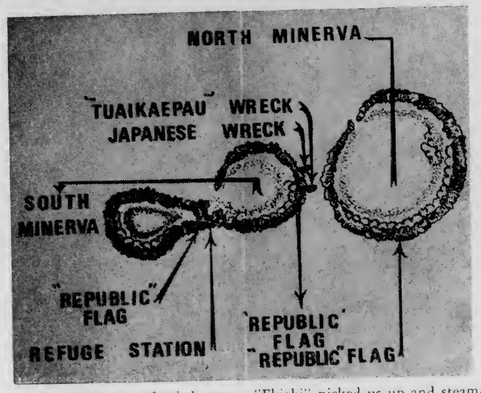
Minerva is not the place many people would choose to live.

The reef is one of the most isolated in the central part of the Pacific Ocean; it lies in temperate regions but near the Tropic of Capricorn. Its distance from Tongatapu is about 260 miles, but the southernmost island in the Kingdom, 'Ata, is only about 90 miles away.

Minerva lies is such a direction that is not approached by many cargo or passenger ships, only fishing vessels.

South Minerva is a welding of two atolls, each of which, standing alone, would form a rough circle approximately 7½ miles in circumstance. The two atolls form a figure-for-eight, bent slightly upwards, towards the Equator. A confusion of coral practically separates the two lagoons at low water, but there are narrow and shallow connecting channels which a small boat can negotiate.

It is on the southern end of this coral bar that the refuge station has been established.



GOOD CHANNEL

At the junction of the two lagoons, and leading back from the open sea in the bay to the north into the northern lagoon there is a good channel four or five hundred yards wide with a bottom 13 fathoms; a channel any ship could negotiate.

Once the entrance is cleared there is perfectly clear and deep water and good anchorage about 500 yards from the inside edge of the reef.

About 20 miles to the north-east is the related reef or North Minerva, a single atoll at low water. It is 11 miles in circumference, a little smaller than South Minerva which is 14 miles around.

The "Ekiaki" reached the south reef in the late afternoon after about 32 hours sailing from Nuku'alofa. The water was at its lowest; a good opportunity to take a dinghy and reconnoitre the area at the junction of the two lagoons which looked the most obvious place to place the refuge station.

The "republic" people had had the same idea when they set up their marker, so the dinghy was pointed in that direction. We negotiated heads of coral to within about 200 yards of the beacon and then had to wade. The water was up to our knees when we first got out of the boat and we hadn't gone far when two sharks did a wide circle around us. Admittedly they were not very big sharks and food is plentiful on the reef, but it was disconcerting, to say the least.

CHEST—HIGH WATER

Early next morning a start was made in erecting the beacon. As much as a temperamental outboard motor would allow, men and materials were ferried over to the site. The water was high and the men from the "Ekiaki" were working for several hours with the water lapping their chests. The water was warm, however, but there was a strong wind.

As there was no dry area to lay the tubular steel for the beacon, it had to lie on the coral, under the water. The bucket of bolts was suspended from the "republic's" beacon, which was also a useful mooring for the dinghy.

When a bolt or nut was dropped from the station, someone had to dive under the water to find it.

Towards the middle of the day, when the water seemed to be just as high as ever, the wind stronger and the current running fast, work was abandoned until late in the afternoon and low water. By this time most of the parts were assembled and the beacon was standing firmly without the need for guy ropes held by men.

During the afternoon it was decided to take the dinghy down to the eastern end of the lagoon and inspect the wreck of the Japanese fishing boat in which David Fifita and his men sheltered.

The outboard motor had given up entirely by this time so an attempt was made to row. It was was futile, however, because of the wind and current. We were making little progress so the "Ekiaki" picked us up and steamed to within a few hundred yards of the wreck and we used the dinghy – again with oars.

The old wreck is disintegrating fast and in a few years will probably break up entirely. I tried to visualise how it looked and what it mean to those men who made it home for 102 days 10 years ago.

Close by, a steel pole stuck out of the water at an acute angle. This was the pole on which David Fifita raised the Tongan flag in 1966. Somewhere beneath were the graves of the men who died on the reef in 1962.

At low water again in the late afternoon the beacon rigging party were back on the job.

With a bit of Tongan ingenuity and improvisation the engineer of the "Ekiaki" had the outboard motor going again.

SHARKS AND EELS

A shark was sighted skimming through the low water as the dinghy came up to the site. One of the crew was over the side in an instant with a harpoon, but the shark still lives.

Other members of the party, whooping like Wild West Indians, ran over the reef chasing sea eels, which they caught after spearing them with crowbars.

While the work went on and I watched, I ate delicious raw clams which abound on the reef; the size of them even amazed some of the Tongans.

When the water was at its lowest the dinghy returned to the "Ekiaki" to bring back the cement and sand to place round the base of the legs of the beacon.

Sacks and pieces of old metal were placed on them to hold it in place while it set and coral was heaped up on top of this again as further protection. A breakwater of coral rock was placed right around the station to break the current.

The organising and supervising of the building of the station was in the hands of Manase Foukimoana of the Marine Department who has had experience in building similar refuge stations on reefs in the Ha'apai group.

The light was fading fast as the last bolts were tightened up and the paintwork touched up. The last man on board the moving dinghy literally had to leap on board with the pot of paint and the brush in his hand.

Incidentally, the outboard broke down again on the way back to the ship.

When the "Ekiaki" sailed away from the reef at first light next morning, the station stood out prominently and could still be seen many miles off.

I hoped it would never have to be used, but it must be a comfort to many sailors to know it is there.

FIRST TIME AT REEFS

The mission to Minerva was the first time the "Ekiaki" had been to the reefs.

Line fishing was tried and appeared to be very lucrative, to my inexperienced eye. The size and variety of fish caught was many and varied. The ship's freezer is still out of commission so it was not possible to do more extensive fishing.

On the return journey a stop was made at 'Ata early Tuesday morning and the lines were again thrown over. A few fish were caught but more birds, of the gannet variety, seemed to be attracted by the lures. They would dive and get caught on the hooks with their beaks. By the time they were pulled on board they had died from drowning.

Thankyou, "Ekiaki"

The Editor thanks the men of the "Ekiaki" for the way they took care of him for five days on the mission to Minerva and made the story and pictures possible.

Thankyou for those cups of coffee which came every two hours in all weathers and for the more-than-ample meals. Unfortunately three Taro are more than I can manage at one sitting.

A particular thankyou to the man who gave up his bunk for me.

Although the "Ekiaki" is a small ship it is surprisingly good to travel in – very little pitching or rolling.

It is, however, a small vessel and living conditions are cramped. The "Ekiaki" was built in Japan and it is evident from the width of the bunks and the height of the ceilings; the vessel was designed for men of much smaller stature than the average Tongan or Pālangi.

My bunk was about two-feet wide and barely six-feet long – if you didn't stretch to hard! I was fortunate to have a porthole, but if I wanted to turn over in bed I had to shut the porthole. To comb my hair I had to bend my head otherwise my hand hit the ceiling.

The ceiling of the wheelhouse was so low that Tongan crew members had to incline their head when they were at the wheel.

For the Minerva reef trip the "Ekiaki" had about 30 people on board and the toilet and washing facilities can only be described as quaint.

But I put it down to experience.

Elimination Fights For Oceania Games Begin This Month

Boxers who failed to turn up marred the six-bout programme of the Tongatapu Amateur Boxing Association tournament on Monday afternoon. Only three bouts were staged.

The president of the association, Mr A. Johannson, said the elimination bouts for the Oceania tournament, to be held in June, in Tahiti, will begin in the middle of this month.

He warned the boxers that any boxer who failed to turn up for the bout in which he is supposed to fight, will be disqualified for the rest of the tournament.

A set of boxing gloves has been donated to the association by Tongan in London.

Monday's results:

Light-middleweight: Nalesoni Tāufa, Houma outpointed Fe'ao Tokotaha, Veitongo.

Light-heavyweight: Mā Sisifā, Vaini scored a first round technical knockout over Pauli Mahoni, Navou.

Heavyweight: Vai Ma'ali, Pea outpointed Tupou Tonga'uiha, Houma.

SOUTH SEAS TITLE BOUT FOR PONGI LIE

Arrangements have been made for Tonga welterweight champion, Pongi Lie of Vava'u to fight Fijian Inia Cataroga for the South Seas welterweight title in Labasa, Fiji on April 1.

The 15-round title fight is being arranged by a Nadi promoter, S. Niumataiwalu.

Mr Niumataiwalu has also arranged for Tonga light-heavyweight Koli Vailea to fight Isaia of Fiji at Nadi this Saturday. If Koli wins, he will fight the Fijian light heavyweight champion, Sunia Cama, in Suva.

"DEAR SIR..."

Cricket Competition

Dear Sir. — At the end of the inter-district tournament for the 1971–72 season, the Secretary of the Cricket Association announced that the leading teams in the club competitions were the Painitu'uua and the Tu'ilokomana in the seniors and Matahau, Kolonga, and Niutōua in the juniors.

These clubs have been practising diligently since then for the final rounds of the competition, but it has been postponed indefinitely and the clubs have not been advised of the reason.

Some of the clubs raised the question with the President of the Association who said that because the grounds were not available the competition had ended.

This has caused concern among the clubs as they had already paid the registeration fee of $6.40 and provided proper playing gear for every game.

As well as this the Minister of Police has offered a set of cricket gear for the top scorer for the 1971–72 season and with the competition unfinished, nobody would be entitle to it.

Because the competition has ended, the top teams, Tu'ilokomana and the Painitu'uua, have arranged to play a non-competition match on Saturday, and the Mala'e Pangai had been made available.

VAITU'ULALA HAFOKA,
Tu'ilokomana Captain.
KIOA KAUFUSI,
Painitu'uua Captain.

SOUTH PACIFIC LEADERS' FORUM

Islands Support Reef Claims Objections

Tonga's objections to the establishment of the self-proclaimed "Republic of Minerva Reefs" will be given official support by the South Pacific Forum countries.

The Ocean Life Research Foundation has claimed the reefs and plans to build a "sea city" on them. (See "Mission to Minerva", Pages 5, 6, 7, 8).

The Premier of the Cook Islands, Mr Albert Henry, spokesman for the island leaders, said forum members supported Tonga.

The Kingdom had used the reefs as a fishing ground for many years and it had a right to claim them.

Mr Henry said the issue would be raised at an International Law of the Sea conference next year.

TRADE SECRETARIAT

The forum also decided to set up a trade secretariat in Suva. It will be known as the South Pacific Bureau for Economic Cooperation.

The island leaders rejected a strong recommendation that the secretariat should be in Auckland. Matt Wilson, political reporter for the Fiji Times, reported from Canberra that the Prime Minister of Fiii, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, attacked the Auckland proposal last Thursday—but at that stage the Cook Islands and Samoa were opposed to his stand.

Ratu Sir Kamisese pressed for the secretariat to be in Suva on the grounds that it was appropriate for it to be in the islands and the Fiji capital was the logical centre.

The final decision was unanimous.

The New Zealand Foreign Minister, Sir Keith Holyoake, indicated that his Government accept the Suva decision although it had favoured Auckland. Australia came out in favour of Suva earlier.

The initial budget for the secretariat would be about $90,000. Australia and New Zealand would contribute a third each and the remaining $30,000 would be divided between the islands.

The bureau's main functions would be:

* To indentify opportunities for modifying trade patterns in the South Pacific and between the region and other countries with the objectives of regional trade expansion in mind.

* To make investigations connected with development of free trade among forum members—Fiji, Western Samoa, Tonga, Nauru and the Cook Islands.

* To study development plans and policies of forum members in an effort promote cooperation and to investigate scope for regional development planning.

* To establish an advisory service about sources of technical aid and investment finance available to members.

* To study regional transport and help to co-ordinate action in this section.

* To advise and help member governments with regional trade and tourist problems.

* To provide means of regular and rapid consultation among islands about the region's import requirements so bulk ordering of essential items could be made.

* To act as a clearing house for information about trade, production and developments within and outside the region.

* To do reseearch and statistical studies about production and trade.

Forum representatives agreed to take care to avoid unnecessary duplication of activities done by other multinational bodies in the region.

Fiji will be the host for the third South Pacific Forum to be held in September this year.

Representatives said that at the second forum the advantages of cooperation and the opportunity of easy and information exchanges reinforced a sense of regional identity.

The meeting gave a common purpose directed to the advancement of all peoples in the region, they said in the final communique. It represented a further stage in sympathetic understanding of each other problems and collaboration in practical measures to solve them.

The Rev. Dr. S. A. Havea was elected chairman for 1972.

Besides the heads of churches, who are the permanent members and the associate members, the Director of Health and Matron of Vaiola Hospital, the following committee members were elected for 1972.

'Eva Ve'ehala, 'Oto'ota 'Eva, Tuavava'u Mapa, Jean Robertson, Na'a Fiefia, Sione Fua, Lipoi Tupou (Treasurer), Major J. R. McGregor (Secretary).

"Hospital Week" this year will be from June 25 to July 1.

Although details of the "Hospital Week" programme have yet to be confirmed it is expected that a harbourside dance and barbecue will be held instead of the usual ball.

"Tarawera" For "Taveuni"

The "Tarawera" is expected to replace the "Taveuni" which made its final call at Tonga last Thursday, a Union Steam Ship Co. spokesman says.

The local office of the company new nothing of the possibility of the "Tofua" also being taken off the Pacific service.

The "Taveuni has been making regular monthly calls at Nuku'alofa since 1968.

This And That

CHRONICLE DIARY

Charges against several stores for operating without a licence were dismissed by the magistrate because the prosecution failed to prove that the stores were actually open during the time in question, and selling goods to the public. We wonder what will happen when customers come to pay their accounts for goods purchased during that time. Will the stores accept the money?

* * *

Prostitutes do exist in Nuku'alofa (there, we've said it) but why are they permitted to be so blatant about the way they ply their trade, particularly outside the Dateline Hotel. One day this week two independent visitors who called at our office to discuss other matters, in the course of conversation commented vehemently on how they had been accosted and propositioned. We investigated ourselves on two subsequent nights and each time there was a little group of blatantly obvious "ladies of the night" waiting to pounce on the first Pālangi male visitor who was bold enough to go in or out of the hotel. If this sort of thing is going to be permitted, the authorities should tell the "girls" to be discreet and not so objectionable.

* * *

A New Zealand Air Force Bristol Freighter in its war colours (camouflage) landed unheralded at Fua'amotu Airport on Saturday afternoon. It left again Sunday for Niue. We hear these aircraft could be making training flights to Tonga every month. They could also possibly bring some equipment from New Zealand for the Tonga Defence Force on future trips.

THE SCRIBES

ONLY FIVE CASES HEARD

Only five of the retail stores, reported in the Chronicle last week, charged with operating business without a licence, were aquitted by the Court.

They are E. M. Jones Ltd., Tonga Trading Co. and three stores owned by 'Uliti Uata & Sons.

The others, according to Magistrate S. Tu'akoi, were withdrawn at the request of the police prosecutor Sgt. Kengikē.

The Crown Prosecutor, Inspector, Haini Tonga said new summonses will be issued for the other cases.

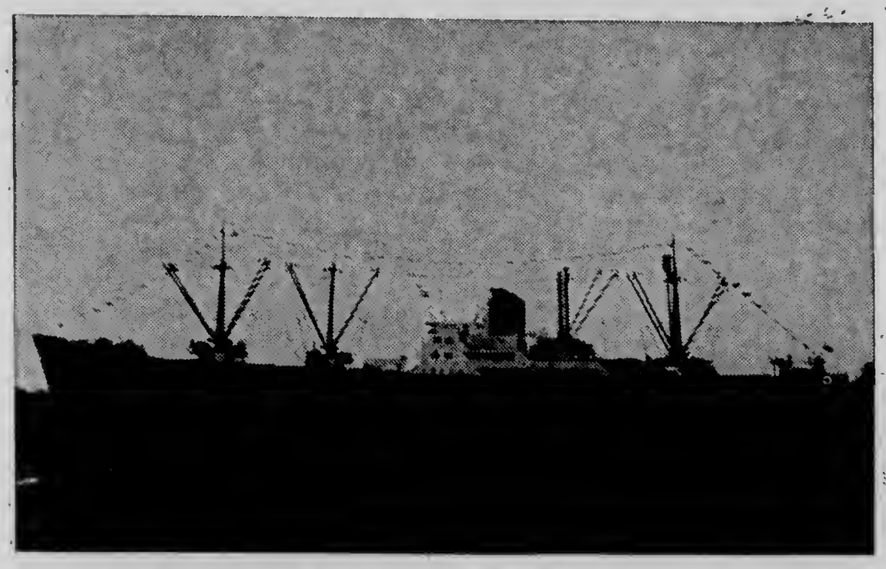
Pride Of Fleet

Her Royal Highness Princess Pilolevu has the "Tauloto" explained to her by the Captain J. Scott. Watching (right) is the Acting British High Commissioner, Mr H. Arthington-Davy. They were among the many invited guests who inspected the vessel.

'TAULOTO'



First Visit

BURDEN OF TRADING BETWEEN AUSTRALIA AND ISLANDS EASED

By PAUA MANU'ATU

The "Tauloto", the 5400 ton ship under charter to Tonga's Pacific Navigation Company, will help ease the burden of the trading between Australia and the Island ports, His Majesty said at the reception to the ship on Saturday in Nuku'alofa.

In his wide-ranging address, the King explained the meaning of the ship's new name : Tauloto is a burden carried before and behind on a stick across the shoulder.

The house-flag of the Pacific Navigation Company Ltd flew from the "Tauloto", the first of Tonga's ships to wear it. It is a white flag with a red cross with the letters P.N.C.L. in each quarter, also in red. Like most flags used by Tongan ships it was made in the Marine Department at Nuku'alofa.

He compared different ways of carrying a burden in other countries and said Tonga's way was one of the hardest because the burden had to be lifted up far off the ground.

His Majesty said the "Tauloto" had a heavy lift derrick which enabled it to lift the heaviest burden the easiest way.

In his introductory speech, the Deputy Prime Minister, the Hon. Mahe Tupouniua, one of the directors of the new shipping company, said the "Tauloto" and the shipping company heralded a new era for Tonga.

Before His Majesty boarded the vessel to inspect it, he presented a foreign-going master's certificate to the chief officer of the "Tauloto", Saia Mafi, and foreign-going mates' certificates to Kepueli Funaki and Tu'itupou Fotu.

The "Tauloto" on Saturday morning completed the first of its 10 round voyages a year after sailing with unit cargo from Melbourne to Sydney, Lautoka, Suva, Apia, Pago Pago and Nuku'alofa.

It left again on Monday evening for Melbourne for its second round voyage with a small cargo and seven passengers.

The "Tauloto" was built in France in 1954 and has a speed of 17 knots. It was converted to a unit type vessel in 1968, when it was trading on the Australian–New Guinea service as the "Island Chief".

The "Tauloto" can handle heavy lifts up to 20-ton as well as pallet and container cargo. It also has 100 tons of refrigerated space.

Facilities in the "Tauloto" include two sided-port loading platforms which combine with deck openings to enable forklift trucks operating on the wharf to deliver or accept cargo independently of tide movements.

It also has six cabins for passengers fully equipped with toilet facilities, and a two-bed ship's hospital.

BEST FOR CARGO

The "Tauloto" is easier to unload than the other cargo vessels that call at Nuku'alofa, says the Chief Stevedore of Queen Salote Wharf, Mr Joe Tu'ilatai Mataele.

Because of her unitised cargo most of the work can be done by forklift which reduces manual handling, he said.

The unloading of the "Tauloto's" 1000-ton cargo during the weekend showed a marked decrease of damage, Mr Mataele said.

The goods are safer from the risk of loss and pilferage when they are unitised on platforms, bound by steel wire.

Time was also saved in sorting out the cargoes because each importers' cargo comes in separate pallets.

"DEAR SIR..."

Letters to the Editor.

Football

Dear Sir,

Because Tonga has attained a very high level of football, I feel that we should congratulate and assist fully the Tonga Rugby Union and all who are associated with this game in their efforts towards the promotion of sport and its social value.

The history of rugby in Tonga clearly shows that in the past as well as in the present there have been fluctuations in the quality of football and for the same reasons. These fluctuations have arisen not as a result of the growth of population or economic condition, but are directly related to the principles along which rugby is conducted in our country.

We should be quite clear about the principles upon which Tongan -rugby should be based and to co-ordinate these with the nature of Tongans, their physical endowments, ways of thinking, timing and sensibility. These are some of the things that can furnish us with a proper working plan and we should relate such a working plan to all new techinques and methods that come to us every now and again.

The function of the coach is to develop and create an atmosphere in which the natural aptitudes of the player can be realized fully. It is not his to distort and spoil these aptitudes to fit his ideas and wishes.

The basis of exercise is not merely to build condition but to be able to fully control breathing.

It is not the length and intensity of the exercise that yield the greatest amount of energy, but the proper methods of planting that result in the great harvest. The consuming of different meats does not mean vitality, for to the healthy stomach any food is as good as another.

Theory and means cannot determine timing for it lies entirely with the players.

The means cannot secure its own end or truths, until it is complemented by feelings - - that are cherished by all Tongans.

We should establish a committee to investigate and research into the ways by which we can secure co-ordination between the nature of the Tongans and the new innovations in play. From these both coach and players can form judgements and policies of play; for although improvements in methods do come from abroad, the Tongan will always be a Tongan.

Many fine players in Tonga have been lost to us forever, and with them many gems of experience have irretrievably fallen into oblivion. Nevertheless, we are still left with brilliant players of the past and present from whom precious knowledge can be gleaned and preserved for the present and the future.

The Tonga Rugby Union is too busy discharging its duties like the planning and supervising the play seasons, and collecting all proceeds from the games and inculcating the players with principles of meekness. This other committee I am talking about should make its task the collecting of all new techniques and effective methods of play, co-ordinating them with the natural tendencies of Tongan players preventing fluctuations in quality of play and maintaining a high standard of rugby at all seasons.

There is no problem without a solution, only we do not see the solution always or soon enough. If this is attained, Tonga will be able to hold its own against all other rugby countries of the world.

TU'IFONUALAVA FALEOLA.

AUSTRALIA DENIES DISCRIMINATION AGAINST ISLANDS

Australia has no intention of discriminating against Pacific Islanders in its immigration policy, the leaders at the South Pacific Forum in Canberra were told.

The Australian Minister for Immigration, Dr Jim Forbes, said the only people who did not require visas to enter Australia were United Kingdom subjects of British descent.

Fiji's Prime Minister, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, had attacked aspects of the policy he considered discriminatory. He requested training facilities for islanders and a working holiday scheme similar to an arangement between Fiji and New Zealand. Tonga has a similar arrangement.

A forum source said Dr. Forbes made it clear that Australia would not agree to the entry of unskilled workers from the Pacific Islands, but the Government would co-operate in training schemes if specific needs were raised.

Dr. Forbes said there was a local labour force supplemented by permanent immigrant labour from the United Kingdom and Western Europe.

This policy was widely supported by the Australian people, including the trade unions.

Dr Forbes said the provision that only UK subjects of British descent did not require visas was a long-standing historical matter.

INTEGRATED GROUPS

He emphasised that it was Australia's policy to maintain a flow of settlers who would integrate rather than form minority groups.

Since 1966 there had been provision for entry for non-Europeans and 9000 or 10,000 were settling annually.

Australia now had 54,000 permanent residents of non-European origin, 10,000 trainees and several thousand others on temporary permits.

Dr. Forbes told the island leaders Australia wanted a cohesive society.

The policy was not likely to be changed in a way which would allow unskilled non-European immigrants into the country.

The source added that Dr. Forbes said he welcomed the discussion and had taken careful note of what had been said

MAORI RUGBY TOUR LIKELY IN OCTOBER

The proposed Maori rugby tour of Tonga and Fiji will now take place in October if the date is acceptable to Fiji, according to a letter received this week by the president of the Tonga Rugby Union, Lūpeti Finau, from the secretary of the New Zealand Rugby Union, Mr R. E. Morgan. The tour was originally scheduled for September.

The letter said the Fiji union had indicated it would prefer the tour to take place in May and June 1973, but that time Tonga would be away on its Australian tour.

Fiji is expecting a visit from Australia on September 17.

Apartheid And Sport In New Zealand

If the South African rugby team tours in 1973, none of the African nations affiliated to the Supreme Council of African Sport will compete in the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch in 1974; the council president, Mr. Abraham Ordia, said this speaking from Lagos, Nigeria, in a telephone interview with Terry McLean, N.Z. Herald rugby writer.

The New Zealand Rugby Union Council has sent a formal invitation to the South African Rugby Board to visit N.Z. in 1973.

The chairman of the Christchurch Commonwealth Games organising committee, Mr R. S. Scott, said Mr Ordia "was not bluffing", but even if 10 African nations refused to attend, the games would still be held.

The chairman of Halt All Racist Tours (HART), Mr T. Richards of Christchurch, said the decision to invite the Springboks to N.Z. was "deplorable and irresponsible", as likely to split the population of New Zealand.

The secretary of the Citizens' Association for Racial Equality (CARE), Mr T. O. Newnham, said at Auckland that CARE challenged the rugby union's right to issue the invitation; CARE would not oppose the South African tours if the trials to select the team were open to all rugby players in South Africa.

HART has sent a protest telegram to the United Nations Committee of Apartheid in New York about a N.Z. softball team's visit to South Africa. This was referred by the committee to the N.Z. Ambassador to the U.N. who informed the apatheid committee the N.Z. Government will not accept a duty to dictate to sporting bodies" in such matters as whether they should have sporting contacts with South Africa.

The chairman of the U.N. apartheid committee, Mr Abby Farah (Somalia) said he acknowledged to Mr Scott that sport in N.Z. was without colour discrimination, but had said that the fact could not be ignored that sport in South Arica was "purely racial" and any sporting competition with South Africa supported its racial policies.

QUESTION IS: WILL OIL EXPLORATION CONTINUE?

The future of oil exploration in Tonga will be decided in The Hague, Holland, at the end of this month at a meeting of the Tonga Oil Participants.

The general representative of Tonga Shell N.V.. Mr A. Jackson, left the Kingdom on Saturday for Europe for discussions with technical specialists before chairing the participant's meeting.

As soon as a decision on future activities has been reached by the participants, His Majesty's Government will be informed and an announcement made through the Ministry of Lands.

Mr Jackson said before he left that the detailed studies of data obtained from exploration wells Kumifonua I and 2 have been completed by technical specialists, results have been intergrated with all other information obtained by earlier geological and geophysical surveys, and the resultant reports circulated to all participants. This information will be the basis of their meeting.

FIRST IN THE PACIFIC

Air Pacific's new BAC One-Eleven 475 jet airliner which has arrived in Suva to bring jet services to the South Pacific Islands. The 74-seat One-Eleven will begin service on April 2, initially on the Suva, Nadi, Vila, Honiara, Port Moresby and the Suva, Apia routes. The Tonga service will not begin until the new runway at Fua'amotu has been completed, in about a year.

DON'T BE IN A HURRY FOR A PASSPORT

The public demand for passports is more than the Immigration Division and the Government Printing Office can cope with, says the Immigration Officer, Inspector 'Ahome'e.

The passports available yesterday were not enough to meet the applications from Tongans who want to go overseas on holiday.

The Immigration Division up to yesterday had issued 948 passports so far this year compared to 436 at the same time last year. The total passports issued in 1971 was 3304 compared to 1913 in previous year.

A spokeman for the Printing Department said they manage to make an average of only 80 passports a week in addition to meeting orders from Government and commercial firms.

Inspector 'Ahome'e said the marked increase in passports issued was mostly to the Tongans who went to New Zealand on working permit.

He said his office had to work three days a week processing applications of people who wanted to go to New Zealand. Travellers to the other countries were dealt with on Tuesday and Thursday only.

The demand for passports has force the Immigration staff to work extra hours during the day and again on Saturday.

"Great" Dies

The "grand old man" of New Zealand rugby, Billy Wallace, has died in Wellington, aged 93.

He was the last survivor of the 1905 All Blacks side, known as "The Originals". The team lost only one game in its tour of Britain and France.

Air Vice Marshall Sir Geoffrey Tuttle, leader of the British Aircraft Corporation team which delivered the first BAC One-Eleven jet to Air Pacific, demonstrates the stability of the aircraft by balancing a glass on champagne bottles while the plane is jetting through the air at 550 mph.

Buses

Dear Sir, — I wish to comment on the letter from 21 students of Liahona High School criticising the Sunday law about transport. They said the transport on Sunday should be relaxed because some of their church meetings are sometimes cancelled because of transport problems.

To solve their problems, I suggest the meetings should be scheduled to be held at night or on Saturday so that buses can be used for transport. If meetings are held on Sunday they should walk. Jesus Christ in His day used to walk from one place to another with his disciples and on occasions he would ride on donkey, but not bus.

I support the move to stop smoking because it is bad for our health; but disagree on transport instead of walking because walking will keep us fit.

S. FAKATĒTĒ.

* * *

Dear Sir.—I am grateful to the fourth formers of Liahona High School for the suggestion that smoking in the buses should be stopped.

However, we all have our own individual rights to do what we wish. The church is the only place where smoking is forbidden.

I am a bit worried that it might suggested that talking in the buses should be stopped as well.

Boat Fares

Dear Sir.—Having looked into the distance of one island to another, it is difficult to understand how passage fares are figured out. I wonder whether it based on the cost of oil, grease and petrol used to run the ship's engine or from the distance in mileage of one place to another.

The distance between Fāua boat harbour at Ma'ufanga to Nāfanua wharf at 'Ohonua, 'Eua, is 25 miles and the distance from Vuna wharf at Nuku'alofa to Nomuka in the Ha'apai group is 80 miles. It takes three hours to sail from Fāua to 'Eua at a cost of 80 seniti, compared to $1 for the 80 mile, seven-hour trip from Vuna Wharf to Nomuka.

The fare on these two sectors needs to be revised.

I believe 50 or 60 seniti is the reasonable fare between Fāua and Nāfanua harbour, based on mileage and expenses to run the boat on this sector.

The freight rates between Fāua and Nāfanua harbour are 20 seniti a bag, large or small, and 10-15 seniti a basket. This rate I believe is almost the same at the freight for cargo from Vava'u and Ha'apai.

Who will consider the questions I have raised here? The Government or the owner of the boat.

S. T. 'ALOUA.

Peace Corps

Dear Sir. — The following letter has been sent to the director of the Peace Corps in Washington:

"On behalf of many grateful people in Tonga I wish to express my gratitude for the great work of Peace Corps Volunteers.

"As a New Zealander, serving as Principal of Tonga High School, I can speak, first hand, of the splendid work done in the field by young Americans abroad. From all I can gather the recipients appreciate the work done far more than many politicians in the United States.

"The recent threat to curb Peace Corps funds has encouraged me to write and express my gratitude, and, fear that one of America's greatest contributions to mankind may be in danger. To compare withdrawal in Vietnam with withdrawal from Peace Corps service is illogical.

"I urge you to do all in your power to maintain the Peace Corps work overseas, and at the same time to convey to the American people that the rest of the world views with real gratitude the purposeful work of your organization."

Ban On Island Shipping Feared

New Zealand trades unions might refuse to handle ships owned by a Pacific Island regional shipping line, according to Western Samoa's Minister of Works and Civil Aviation, Mr Fupuola Efi.

Visiting Auckland, he said it was ridiculous to talk about a regional shipping line until a vital issue was resolved: Could a regional ship enter New Zealand and be loaded and discharged, and on what terms?

"We know it cannot because of union opposition," he said. "We know we will have to pay a price. What this is we want to know."

Mr. Efi said if the New Zealand Government could not decide the issue, New Zealand trade union representatives would have the last word.

"The central issue is right here in New Zealand, but we must negotiate at a regional level, rather than as individual governments," he said.

The idea of a regional shipping service is being studied by the Pacific Island Producers Association of which Tonga, Fiji, Samoa and the Cook Islands are members.

Mr. Efi said if PIPA could not agree on the service being organiser, his country might have to start its own shipping line.

BIGGER VESSEL

Replacement of the Pacific Islands service cargo ship "Taveuni" with the bigger 5047-ton "Waikare" has been announced by the Union Steam Ship Co.

Like the smaller "Taveuni" it can carry mixed refrigerated and general cargo.

The "Taveuni", which is 26 years old, has been laid up in Auckland.

The "Waikare" has not been used for the Pacific Islands service before. It will join the "Tofua", "Tarawera" and "Waimea" on the service.

A company official said in Auckland that the reorganisation of the service was a stopgap measure until new ships were obtained.

The Union Company also announced that the "Luhesand", which has been making voyages Papeete and Rarotonga, would in future make regular calls at Nukualofa and Apia.

CONSULTANT GROUP FOR PACIFIC

The formation of an independent group of consultants to service the Pacific and Asia has been announced in Wellington, New Zealand.

The group, named Contec, immediately comprises three engineering and architectural consultants with offices in Indonesia, Fiji, Samoa and New Zealand. In the near future it is envisaged that additional disciplines will be invited to participate in the group's activities.

Chairman of Contec, Mr R. D. Evison, said the group's intention is to provide clients in Asia and the Pacific a comprehensive range of professional and management skills. Particular emphasis will be placed on development projects.

Mr Evison considers that today a combination of skills is necessary to deal with the complexities of sociological, industrial and commercial developmental requirements.

Separately, members of the group are already well established in several countries throughout the area. By pooling their talents they will be able to make available to their clients, be they governments or private enterprise, a comprehensive array of consultancy services totally independent of contractors or merchants.

With the intensification of New Zealand Aid Projects, Contec will hope to contribute its foreign knowhow to the aid programme over a wide area.

Contec's chairman said that nearly all development projects involved ecological, enviromental and social factors that required the services of specialists in these fields. It would obviously be greatly to the advantage of clients if these services were made available in an integrated package.

Forum Seen As Significant Development

The formation of the South Pacific Forum, which represents Tonga, Fiji, Western Samoa, Nauru and the Cook Islands is a major and significant development for the region, the influential British daily newspaper, the Guardian says.

The newspaper said forum members, instead of working individually and possibly in competition, had been able to work out mutually beneficial prospects.

"A critical point is that they will be able to form towards Australia and New Zealand a more powerful lobby for aid and investment," it said.

"These two countries are aware of the feeling that they have paid less attention than they might have done to these states.

"The South Pacific Forum should also be a strong enough unit to allay fears of political domination from Canberra and Wellington."

The Guardian said the forum's two meetings so far had presented the islands with opportunities to offset their political and economic vulnerability as individual states.

The newspaper said that although the communique of the Canberra meeting did not say so, the islands "apparently agreed to work towards closer political cohesion, under the richest and most sophisticated state, Fiji".

Student Links Tonga And Putaruru (N.Z.)

This story appeared in the Putaruru Press, a New Zealand country newspaper, early this month. Putaruru is a farming area in the North Island with a population of about 5800, mostly farmers.

"Rugby is the connecting link which has resulted in 20-year-old Tongan, Mafi Hausia Eva, spending this year as a seventh former at Putaruru High School.

Mafi, a well-proportioned 17-stoner played in the forwards of the Tonga High School team last year and his coach was Mr. A. S. (Tony) Clark, head teacher at Puketurua School until he left at the end of 1970 to be headmaster of the Tonga Side School.

Last year Mafi did well in the New Zealand University Entrance Examinations and won a scholarship to study engineering at the University of Canterbury in 1973. It was his stepfather, Dr. 'Alo 'Eva's wish he should spend this year in the seventh form of a New Zealand school, mainly to improve his English.

Mr. Clark, a Putaruru Lions Club member, asked his club for help, and Mafi is spending the year at the Te Whetu Road home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Tait.

He is taking physics, chemistry, English, mathematics and additional mathematics at High school. On completion of his engineering degree course at Canterbury, he will join the Tongan Government service.

Meantime, the Rugby season is ahead in Putaruru, but Mafi is non-committal up to now on his reaction to approaches to play for one of the Putaruru clubs".

FOOTNOTE

Commenting on this story, Mr Clark said Mafi was an outstanding leader at Tonga High School last year. He was senior prefect, captain of the open grade rugby team and represented Tonga in the secondary schools' rugby tour of Fiji.

The Lions Club of Putaruru is a community service club, "keen to help Mafi", said Mr Clark. "I am sure he will prove to be a fine ambassador for Tonga."

Mafi's hosts, the Tait family, own a cattle and sheep farm of about 1000 acres and Mafi will be learning something about farm life, Mr Clark said.

Rotary Doubles Scholarships

Fifty-nine scholarships have been awarded to secondary school students this year by the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa, nearly double the number last year.

In 1969, the newly-formed Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa took as one of its projects the awarding of scholarships to students nominated by school principals as worthy of such awards. Ability plus hardship were taken as the criteria when selecting the candidates. Six scholarships were awarded in 1969.

Overseas Rotary Clubs expressed interest in the scheme, and with their co-operation it was possible in 1970 to increase the number of scholarships to 20. For the 1971 academic year, the number increased to thirty and, for the first time, scholarships were awarded to students in secondary schools in Ha'apai and Vava'u.

The scheme has been the responsibility of the club's secretary, the post held by Mr Barney Barnard for the last two years.

Each year the scheme has progressed has seen Rotary scholarship holders graduating from St John's and St Mary's High Schools to Tonga High School and from schools in Ha'apai and Vava'u to Tupou High School. This year two holders of Rotary scholarships obtained Government scholarships for overseas study.

Last week, in the caption to the picture of the dancers from Lapaha on the front page, the "devils" put the letter "a" in the word revel making it reveal. The quotation from Mr August Hettig should have read " . . . It is the only village (Lapaha) whose people still revel in correct speech and humble disposition to their chiefs."

"Although people say Maoris and Pakehas (Europeans) have the same rights in New Zealand, that does not necessarily mean they have the same opportunities," he said.

Buses

Dear Sir. — I wish to comment on the letter from 21 students of Liahona High School criticising the Sunday law about transport. They said the transport on Sunday should be relaxed because some of their church meetings are sometimes cancelled because of transport problems.

To solve their problems, I suggest the meetings should be scheduled to be held at night or on Saturday so that buses can be used for transport. If meetings are held on Sunday they should walk.

Jesus Christ in His day used to walk from one place to another with his disciples and on occasions he would ride on donkey, but not bus.

I support the move to stop smoking because it is bad for our health; but disagree on transport instead of walking because walking will keep us fit.

S. FAKATETE.

* * *

Dear Sir.—I am grateful to the fourth formers of Liahona High School for the suggestion that smoking in the buses should be stopped.

However, we all have our own individual rights to do what we wish. The church is the only place where smoking is forbidden.

I am a bit worried that it might suggested that talking in the buses should be stopped as well.

Boat Fares

Dear Sir.—Having looked into the distance of one island to another, it is difficult to understand how passage fares are figured out. I wonder whether it based on the cost of oil, grease and petrol used to run the ship's engine or from the distance in mileage of one place to another.

The distance between Fāua boat harbour at Ma'ufanga to Nāfanua wharf at 'Ohonua, 'Eua, is 25 miles and the distance from Vuna wharf at Nuku'alofa to Nomuka in the Ha'apai group is 80 miles. It takes three hours to sail from Fāua to 'Eua at a cost of 80 seniti, compared to $1 for the 80 mile, seven-hour trip from Vuna Wharf to Nomuka.

The fare on these two sectors needs to be revised.

I believe 50 or 60 seniti is the reasonable fare between Fāua and Nāfanua harbour, based on mileage and expenses to run the boat on this sector.

The freight rates between Fāua and Nāfanua harbour are 20 seniti a bag, large or small, and 10-15 seniti a basket. This rate I believe is almost the same at the freight for cargo from Vava'u and Ha'apai.

Who will consider the questions I have raised here? The Government or the owner of the boat.

S. T. 'ALOUA.

Peace Corps

Dear Sir. — The following letter has been sent to the director of the Peace Corps in Washington:

"On behalf of many grateful people in Tonga I wish to express my gratitude for the great work of Peace Corps Volunteers.

"As a New Zealander, serving as Principal of Tonga High School, I can speak, first hand, of the splendid work done in the field by young Americans abroad. From all I can gather the recipients appreciate the work done far more than many politicians in the United States.

"The recent threat to curb Peace Corps funds has encouraged me to write and express my gratitude, and, fear that one of America's greatest contributions to mankind may be in danger. To compare withdrawal in Vietnam with withdrawal from Peace Corps service is illogical.

"I urge you to do all in your power to maintain the Peace Corps work overseas, and at the same time to convey to the American people that the rest of the world views with real gratitude the purposeful work of your organization."

Ban On Island Shipping Feared

New Zealand trades unions might refuse to handle ships owned by a Pacific Island regional shipping line, according to Western Samoa's Minister of Works and Civil Aviation, Mr Fupuola Efi.

Visiting Auckland, he said it was ridiculous to talk about a regional shipping line until a vital issue was resolved: Could a regional ship enter New Zealand and be loaded and discharged, and on what terms?

"We know it cannot because of union opposition," he said. "We know we will have to pay a price. What this is we want to know."

Mr. Efi said if the New Zealand Government could not decide the issue, New Zealand trade union representatives would have the last word.

"The central issue is right here in New Zealand, but we must negotiate at a regional level, rather than as individual governments," he said.

The idea of a regional shipping service is being studied by the Pacific Island Producers Association of which Tonga, Fiji, Samoa and the Cook Islands are members.

Mr. Efi said if PIPA could not agree on the service being organiser, his country might have to start its own shipping line.

BIGGER VESSEL

Replacement of the Pacific Islands service cargo ship "Taveuni" with the bigger 5047-ton "Waikare" has been announced by the Union Steam Ship Co.

Like the smaller "Taveuni" it can carry mixed refrigerated and general cargo.

The "Taveuni", which is 26 years old, has been laid up in Auckland.

The "Waikare" has not been used for the Pacific Islands service before. It will join the "Tofua", "Tarawera" and "Waimea" on the service.

A company official said in Auckland that the reorganisation of the service was a stopgap measure until new ships were obtained.

The Union Company also announced that the "Luhesand", which has been making voyages Papeete and Rarotonga, would in future make regular calls at Nukualofa and Apia.

CONSULTANT GROUP FOR PACIFIC

The formation of an independent group of consultants to service the Pacific and Asia has been announced in Wellington, New Zealand.

The group, named Contec, immediately comprises three engineering and architectural consultants with offices in Indonesia, Fiji, Samoa and New Zealand. In the near future it is envisaged that additional disciplines will be invited to participate in the group's activities.

Chairman of Contec, Mr R. D. Evison, said the group's intention is to provide clients in Asia and the Pacific a comprehensive range of professional and management skills. Particular emphasis will be placed on development projects.

Mr Evison considers that today a combination of skills is necessary to deal with the complexities of sociological, industrial and commercial developmental requirements.

Separately, members of the group are already well established in several countries throughout the area. By pooling their talents they will be able to make available to their clients, be they governments or private enterprise, a comprehensive array of consultancy services totally independent of contractors or merchants.

With the intensification of New Zealand Aid Projects, Contec will hope to contribute its foreign knowhow to the aid programme over a wide area.

Contec's chairman said that nearly all development projects involved ecological, enviromental and social factors that required the services of specialists in these fields. It would obviously be greatly to the advantage of clients if these services were made available in an integrated package.

Forum Seen As Significant Development

The formation of the South Pacific Forum, which represents Tonga, Fiji, Western Samoa, Nauru and the Cook Islands is a major and significant development for the region, the influential British daily newspaper, the Guardian says.

The newspaper said forum members, instead of working individually and possibly in competition, had been able to work out mutually beneficial prospects.

"A critical point is that they will be able to form towards Australia and New Zealand a more powerful lobby for aid and investment," it said.

"These two countries are aware of the feeling that they have paid less attention than they might have done to these states.

"The South Pacific Forum should also be a strong enough unit to allay fears of political domination from Canberra and Wellington."

The Guardian said the forum's two meetings so far had presented the islands with opportunities to offset their political and economic vulnerability as individual states.

The newspaper said that although the communique of the Canberra meeting did not say so, the islands "apparently agreed to work towards closer political cohesion, under the richest and most sophisticated state, Fiji".

Student Links Tonga And Putaruru (N.Z.)

This story appeared in the Putaruru Press, a New Zealand country newspaper, early this month. Putaruru is a farming area in the North Island with a population of about 5800, mostly farmers.

"Rugby is the connecting link which has resulted in 20-year-old Tongan, Mafi Hausia Eva, spending this year as a seventh former at Putaruru High School.

Mafi, a well-proportioned 17-stoner played in the forwards of the Tonga High School team last year and his coach was Mr. A. S. (Tony) Clark, head teacher at Puketurua School until he left at the end of 1970 to be headmaster of the Tonga Side School.

Last year Mafi did well in the New Zealand University Entrance Examinations and won a scholarship to study engineering at the University of Canterbury in 1973. It was his stepfather, Dr. 'Alo 'Eva's wish he should spend this year in the seventh form of a New Zealand school, mainly to improve his English.

Mr. Clark, a Putaruru Lions Club member, asked his club for help, and Mafi is spending the year at the Te Whetu Road home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Tait.

He is taking physics, chemistry, English, mathematics and additional mathematics at High school. On completion of his engineering degree course at Canterbury, he will join the Tongan Government service.

Meantime, the Rugby season is ahead in Putaruru, but Mafi is non-committal up to now on his reaction to approaches to play for one of the Putaruru clubs".

FOOTNOTE

Commenting on this story, Mr Clark said Mafi was an outstanding leader at Tonga High School last year. He was senior prefect, captain of the open grade rugby team and represented Tonga in the secondary schools' rugby tour of Fiji.

The Lions Club of Putaruru is a community service club, "keen to help Mafi", said Mr Clark. "I am sure he will prove to be a fine ambassador for Tonga."

Mafi's hosts, the Tait family, own a cattle and sheep farm of about 1000 acres and Mafi will be learning something about farm life, Mr Clark said.

Rotary Doubles Scholarships

Fifty - nine scholarships have been awarded to secondary school students this year by the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa, nearly double the number last year.

In 1969, the newly-formed Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa took as one of its projects the awarding of scholarships to students nominated by school principals as worthy of such awards. Ability plus hardship were taken as the criteria when selecting the candidates. Six scholarships were awarded in 1969.

Overseas Rotary Clubs expressed interest in the scheme, and with their co-operation it was possible in 1970 to increase the number of scholarships to 20. For the 1971 academic year, the number increased to thirty and, for the first time, scholarships were awarded to students in secondary schools in Ha'apai and Vava'u.

The scheme has been the responsibility of the club's secretary, the post held by Mr Barney Barnard for the last two years.

Each year the scheme has progressed has seen Rotary scholarship holders graduating from St John's and St Mary's High Schools to Tonga High School and from schools in Ha'apai and Vava'u to Tupou High School. This year two holders of Rotary scholarships obtained Government scholarships for overseas study.

Following is a list of 1972 Rotary scholarship holders :

There is no such word as "beautification" in the Oxford dictionary; the word is "beautifying". Therefore the committees formed to make their villages beautiful should be known as beautifying committees, not beautification committees.

A suggestion has been made that all taxis should display a rate card inside their vehicles for the benefit of tourists. It might help to avoid visitors being charged as much as $25 for a tour around Nuku'alofa. We have heard of this happening and we are also concerned at the reputation Tonga is getting overseas for unscrupulous taxi drivers.

The printer's "devils" have been at it again. They are the "little people" who mix up lines of type and change letters in words to give them an entirely different meaning. Last week, in the caption to the picture of the dancers from Lapaha on the front page, the "devils" put the letter "a" in the word revel making it reveal. The quotation from Mr August Hettig should have read " . . . It is the only village (Lapaha) whose people still revel in correct speech and humble disposition to their chiefs."

New Guinea legend says when God put the first tribesman ashore from His ship, He offered each a choice of a rifle or bow, and canoe or dinghy. As the bow was lighter to carry and the outrigger canoe rode better in the water, the tribes picked them. God then gave what was left of his cargo—the better tools—to foreigners, the legend relates.

The World Council of Churches meeting in Auckland has added New Zealand to its list of countries in which racism exists. There was a "general myth" overseas that New Zealand did not have any race problems, said the director of the council's programme to combat racism, Dr B. S. Sjollema of the Netherlands,. "Although people say Maoris and Pakehas (Europeans) have the same rights in New Zealand, that does not necessarily mean they have the same opportunities," he said.

Prime Minister Stays In N.Z. For Operation

The Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake, is expected to have an operation in Auckland this week, the Secretary to Government, Taniela Tufui has announced.

There was no cause for concern, he said, the Prime Minister, in Auckland, would receive the best medical treatment available.

Because of the operation, the official visit to Britain Prince Tu'ipelehake was to have made next month has been postponed.

In May he is due to attend the South Pacific Arts Festival in Suva and in June the Pacific Island Producers Association annual meeting, in the Cook Islands.

The Prime Minister, accompanied by Princess Melenaite, went to Australia at the end of February for the South Pacific Forum. At the end of this they went to Auckland for Prince Tu'ipelehake to have a medical check. Their Highnesses were to have returned to the Kingdom on March 11, but in view of the results of the check-up it was decided the Prime Minister should stay in Auckland for the operation to be carried out. Princess Melenaite has also remained in New Zealand.

An announcement on the Prime Minister's condition would be made as soon as it was known, Mr Tufui said.

Housebreaking - "No Probation For First Offenders"

In passing sentence for housebreaking yesterday in the criminal list being tried before the Supreme Court, Mr Justice Roberts said that in future there would be no probation for first offenders.

All those guilty of housebreaking would be punished by imprisonment or whipping, regardless of age, he said.

Flag From Moon Comes Home

The Director of Peace Corps in Tonga, Mr Elmer Skold, and the assistant director, Mr Al Johnson, presented to His Majesty on Friday the Tongan flag which was taken to the moon on the United States Apollo 14 moon mission in January 1971.

Flags of all independent nations were taken on this mission.

On their return Commander Alan Shepherd, on behalf of the United States, presented the flags to each country's representative in the United Nation.

As Tonga is not a member of the UN, the Director of Peace Corps was commanded to make the presentation.

END OF TOUR

Mr Skold, his wife, and two children returned home yesterday after completing his tour of duty. They arrived in the Kingdom in July 1970.

Mr Skold will be succeeded by Mr Johnson, who will take over directorship till March next year.

Mr Skold said he was still in doubt about what he would be doing when he gets back to the U.S.

"We will be taking a long trip home, around New Zealand, Australia and Asia," he said.

Signed To Fight

The South Seas heavyweight boxing titleholder and rated number five in the Commonwealth, Mani Vaka of Tonga, has signed a contract to defend his title against Fiji heavyweight champion Filimone Naliva of Ba, in Suva.

The president of the Tonga Professional Boxing Association, Mr Bill Wight, said the date of the 15-round title bout had yet to be arranged.

The terms of contract guaranteed Vaka a purse of $F1500, air return tickets to Fiji, and accommodation.

Before Vaka took the South Seas belt off Marika Naivalu of Fiji with a round-14 tko last year, he also stopped Naliva in six rounds.

Learners' Swimming Pool For Side School Proposed

A learners' swimming pool has been proposed for the Tonga Side School and is being considered by the Parents-Teachers Association.

At the association meeting last week, the headmaster, Mr A. S. (Tony) Clark said the school should have a learners' pool because only 20 out of 127 pupils at the school know how to swim.

Mr Clark said that on an island surrounded by sea pupils should be taught how to swim as a safety factor. Children should also be taught how to save the lives of others, he said.

Travelling on boats and small craft is dangerous for those who cannot swim, they would not survive a mishap he said.

A learner's pool is a facility many schools should strive for, Mr Clark said.

A learner's pool of 45ft by 22½ft deep in the shallow end sloping to 3½ in the deep end, and complete facilities would cost about $2000, he said. The facilities would included a changing shed, footbath, fencing, and a filtration plant to keep the water clean and healthy.

Mr Clark said the water in the proposed pool would be filtered and chlorinated and germs would be kill instantly. There would be no danger of skin infections.

The association is trying to find out if the parents are in favour of the proposal and will call for a vote on it.

Mr Clark said if parents were in favour, funds would be raised through dances, picture nights, family donations and old student pledges.

"Niuvakai" On Way To Los Angeles

The "Niuvakai" sailed last Saturday from Asau Western Samoa, successfully negotiating the newly-dredged channel with a full cargo of sawn timber and veneer.

It went first to Apia to take oil and water and then sailed for Los Angeles where it is due on April 4.

The "Niuvakai" is on charter to Cosmos Marine who are the carrying agents for Potlatch - Samoa for two trial voyages. If these are successful it is hoped the timber carrying charter will continue, the Marine Superintendent Captain Chris Hill-Willis said.

After discharging in Los Angeles, the "Niuvakai" comes under the agency of the Transpacific Transportation Company of San Francisco to load general cargo back to Southwest Pacific island ports. It is estimated the round voyage will take 50 days.

Captain Hill-Willis said great credit for the success of this initial visit to Asau was due to Captain Polonga Tau'alupe, the master of the "Niuvakai" and Captain Sioeli Fotu who carried out a survey of the Channel last year. He represented the Tonga Shipping Agency during the present loading operations.

Prime Minister Goes Under Ground

An underground tour of one of the world's biggest mines, Mount Isa in Queensland, was a highlight of the recent tour of two Australian States, Queensland and New South Wales, by the Prime Minister, Prince Tu'ipelehake.

Accompanied by his wife, Princess Melenaite, and a group of Pacific Islands leaders, the Prince made the tour as a guest of the Australian Government at the end of the second meeting of the South Pacific Forum in Canberra, national capital of Australia.

The Mount Isa mine, Australia's biggest producer of copper, lead and zinc, was established in 1934 and employs 4500 men. Known ore reserves are expected to continue profitable production to the end of the century.

Descending more than 914 metres below ground level, the visitors travelled over part of the mine's 130 kilometres underground rail system to see the rich ore being gouged from a vast network of tunnels.

Mount Isa was the first stop on a five-day tour during which the party visited tropical agricultural areas north of Brisbane and the lush fruit, cereal and rice growing areas of the Murrumbidgee irrigation region of New South Wales.

Among other highlights of the tour were States receptions for the visitors in Brisbane and Sydney, a launch cruise of Sydney Harbour and a visit to Taronga Zoo in Sydney.

Nauru Leaves Air Pacific

Nauru has quit the consortium of countries which owns Air Pacific because it says the airline's route expansion plans clash with those of its one one-plane airline, Air Nauru, according to the Fiji Times.

Announcing this, Air Pacific's chairman, Captain Gordon Allan, said he would work to get Nauru back into the consortium.

He predicted that Nauru would want to rejoin Air Pacific after experiencing lone operation.

Captain Allan said Nauru's decision to withdraw from Air Pacific was sudden.

A crisis arose when, without consulting its partners in Air Pacific, Nauru announced that it wanted to fly to Melbourne, Brisbane, Majuro, Honiara and Noumea.

Captain Allan said Nauru declared its plans before getting rights to fly to these places.

Meanwhile, Air Pacific applied for rights to fly to Noumea and Brisbane.

Captain Allan said that as far as Air Nauru's ambitions were concerned, Air Pacific could not afford to make concessions to other airlines.

Such a move would virtually be withdrawing revenue from Air Pacific shareholders when it was trying to achieve cheaper and more efficient air services.

At an Air Pacific board meeting in Suva, the members, representing Fiji, Tonga, Western Samoa, the Gilbert and Ellice Islands and the British Solomons, expressed their continuing support for the regional co-operation concept behind Air Pacific.

Captain Allan added that the departure of Nauru would not affect the fortnightly Air Pacific service to Nauru.

Free Exhibition of Paintings

An exhibition of paintings from Tonga selected for showing at the South Pacific Arts Festival in May will be held at the New Golden Apple, Taufa'ahau Road, Nuku'alofa, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Admission is free and the exhibition will be open from noon until 5.30 p.m. on Monday, 9 a.m. to 7.30 p.m. on Tuesday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Wednesday.

The majority of the paintings are by school children from kindergarten, primary and secondary schools, but adult artists have also contributed. The children were aged between 3 and 19.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Education said few of the children had ever had a brush in their hands before, but those with potential were given materials and advice by experienced adults.

Classes in painting have been held for the past three months.

As one of the instructors said, "The results have been marvellous. We did not show the children what to do because we did not want them to copy. I think the public is going to be surprised when they go to the exhibition."

The paintings which will be sent to Suva for exhibit were chosen by an independent group who had not been associated with the classes.

Tongatapu Villages Respond Well To Sanitation Programme

Several villages throughout Tongatapu have responded well to the Public Health Section of the Ministry of Health programme of improving sanitation in rural areas, says a spokesman. The planning of health programme is in accordance with the local needs, circumstances and resources, he said.

The first phase of the programme is the introduction of health education. This begins with gaining the interest of the people in improving their conditions of living and is aimed at developing a sense of responsibility for their own health.

The public health section hopes to improve the standard of living without the enforcement of Public Health legislation. The spokesman said, co-operation of the people was needed so they could undertake activities themselves or in small groups.

Womens health committees are being formed and are meeting with Public Health staff. They have proved an effective means of teaching public health principles to the public.

* The health programme to be implemented in rural areas is to encourage the people of villages to carry out the cleaning up of the village through their own effort.
* To replace the old pit privies with water seal flush privies.
* To ensure every household has a piped water supply of their own.
* To control insects through better sanitation.
* To improve standards of housing.

The spokesman said the village of Lavengatonga had shown great interest in the programme and the first phase is nearing completion.

Simultaneously they have collected more than $100 to circulate water to each household.

Afā and Veitongo have contributed funds for improving all bathhouses in these villages.

Kanokupolu and Ha'atafu have shown improvement in general cleaning up of their villages, the first phase of the programme.

U.S. Looks Our Way For Oil

American oil companies are expected to step up their interest in exploration in the Pacific and Asia following reports that the United States may become dependent on Arab supplies within the next 10 years.

A survey carried out by the U.S. State Department is reported to have shown that by 1980 the U.S. will require 8.5 million barrels of oil daily from Middle East supplies. It gets virtually none from Arab oil fields at present.

It is feared that with the U.S. getting into the Middle East market in competition with Europe and Japan, financial and political pressures applied by Arab nations could become intolerable.

Officals predict that U.S. oil usage will rise from 15.5 million barrels a day to 24 million barrels by 1980.

At the same time European usage is expected to rise by 12 million barrels daily and that of Japan by three million barrels.

Oil exploration authorities commented that political uncertainties in a number of oil-producing States was forcing companies to look for alternative, more stable sources of supply.

They said the increase shown by Texas companies in New Zealand was one indication of this. Another was the large sums of money being spent by a number of companies to test potential offshore fields in Asia.

TRICKY

Hundreds of people in New Guinea have lost their money and pigs in a "Red Box" trick.

They paid up to $100 for the red boxes which they believed would be miraculously filled with money.

One of the founders had said that if people bought the suitcases which were painted red, filled them with stones and buried then, they would, if dug up on the appointed day, be full of money.

The time for digging them up, postponed several times, was at last set for February 29.

That morning the man left.

Rugby Season Opens Again In Fine Style

Above: Kolomotu'a captain and centre, Tali Kavapalu (No. 16) tails to stopped the big Kolofo'ou flanker, Kimbu 'Inoke who led the attack from Kolofo'ou 25. The match won by Kolofo'ou 26 - 8.

By HOPOATE MOENGANGONGO

The Police, in a fine performance in the main game of the 19-6 win over Hihifo. Police will be a threat to last year's winner, Kolofo'ou, which found the young Kolomotu'a side hard to beat till the latter half when they managed to score three tries.

In the first five minutes of play in the main game, all in Hihifo territory, back movement by the Police was almost rewarded with a try, but Kei 'Iongi was cut short of the goal line by the sound defence of the Hihifo fullback.

The Police forwards dominated the lineout; remarkable jumping by Polutele won them 80% of the ball. He was well supported by the other tight forwards.

Sēlē for Hihifo toiled hard in the tight but lacked support from his forwards.

After 20 minutes of play and from loose play mid-way between halfway and twenty-five on the Hihifo side, Kei picked up a loose ball and fed it inside to Polutele, who was in support, to score under the post. 'Ilavalu failed to add the extra two points and the half time score was 4-0 to the Police.

For most of the first half Hihifo was under pressure but continuous attacking movements failed to penetrate the sound defence of the Hihifo back line.

In the second half, play moved from end to end and from a scrum on the Hihifo twenty-five the Police dribbled towards the goal line for Siaosi Sēlupe to score under the post.

'Ilavalu was on target. Score: 10-0 to the Police.

Sione Mafi, the Hihifo No. 8 was not at his best nevertheless his cover defence saved a lot of tries.

From a 30yd penalty to the left of the upright 'Ilavalu was again on target to put the Police further ahead by 13-0.

About 15 minutes from full time, a forward rush by Police resulted in a try by Saia Mapa, 'Ilavalu converted. Score: Police 19, Hihifo 0.

For the last 10 minutes Hihifo was in the game and last-minute efforts were rewarded with a try.

In a lineout a couple of yards from the Police goal line, 'One-'one picked up the ball at the end of the lineout and dived over, but was held back. Langolua coming round for support crashed for a try.

Sione Mafi put over the easy conversion. Final Score: Police 19. Hihifo 6.

PLAYER OF DAY

Siaosi Selupe, the police flanker, who was on the New Zealand tour of 1969, was the player of the day. He was a hard toiler in the tights and a great runner on the loose. His footwork a threequarter would be proud to have.

Hooking was a tussle between great hookers of 1969: for the Police it was 'Inoke Lūpina, who was on the New Zealand tour, and for Hihifo it was Tupou Fe-'ao who was in the secondary team that toured Fiji at the same time. Each had three tight-heads till Tupou retired of injury.

The 26-8 by last year's champion, Kolofo'ou was not a fair indication of the standard of play.

The young Kolomotu'a forwards, well led by Lisiate, bustled the experienced Kolofo'ou forwards and hung on to a 8-8 draw by halftime.

It was only in the second half that Kolofo'ou tidied up their game and score 18 points.

A right winger for Mu'a, Siua Mahe, showed great potential, as a strong runner, and he can side step with both feet. He played for Tonga College seniors last year.

If he can keep up his performance it would not be a surprise if he was selected to play against the Fijians in July.

Shipping Report Being Studied

Governments in the South Pacific Commission are studying an interim report on regional shipping prepared by a team of United Nations experts.

A spokesman for the team said a final report was being prepared and should be ready by mid-year. It would comment on the formation of regional shipping lines, he said.

The spokesman said there were already shipping ventures in Tonga, Micronesia and Nauru.

The report was prepared at the request of the South Pacific Commission which wanted the feasibility of a joint shipping line investigated.

Amidst the flurry of talk about the necessity of having a regional shipping line, the UN experts will draw attention to the fact that regional lines already exist.

PIPA MOVE

A Fiji accountant, Mr Robert Kay, is planning a trip to Nuku'alofa in the latest move on regional shipping by the Pacific Island Producers' Association (PIPA).

The PIPA project is based on a study of the possibilities of Tonga's shipping venture being developed as a regional line.

Mr Kay was commissioned by PIPA to make an accounting study of the feasibility of a regional line based on Tonga's facilities.

When Mr Kay has submitted a report, a PIPA working party will make recommendations to be considered by the PIPA conference at Rarotonga in the Cook Islands in June.

Some reports suggest that the working party's ideas have developed to the extent that it has already come up with a name for a regional line—Sea Pacific Ltd (SEAPAC).

It has recognised that there would be a possibility of competition between SEAPAC and existing local shipping ventures.

METRIC SWITCH: The Fiji Government has decided to begin preparations for a changeover to the metric system of weights and measures.

CALIFORNIA BRANCH: A branch of the Fiji Visitors Bureau will be set up in Los Angeles, probably by next year.

Preparing For More Tourists

Details of the extension to the International Dateline Hotel have been settled and the revised plan will provide 30 new rooms and two luxury units instead of 15 rooms and four units, says the manager, Mr K. Brosig.

The extension will be in three levels, the same as the present building. It will be T-shaped, sited with the top of the T facing Vuna Road and the long section of the T running parallel with Tupoulahi Road. The windows in this part of the building will be overlooking the garden and swimming pool, therefore there will be no balcony, as in the present building.

A feature of the decoration of the rooms in the new extension will be Tongan panelling and Tongan carving.

Solar water-heating will be installed and there will be central airconditioning, refrigeration and wall-to-wall carpet.

The music system in each room will include one channel for ZCO.

The architects for the extension will be Derrick, Dignan and Associates, of Fiji, the same firm who were responsible for the original hotel building. A representative is expected soon in Nuku'alofa for preliminary discussions.

"JOE'S PLACE"

Marked progress is being made on the hotel being by Joe Tu'i Iatai Mataele in Salote Road, Nuku'alofa. He said yesterday he expected to have it completed in October.

This week the concrete was being poured on the fourth floor by a method that an observer described as "ingenious and typically Tongan." A "do - it - yourself" wooden boom crane had been rigged and the barrows of concrete were hauled up to the top floor by a combination of blocks, tackle and enthusiastic Tongan manpower, incluing members of the Kolomotu'a rugby team.

Mr Mataele said to do the job using the Ministry of Works crane would have cost him T$24 an hour. "That sort of money could be put to much better use on the hotel," he said.

"Joe's Place", as he is calling it at the moment, will have 30 rooms when completed, each with a private bathroom. Other facilities will include a dining room overlooking a swimming pool, and a conference room.

The swimming pool will be built in an area of about two acres at the back of the hotel and around the edge of this area will eventually be built several fales for guests who wish to live Tongan-style.

Mr Mataele said he was convinced there was a great future for tourism in Tonga.

$28,000 FURNITURE ORDER FOR TCC

Furniture for the new Port-of-Refuge Hotel at Vava'u being inspected by the recently—arrived manager of the hotel, Mr Grade Wicker, and the furniture manufacturing supervisor of the Tonga Construction Company, Mr Joe Rapadas.

All the furniture for the hotel is being made by the TCC and the contract will be worth about T$28,000 to the company.

The furniture was designed by Australian Don Johnson who has also designed furniture for the Travelodge hotels.

The items being made by the TCC include suites, tables, bar stools, bed-head boards, wardrobes and sliding doors for the dining room.

Only the wood is not Tongan; it is Red Meranti from Malaysia.

Scout Groups Must Be Registered

Several people have come forward offering to assist with the development of the Scout movement in Tonga since the story two weeks ago in the Chronicle, says the secretary of the Scout Association of Tonga, Mr Grenville Kirton.

"It is encouraging to find an awakening of interest and I want to express our appreciation to those who have offered to assist," he said.

Mr Kirton said, however, he was obliged to point out a very important factor in the organisation of Scouting. The association is a registered and recognised movement throughout the world and anyone wishing to start a Scout troop at Cub pack must apply to the national association. In the Kingdom it was necessary to apply to the Chief Commissioner of the Scout Association of Tonga at the Palace Office in Nuku'alofa, or to Mr Kirton, before starting a Scout troop.

Mr Kirton said no one may call themselves Scoutmasters or their youth groups by any Scout name unless they were properly registered. Leaders also had to be registered by being given a warrant or rank authorising them to function as Scout leaders.

Any persons wishing to be Scout leaders or start Scout groups, must apply to be registered, Mr Kirton said.

He requested the cooperation of anyone who had started a Scout group and unwittingly contravened this requirement.

SOCCER SHIELD PLAY-OFF MATCH NEXT SATURDAY

The Lion Shield winner will be decided this Saturday when Kolofo'ou meet Veitongo in the soccer final at 'Atele.

If the final ends in a draw then the shield will be three-way tie, shared by Kolofo'ou, Veitongo and Ngele'ia.

The points table shows Ngele'ia 18 points after playing 11 games and Kolofo'ou and Veitongo 16 points each after playing 10.

Kato Kakala Kehekehe 'o Pilolevu from 'Utulau won the Talamahu Market Trophy in the women's competition.

Saturday will also see the final of the B Division for the "Iberia Cup" with Veitongo B leading the competition in the points table.

The knockout competition for the Friendly Islands Biscuit Cup will begin on April 1.

The following teams have been selected by the Association to participate in the competition:

Kolofo'ou, Veitongo A and B, Ngele'ia A and B, Toafaka'amu A and B, Fotu'afinemā, Sopu, Veitongo Youth Club, Lotoha'apai, Langileka, Tonga College A, Roval Guards, Ha'ateiho A and Tupou College.

This And That

CHRONICLE DIARY

Air Pacific has blamed the reconstruction of the main runway at Fua'amotu for the "irregular" (we prefer to call it unreliable) service to Tonga; but what has a new airstrip got to do with the non-arrival of aircraft. One prominent official told us vehemently it was "an unfair statement" by the airline. It is probably significant that the commercial manager of Air Pacific, Mr Allan Cameron, arrived in the Kingdom yesterday and is returning tomorrow. We hope the plane arrives.

Cartoons are funny things. Not everyone sees them the same way. We are anticipating mixed reaction to our cartoon on Page 2 by getting in now and saying we know that some people are going to ask us, "What was funny about that", or "I didn't get the point," and others are going to tell us it had them rolling on the floor. We learnt a long time ago, never to try to explain a joke.

The annual meeting of the Nuku'alofa Yacht and Motorboat Club last Friday meeting had to be abandoned because there was no quorum. Out of 124 members they couldn't get 31 to a meeting. Maybe the healthy balance sheet has something to do with it. A poor body has to struggle to exist and in struggling finds life.

'Alipate Falalakihelotu Vaka (7lb 4oz) is a new contender for the heavyweight boxing championship of Tonga held by his father Mani Vaka (13st 10½lb). 'Alipate only arrived last weekend, but we hear that Mani is already very much aware that his son is in the corner waiting to trade punches.

The Rugby Union introduced last Saturday a new rule about replacing injured players. Now only two are allowed to be replaced in each team in one game. Nukunuku had their first experience of the rule on Saturday and found themselves with 14 men in the second half of their game against Fasi. Three had been sidelined by injuries. However, Nukunuku still managed to beat Fasi 7-4 after trailing 3-4 at halftime.

Pig Population Goes Down As People Population Goes Up

The annual livestock census has revealed a sharp decrease in population of pigs in Tongatapu and this is viewed with grave concern by the Veterinary Officer, Mr R. T. Knowles.

Horses have also showed a decline in number.

According to the census figure, the pig and horse population gradually increased from 1965 to its peak of 14,840 and 3701 respectively in 1969. Last year the figures decreased to 11,537 pigs and 3259 horses.

Mr Knowles said the alarming decrease in pig population was due to killing of the weaning stock and thousands of pigs were killed in 1970 for the Independence Celebrations, the Royal Visit of Her Britannic Majesty Queen Elizabeth and the wedding of Princess Siu'ilikutapu to Hon. Kalanivalu.

"Pig is the principle protein diet of the Tongan people and if they continue to kill the weaning stock, there will be no pigs left in a few years," Mr Knowles said.

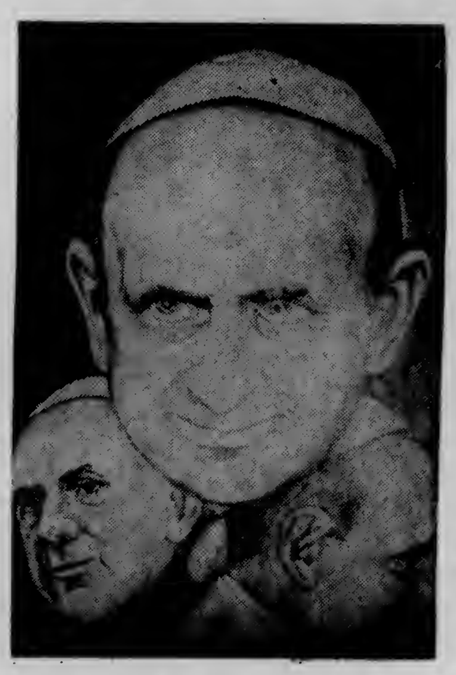
The decrease, caused concern, he said, because of the increase of the people population. "There would soon be not enough pig for the people to eat."

The rising cost of sucking pigs sold at Talamahu market supported the decrease. Sucking pigs that were sold for $2 or $3 year ago now cost $4.50 to $5.50.

The census of livestock at Vava'u also showed a decrease in number of pigs and horses in 1970. Figures for 1971 have yet to be received.

ART EXHIBITION DRAWS CROWD

"Three Children" by Salote Kioa (8) of Fasi Primary School.



This Pope Paul triptych by Setaleki Siu was displayed in the adult section.

Two boys show a lively interest in a drawing of a ve'etolu by Takitoa Taumoepeau (11) of the Nuku'alofa Primary School.

"Bush Scene" by Fositina Kama (17) of St Mary's High School.

The exhibition of paintings and drawings chosen for display at the South Pacific Arts Festival in Suva in May has drawn big crowds to the New Golden Apple in Nuku'alofa this week.

Yesterday the exhibition was to have closed, but because of its success it will continue today showing the remaining works, those which were not chosen by the judges but which several members of the organising committee said yesterday are equally as good.

The selected paintings for the festival have now been withdrawn and packed for dispatch to Suva.

P.M. Recovering From Surgery

The Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake is expected to be discharged from hospital in Auckland this weekend after an operation for gallstones on March 23, the Secretary to Government, Taniela Tufui, announced yesterday.

Prince Tu'ipelehake's condition had been excellent since the operation, he said. He got off his bed unsupported last Saturday, the second post-operative day, and has been moving about normally since Monday.

Mr Tufui said the Governor-General of New Zealand, Sir Arthur Porritt and Lady Porritt, will visit the Prime Minister and Princess Melenaite at 'Atalanga on Sunday, April 9.

It is not yet known when Prince Tu'ipelehake and the Princess are expected to return to the Kingdom.

The Deputy Prime Minister, who has been attending a conference in Bangkok, is expected back in Tonga next Tuesday.

New kind of mango

A different kind of mango has been introduced in Tonga by His Majesty this week. It's a long-shaped fruit from Rabaul, Papua-New Guinea.

Its size is 8½ inches long by 3½ inches in diameter. Eleven of them were sent by air from Rabaul and are at the palace.

A spokesman at the palace said the fruit will be planted as experiment to see how it fares in Tonga.

The arrangements for importing the mango into Tonga were made by a Tongan Methodist missionary minister, the Rev. 'Isikeli Hau'ofa and his friend, Mr Matthias Toliman, who is the Minister of Education and a member of parliament in Port Moresby.

New Use For Old Cans

Australian schoolgirl Heather Malcolm (12) of Brisbane, has gone into an anti-pollution business which some young Tongans might like to copy-making miniature furniture from old aluminium soft drink cans.

It could be a way of putting to good use drink cans which litter the seashore and roadsides.

Heather learnt the art from an aunt who first read about it in a Canadian magazine. She now has a regular after-school-hours business fulfilling orders from as far away as the United States.

A period chair which doubles as a pin cushion, takes about two hours of painstaking slicing and bending.

FOOTNOTE : The Chronicle would like to hear from readers who have any typically Tongan ideas for putting to good use old aluminium drink cans.

Kingdom To Seek Association With Common Market

Tonga is to seek special association with the European Economic Community (Common Market) and the High Commissioner in London, Baron Vaea, has been instructed to advise the Commonwealth Secretariat of this for a special meeting to be held next month.

Last week, a leading British expert on the E.C.C., Professor Uwe Kitzinger, visited Tonga to inform the Government on how the Kingdom could associate with the Common Market.

If Britain enters the Market next year as expected, the agreement it has reached with Market countries will mean that trade preferences now operating between it and Tonga and other Commonwealth countries will cease to apply from 1975.

In Nuku'alofa, Professor Kitzinger put to the Government the same three alternatives that Fiji and Western Samoa had in seeking links with the Market.

These were membership of the convention which had enabled the French African colonies to attain association, the negotiation of a separate special association, or the negotiation of a trade agreement.

Tonga, Fiji and Samoa might find it desirable to join each other in seeking special association with the Market, Professor Kitzinger said.

New Range Of Australian Cars

Ford Australia, one of the big two in the battle for supremacy on the Australian car market, (General Motors-Holden is the main rival) has released a new range of Falcon saloons and station wagons in Melbourne.

The range covers five saloons and three station wagons.

Compared with the previous models, the saloons are wider and lower and have a more contemporary look.

All models are entirely Australian designed and built, the first, according to the company, to run the full course of design, engineering and manufacture in Australia.

Leading the new series is the best selling 500 saloon, priced at $A2965, a rise of $A147.

The standard engine range of locally manufactured 200 to 250 cubic inch six cylinders and optional 302 and 351 cubic inch V8s, now also made in Australia, is retained in the new series.

The height of the saloon has been lowered 1.6 inches to 53.9 inches; width has been increased by an inch to 74.5 inches. Although the track has been widened, the wheelbase remains unchanged at 111 inches, giving a lower centre of gravity.

A safety feature is that the front chassis members are designed to progressively collapse under impact, thus absorbing the force of an impact before it reaches the passenger compartment.

To improve visibility, the front and centre body pillars have been narrowed and full glass windows have replaced the quarter vents in the front doors.

A new air flow ventilation system is standard in all models.

The new station wagons are about six inches longer than the previous model. The wheelbase has been extended to 116 inches and the rear axle has been moved back to improve safety and handling under load conditions.

The wagon has a two-way tailgate which can be lowered to take longer loads, or can be swung open like a door to improve access.

Top Teams Perform Brilliantly In Sea Of Mud

Sporting Scene

By PAUA MANU'ATU

In a brilliant performance in the mud by both teams, Police narrowly defeated Kolofo'ou by 7 – 3 at Teufaiva last Saturday. The game was the best seen so far this Rugby season.

Police back handling was the feature of the game. They could have scored more points, but the sound defence by Kolofo'ou stopped them in the vital stages.

A veritable sea of mud greeted both teams; only isolated patches of green grass could be seen in the north, south and east part of the field.

Kolofo'ou kicked off with the wind behind them and began the attack when Siō dribbled the ball towards the scoring line, but five eights, Sami Lātū cleared off.

The Police were penalised in the third minute of play. Halfback Metui gave Kolofo'ou an early lead which they held 3– 0 up to 20 minutes to no side when Metui landed a 36 yard penalty. The ball hit the crossbar before it bounced inside.

Police were unable to equalise the score when five-eight 'Ilavalu missed three easy penalties.

Halftime score: Kolofo'ou 3, Police 0.

Peni had a good day at fullback for Kolofo'ou. He was always in position to stop the Police scoring.

He is possibly the best fullback of the season, with his sound defence, running with the ball and touch-finding.

Police threw everything into the game in an effort to cross the Kolofo'ou line with result that for most of the time was play in Kolofo'ou territory.

Throughout the game, Police's Polutele and Selupe were dominant in the lineouts and Lupina in the scrums.

Kolofo'ou still managed to hold the lead up to 20th minute to no side with only six men in forwards when two of their forwards were ordered off the field. Sālesi in the 25th minute of the first half and Tevita Blomfield in the sixth minute of the second half.

'Ilavalu was on target when Kolofo'ou were penalised to make the score 3–all.

Ten minutes to no side, the Police backs swung into action. Malakai took a long pass to 'Ilavalu who make an overlocking pass to his centre Vainikolo. Sami moved in to take the pass from Vainikolo before he unloaded to Kei Tonri who went over in the corner for the winning try of the game. 'Ilavalu missed the conversion and the final score was 7–3.

Maka, at second-five for Kolofo'ou, played a grand game. He seem to be everywhere in trying to stop the Police backline.

Kolofo'ou forwards were ably led by Siō and Kimbu. For the Police, 'Alele Fono and Polutele were outstanding in loose and tight.

Little wonder Malakai at halfback had a hard day – he always had something breathing down his neck and checking a pass which in any case was often a hasty lob. Nevertheless, 'Ilavalu always took it.

One of the best games of the day was Tavatu'utolu and Ha'ateiho. Tavatu'utolu were trailing 4 – 8 at halftime until the final minutes of the game. But out of the blue, centre Tahilotu received a pass outside Ha'ateiho's 25 to outpace three defenders to score. Lasike converted to make the final score, Tavatu'utolu 10, Ha'ateiho 8.

At the end of the second round last Saturday, Police and Tavatu'utolu are the only undefeated teams in the Senior A division.

Sālesi had his marching orders from referee Vili Salakielu when he booted the Police halfback, Malakai 'Alatini in the 25th minutes of the first half.

Tevita was sent off in the sixth minutes of the second half.

Sālesi was suspended for one game by the rugby union and Tevita for two games.

Mani Vaka Wants To See Pro Boxing Improved

Tonga heavyweight boxing champion, Mani Vaka disagrees with the way the Tonga Professional Boxing Association does some things.

Vaka told the Chronicle he likes to see every professional boxer brought up through the amateur ranks.

He said that boxers who had been trained well in the amateurs would find their way easier because of the experience they had.

Those who had been brought up only as professionals always find it hard, Vaka said. They also ruin the image of the professional boxing world in Tonga, he said.

"It was obvious when we saw Manu Tu'ineau and Koniseti 'Akau'ola fight two weeks ago. It was raw. There were so many wild punches because the two had no experience of big fights and never been in amateur bouts.

"I am sure boxing fans do not like to spend their money on such a fight", he said. "The association should take into consideration that fans do not expect to see a comedy or concert inside the ring."

Sending boxers overseas is a great experience, Vaka said, but the association should pick the best possible because more Tongan boxers will be required to fight overseas in future if the association "plays its cards right".

Vaka also said the rules of the boxing ring should be made known to every boxer. A referees and boxers meeting to discuss the rules would be a good thing, he said.

"It happened at some bouts during knocked downs that the other boxer acts like the hero of the ring by moving around to wherever he likes. He should be in one of the ueutral corners instead of going back to his corner or moving about the ring."

Vaka said he hoped the association would do more to improve the standard of professional boxing in Tonga.

Tonga Assured Air Pacific "Does Care"

BY THE EDITOR

Air Pacific does care about Tonga and was trying to give the Kingdom the best service it could under the difficult circumstances that existed here, the commercial manager for Air Pacific, Mr Allan Cameron, said on Monday.

Ironically, it was one of these difficult circumstances, the weather, that prevented Mr Cameron returning to Suva on Saturday as scheduled.

In spite of his position, he was one of the passengers who had to be off-loaded from the flight to Nausori when it was neccessary to reduce the weight of the aircraft because of wet runway conditions.

Mr Cameron came to Tonga last week to try to improve Air Pacific's public relations in the Kingdom. Before he left on Monday he said he was certain his visit had established, with those concerned with tourism, a better understanding of the problems of maintaining a reliable air service to Tonga.

He also said that he would be able to convey to his company an appreciation of the difficulties being experienced by the Kingdom's tour operators.

Mr Cameron had an audience with His Majesty, met Ministers, head of departments, Government officials and all connected with the tour and travel business. Everyone had been most helpful and constructive, he said.

The inconvenience to travellers in and out of Tonga by the cancellation of flights was a matter of great concern to Air Pacific, Mr Cameron said, and he wanted to dispel any impression that the airline "did not care".

He agreed there was a great need to improve the means of keeping travellers informed and the crux of the whole problem in Tonga was communications.

For example, on Saturday the heavy overnight rain had flooded the centre of runway and there was doubt as to whether the aircraft would be able to land.

The flight controller at Fua'amotu informed Nadi of this at 9 a.m. (8 a.m. in Fiji). The radio-telephone between Tonga and Fiji does not open until this time, but by then the aircraft had left Apia.

At the same time the local agents for Air Pacific, E. M. Jones Ltd., were informed, through the Telephone and Telegraph Department, the only link with the airport as there is no telephone.

By this time it was nearly 9-30 and most passengers and their friends and relatives were already be on their way to the airport—too late to inform them of any change of time or cancellation of the flight.

Actually, the pilot reported later that he did not receive the message from Nadi that the airport was flooded until about 30 minutes out of Fua'amotu, which again emphasised the communication problem.

When the aircraft did arrive over the airport the pilot made an inspection run first and decided the conditions were not too bad and he obviously had the skill and special techniques required for landing an aircraft in the wet. He also inspected the strip again in the fire-tender before taking off and apparently decided he could take-off without having to leave too many passengers behind to reduce the weight.

Mr Cameron emphasised that there was no suggestion that the present strip was not safe but in wet weather and with a cross wind it did require special techniques.

Safety was paramount, Mr Cameron said, and if Air Pacific had any doubts about the present strip they would be conveyed to the Tonga Governnment.

"We have no doubts at the moment", he said.

A field drain has been dug on the edge of the strip to drain the water which tends to lie in the middle of the runway, opposite the terminal. Mr Cameron said the drain seemed to be the answer "in the short term", but the final decision on whether the strip was satisfactory depended on the captains of the aircrafts.

"The pilots are the men concerned with safety".

Mr Cameron said the general manager of Air Pacific and the operations manager would be coming to Tonga soon to look at the airfield and to bring themselves up to date on developments.

Mr Cameron admitted that not only Tonga's recent wet weather had been responsible for disruptions, technicals faults had made February a particularly bad month.

"But delays are a fact of life in the air business."

Minister Says Runway Ready Next June

The new runway at Fua'amotu should be fully operational and ready for the new Air Pacific BAC One-Eleven in June next year, "assuming everything goes according to plan", the Minister of Works, the Hon. Langi Kavaliku, said on Monday.

Work had been delayed about four months by wet weather and the lack of plant. Dr Kavaliku said. More plant was expected from Australia.

He also said it was hoped to have direct communication from the airport to Nuku'alofa later this year, depending on the arrival of equipment. The delay had been caused by lack of finance, he said.

The plan was to have a Very High Frequency (VHF) radio telephone linking the airport and the exchange.

The Minister said Air Pacific would hold its board meeting in Nuku'alofa on June 14, for the first time out of Fiji.

He agreed that Mr Cameron's visit had been a valuable public relations exercise and he looked forward to welcoming the general manager and operations manager in the near future.

Mr John Edward Rae of Overseas Development Administration has been appointed Government Auditor and will arrive in the Kingdom, accompanied by his wife, by the first available opportunity after July 1.

Water Pumpsets For Farming From India

The High Commissioner for India, His Excellency Mr Baghwan Singh, arrived in the Kingdom yesterday to present five diesel water pumpsets for farming operations.

The pumpsets were made by one of the largest manufacturers of agricultural implements in India.

A Press release said one of the main advantages of the pumpsets is that they are easy to install and operate and have low running costs. They can be mounted on wheels and moved from place to place. Each five horsepower set can irrigate 6.5 acres of land in an eight hour working day.

The High Commissioner also presented two Indian-made soccer balls to His Majesty.

We like the story about the schoolchildren from Kolovai who came to see the art exhibition this week. They enjoyed it so much they wanted to show their appreciation, so they sat down on the floor and sang for the members of the organising committee their own special song about the Flying Foxes.

We saw a film poster this week that had been rejected by the board of film censors as "unsuitable (misleading)". It was a most artistic (to our way of thinking) painting of Brigitte Bardot that would have qualified for any art exhibition and in no way as provocative as some we have seen around Tonga that blatantly and crudely exploit sex. Now we are wondering how some of the posters showing blood and gore and great violence get passed by the censors

Curious things appear on ship's manifests sometimes. This week, browsing through the list of cargo on the "Aoniu", we noticed "machine guns and parts". Further inquiries revealed it is only one machinegun for the Tonga Defence Force.

* * *

We came across this item in the annual report of the Tonga Red Cross welfare officer for which we doubt that the society has received any publicity or praise: "One family whose fale was destroyed by fire was given clothing, bedding and a sewing machine."

* * *

A man boarded a nearly full bus this week and naturally the driver demanded a fare. When the man told him he was a policeman in civilian dress and wanted a free ride, the driver said it would cost him a 10 seniti fare if he gave him a free ride, and they argued. Finally they agreed the policeman would get his free ride on condition he allowed the driver to overload the bus by three passengers. And that is exactly what happened!

"What's happened to the "Dear Sir" letters? There haven't been any in the Chronicle for a couple of weeks". This is a questions we've been asked several times this week and the answer is that YOU aren't writing any. Actually, one of two have been received but they were not suitable for publication because the facts were not correct. The Editor is happy to receive letters, but please get your facts right!

The goodwill visit by the Australian Navy destroyer "Anzac" for five days this week was cancelled early in the week.

THE NOT-SO-FRIENDLY ISLANDERS

By the EDITOR

Tongans may not be able to travel again on the P and O liner "Canberra" from Auckland to Nuku'alofa because of disturbances they caused on the last voyage which arrived last Saturday.

Passengers reported to the Chronicle fights among the Tongans and groups of them "took over" some of the bars.

The commander of the ship, Captain W. B. Vickers, is reported to have said he "will not tolerate that sort of conduct" and is likely to refuse to carry Tongans as passengers from Auckland in future.

The "Canberra" had 189 passengers for Nuku'alofa; about 160 were Tongans and about 20 of this number were deportees who had overstayed their permits to enter New Zealand, or were stowaways being returned.

The worst incident happened one night after midnight at the "Cricketers' Arms" when one Tongan was beaten-up by a group of five other Tongans. The ugly scene was stopped eventually by members of the crew with the assistance of two Tongan constables who were passengers.

At this stage the man was lying on the deck being kicked in the face by the other men.

A doctor had to be called to treat the beaten man and he was placed in the ship's hospital overnight. Two Tongan women stayed with him to attend to him.

On two occasions Tongans drinking in one of the bars caused such a disturbance and became so objectionable when reprimanded that the Staff Captain closed the bars.

In the discotheque, where recordings are played for dancing, the two turntables were interfered with and Tongans were reported to have been so rude to the young woman who operated the record players that she had to leave.

Passengers spoken to by the Chronicle admitted that as usual it was only the few who had caused trouble, but most of the 1800 passengers in transit had been given a bad impression of all Tongans.

As one man said, "I can't see anything friendly about these islanders."

A New Zealand passenger who disembarked at Nuku'alofa told the Chronicle he was surprised at the way some Tongans carried on in the bars. "They did not seem to appreciate how much they were annoying other passengers."

A Tongan passenger said he heard about the trouble on board but saw nothing of it.

Another young Tongan said he had seen a lot of bad behaviour and he was ashamed.

He would be speaking for most of us.

INDIAN PUMPS FOR TONGA

The scene at the International Dateline Hotel last Wednesday night at a Government reception when the Indian High Commissioner, His Excellency Mr Baghwan Singh (left) handed over officially five high-pressure water pumps to the Acting Prime Minister, the Hon. Tuita, who received them on behalf of Tonga. One of the pumps was on display at the reception and a demonstration of its capabilities was given using water from the hotel swimming pool.

Scope For Industry "Looks Good"

Good scope for new industry is seen in Tonga by a consultant from the Indian Ministry of Industrial Development, Mr R. C. Paliwal, who is in the Kingdom for about a month to report on the possibility of developing light industry.

Mr Paliwal's visit is the direct result of His Majesty's tour of India last year where the King saw a parallel between Indian and Tongan industrial economy.

During Mr Paliwal's study of conditions in the Kingdom, he wants to discuss problems and ideas on industrial development with anyone who likes to come to see him in the office assigned to him in the Prime Minister's Department.

Mr Paliwal said new industries could be established in the Kingdom, based on existing industries and without requiring huge investment of capital.

The coconut, for instance, could be a source of new industries in addition to copra and dessicated coconut, he said. A form of jute could be made from the fibre and flour and charcoal from the shell. Coconut shell flour was used in the plastic industry and charcoal was used as a bleaching agent for foodstuffs.

The banana stem was also a source of fibre that could replace jute he said as new industry could be set up to extract the fibre.

Other possibilities for light industries which Mr Paliwal thought could be established in the Kingdom were the canning and freezing of vegetables, compounding fertilisers, and paint.

The climate was right for industrial development in Tonga, Mr Paliwal said, and India was prepared to help with technical assistance and equipment to set up industries.

KANGAROO IS HERE TO STAY

The kangaroo is alive and well - - and his outlook for the future is healthier than ever.

This is the latest diagnosis of Australian zoologists who, to say the least, are hopping mad about grim warnings that the national emblem, as a species, is facing imminent extinction.

The northern State of Queensland, which has one of the largest kangaroo populations in Australia scattered over its 667,000 square miles, has recently shed new light on a subject that, over the past few years, has become a national - - and international - - controversy.

For the first time, it is now possible to "monitor" the kangaroo population by scientifically examining the teeth and skull of sample kills.

From statistics already in hand, it seems certain that - - despite the enormous harvest taken annually by commercial shooters for the booming pet food and hide industries - - the numbers are continuing to increase.

The real threat, if any, say the experts, is man's penchant for ripping up natural bushland and replacing it with concrete jungles.

The technique of assessing a kangaroo's age and sex by an examination of its teeth, was developed after 10 years of research by Dr Thomas Kirkpatrick, a senior zoologist with the Queensland Department of Primary Industries.

Dr Kirkpatrick now has set up a "listening post" in the Warwick district of south-eastern Queensland where he receives and checks thousands of kangaroo skulls sent to him by professional shooters from all parts of the State.

His theory is that while at least 10 per cent of the kangaroo population in any healthy area is aged 10 years or over there is no danger to the species.

(Kangaroos mature between two and three years and live to about 15 or 20 years of age).

At present, although professional shooters claimed nearly a million kangaroos in Queensland alone last year - - with the older and larger animals a prime target - - the 10 years-of-age-plus factor remained around 20 per cent.

Many graziers, in fact, still regard the kangaroo as a pest.

Australia's kangaroo population is heaviest in Queensland and Western Australia, but no-one has yet been able to take a census or even make a calculated guess at the figure.

Dr Kirkpatrick points out that the greatest misconceptions about the kangaroo population stem from the widely-publicised complaints of travellers who describe trips of thousands of miles through the Australian outback without seeing a single kangaroo.

"Characteristically, kangaroos are secretive and nocturnal," he says.

"It would be the exception rather than the rule for them to be seen on main roads in daylight hours."

It was for this reason that many tourists got the impression that the kangaroo population had been "shot out".

Normally a kangaroo began feeding in the late afternoon and in the first half of the night, rested between midnight and 3 a.m., moved about again until about two or three hours after daylight when he returned to a daylight resting place well-hidden from human eyes.

It also had been found, he said, that kangaroos were never seen on windy days and nights and rarely emerged into the open during the wet season.

However, they were usually seen in great numbers during droughts at all times of the day and night as they foraged far and wide.

It was significant, said Dr Kirkpatrick, that these dry periods produced the biggest harvest for shooters - - yet apparently had no marked effect on the kangaroo population.

Suva Rugby Star Dies After Fall

A Suva rugby star died in the Colonial War Memorial Hospital after he fell while playing for his team against Police at the weekend.

Sesone Dreu (20), a top forward with the University of South Pacific team, died about 3 p.m. on Sunday.

He was admitted late on Saturday afternoon.

A hospital spokesman said the probably cause of death was a head injury.

Dreu was a USP student taking a Bachelor of Arts graduate course.

Australia Recalls Consul

Australia has recalled its consul in Noumea, Mr Alan Edwards.

The recall is seen in Canberra as being designed to mollify the French rather than to discipline Mr Edwards.

It follows publication last month of a long article in the weekly newspaper Journal Caledonien, which claimed that in talks with members of the Territorial Asembly Mr Edwards had said that autonomy would not be a bad thing for New Caledonia.

Later, Mr Edwards denied having tried to influence local politicians.

The Australian Government is believed to have accepted his explanation that any remarks were made in a social context.

ANOTHER HS 748 FOR PAL

Negotiations for a second HS748 for Polynesian Airlines are under way.

Mr E. Annandale, Polynesian's chairman of directors, said last week the second turbo-jet aircraft should be ready for delivery before the close of the year.

"A letter of intent has been issued to Hawker Siddeley Aviation and the second HS748 should be ready for delivery in October or November, 1972, if satisfactory arrangements are reached on terms, price, financing and other details," he said.

Mr Annandale said the second aircraft was "urgently necessary to cope with the traffic demand for more modern and sophisticated equipment."

This move, following so closely after the introduction of its first brand new HS748 early this year, he said, is indicative of the rapid growth of air travel in the South Pacific area.

Mr Annandale said the airline is getting another 748, rather than a bigger BAC 111 as Air Pacific has done, because of its "drive for frequency."

"We would rather make three or four trips at much shorter intervals", he continued, "than one trip and then a long wait."

"People who want to travel do not wait round for a particular aircraft," he said, "they want to take the first aircraft available."

The chairman said Air Pacific and Polynesian are working in very close cooperation. Polynesian's new aircraft had done a number of trips for Air Pacific.

Close cooperation would be maintained, he said. If the second aircraft could not be kept at full use, it would be used for services by the consortium.

YOUR HEART IS YOUR HEALTH

World Health Day Tomorrow

MESSAGE OF DR FRANCISCO J. DY, DIRECTOR WORLD HEALTH ORGANISATION WESTERN PACIFIC REGION

The heart is the most overworked part of the human body. All throughout life, it furnishes the energy for man's physical, mental and emotional activities.

Yet most people do not seem to look after hearts properly. In affluent societies, people overburden their hearts through overeating and less physical exertion. The tension of hurried city life and excessive pressure of work are particularly hard on the heart. In the less affluent areas, malnutrition and infections are the main causes for various forms of heart disorders. But in whatever society it occurs, death from heart ailments appears to be particularly high among men at their most productive years.

The theme of World Health Day celebration this year seeks to remind people that their heart is their health. The message is personal but it also has a clear reminder for community action. "Your heart is your health" tells people that the health of their heart is in their own hands. It has been shown very clearly that there are certain habits associated with atherosclerosis and coronary heart diseases. These habits include overeating, particularly rich foods with saturated fats and purified carbohydrates, smoking and lack of proper physical exercise. Insecurity, lack of understanding and inadequate care from parents could contribute to maladjustment and heart disease of children.

In many instances, heart ailments of adults can be traced back to childhood and the habits of adolescents. There is therefore a clear demand for preventive measures for the maintenance of healthy hearts from birth to old age.

There are various community health measures and services that should be the concern of national health authorities. These include early recognition and treatment of congenital malformations, streptococcal and other infections and the prevention of rheumatic heart disease.

The community should be made aware of individual preventive measures and the services available to detect and cure early symptoms of heart and vascular diseases. Adequate diet, refraining from smoking and regular physical exercise should be emphasized in schools or even earlier in life.

Evidently, there is much work to be done in areas of overcrowding and inadequate hygiene where rheumatic heart disease is common among children and young people. Improvement of both preventive and curative measures are clearly needed in these areas.

"Your heart is your health" calls for healthier habits, a home and community with less tension, anxiety and fear. It calls for working conditions devoid of unnecessary stress and strain.

I hope that the message of 1972 World Health Day will spur individuals and the community toward these ideals. I hope health authorities will take up the challenge to provide adequate preventive measures, proper treatment and rehabilitation of the afflicted.

NO DOUBT ABOUT HA'ATEIHO'S 4-0 WIN OVER KOLOMOTU'A

By PAUA MANU'ATU

Fast teamwork gave Ha'ateiho a well-deserved 4 – 0 win over Kolomotu'a in the main rugby game at Teufaiva last Saturday. The highlight of the match was the try in the 31st minute of the first half by Ha'ateiho's promising right winger, Siua Mahe who turned defence into attack by making a spectacular 80yd dash to score.

The movement began when Siua gathered a loose ball midway between Ha'ateiho's 25 and goal line, zig-zagging his way through six Kolomotu'a defenders and outpaced two more to touch down. Pouvalu failed in conversion.

Kolomotu'a almost evened the score when Tali Kavapalu dribbled a loose ball to Ha'ateiho's goal line, but his winger missed it as he dived to score.

Play during the second half was even with each side mounting good attacks. Both teams defended well, however, and no tries were scored.

Throughout the game, Ha'ateiho dominated the lineouts with Taipaleti Tonga and evenly shared the ball in scrums.

'Atieli, Samiu and Pouvalu played well in loose and tight and ably led the young Ha'ateiho forwards.

Tali Kavapalu had a hard day because he was well marked by the Ha'ateiho backline. Nevertheless, his experience showed.

In a game of changing fortunes, Kolofo'ou were lucky to defeat Nukunuku by 8 – 4.

Both side pulled off good tactic and turned on the best game of the day.

A last-minute try by Kolofo'ou climaxed a game that left the large crowd dizzy with excitement in the second half in a dour for possession and points developed into a struggle by Nukunuku and Kolofo'ou to win the match.

Nukunuku took the lead in the 36th minutes of the first half when left winger Mekinaite scored a try near the corner.

It was not until 13 minutes to no side that Kolofo'ou were able to even the score.

The speed of Mosese at right wing for Kolofo'ou was the deciding factor of the match when he went over twice in the corner.

Lively and enterprising Kolofo'ou halfback, Metui was the mastermind of the winning try of the match.

Kolofo'ou hooked the ball in a five yard scrum from Nukunuku goal line. Metui took the ball on the blindside and drew defenders before releasing it to Mosese to dive in at the corner.

Nukunuku No. 8 Fa'aleo Hufanga played a grand game in dominating the lineout and toiled hard in loose and tight.

Siō and Kimbu were the best forwards in the Kolofo'ou pack.

Hihifo outclassed Fasi in the second spell to win by 22 – 10 after trailing 4 – 0 at halftime.

Police scored the season's biggest win so far when they outpaced Mu'a by 46 – 4.

It will be interesting to see the young and fast Ha'ateiho team against the strong Police team this Saturday.

Semisi Tongotongo of Hōfoa outclassed Nalesoni Taufa of Houma in the light-middleweight division. Semisi stopped Nalesoni in 1min 51 seconds of the first round.

Height and reach advantages coupled with fast left and right combinations gave Mā Sisifā of Vainī an easy victory over Tupou Tonga'uiha of Houma in their light-heavyweight bout.

DEAR SIR . . .

Dear Sir,—Regarding your article on March 16, on the word "beautification" I would like to share my opinion with you. It seems that you do not want people to use the mentioned word since it is not in the "Oxford" dictionary. That does not mean there is no such word. According to the "Webster New Collegiate Dictionary" there is such a word "beautification" - - a noun.

Please straighten this out because I kind of like the word myself.

BOBBY W. McGEE,

Air Pacific Jet Service Begins

Air Pacific began its first commercial jet services at the weekend and ushered out of service one of its two workhorse DC3s, says the Fiji Times.

The BAC111 carried what the airline's commercial manager, Mr Allan Cameron, described as a moderate load of passengers from Nausori to New Guinea on Sunday.

The flight of about six hours was made via Nadi, Vila and Honiara.

On the Nausori-Nadi sector the 550 m.p.h. jet set a takeoff to setdown record of 20 minutes.

It returned to Suva yesterday over the same route.

More flights to Honiara and Vila will be made by it this week.

The first BAC111 flight to Western Samoa will be made when a new runway is opened at Falcolo Airport towards the end of this month.

One of the two DC3s Air Pacific has had on charter from New Zealand was returned to its owners yesterday.

"We are keeping one as a reserve aircraft to slot in where it's needed," Mr Cameron said.

The DC3s have been used mainly on the Nausori-Nadi service with some flights to Tonga.

With the departure of one of the DC3s, all Nausori-Nadi flights will normally be made by HS748 or BAC111.

"'Olovaha" To Take 250 Performers To Fiji Festival

Tonga will be represented by 250 performers at the South Pacific Festival in Suva on May 6 to 20, says the director of the Tongan group, Hon. Ve'ehala.

The "'Olovaha" has been arranged to take the participants to Suva in May 1, returning at the end of the festival.

Hon. Ve'ehala said April 27 had been set for the participants to perform at mala'e Pangai for Their Majesties, the nobles and the general public before they depart for Suva.

Groups are busy rehearsing dancing and singing every Tuesday and Thursday at Fa'onelua Garden and Monday and Wednesday at the residence of the Director of Education, Mr R. McMurdo, at Pikula.

The ancient traditional dances of Me'etu'upaki, Fa'ahiula, 'Otuhaka and Tau'a'alo are being performed by men and women, the Hon. Ve'ehala said. School girls from Queen Sālote College, Tonga High School, St Mary High School and St Andrew's School will perform the children's ancient dances of 'Ito'ito and Hiko (juggling game).

There will also be a demonstration on weaving and tapa making.

The men's popular indoor game of Lafo (bowling) is included in the Tongan items to be presented at the festival, the Hon. Ve'ehala said.

The Hon Ve'ehala coaching dancers for the South Pacific Arts Festival next month at the Fā'onelua Garden on Tuesday afternoon.

University Centre News

By MARGARET BLUNDELL

The exciting new thing at USP Centre the last couple of weeks has been starting a small and varied shelf of books for lending to students. These are mainly light reading though there are a few more serious works.

At the moment lending is restricted to the people using the Centre. Most of the books are ones that have been given by well wishers to the USP Centre. As more than a half are already out spare books are still needed.

At 8 o'clock this evening, Lopeti Taufa will be giving his second lecture at the Centre on Tongan history. He will be discussing the effect of Christianity on the cultural life of the people of Tonga.

Interested members of the public are welcome.

NZ Told "Don't Be Paternalistic

New Zealand must "not be paternalistic" in its Pacific role, the assistant secretary of the Royal Commonwealth Society Mr C. McCraw has said.

New Zealand should do everything on an equality basis in its dealing with the South Pacific island nations, he said.

The South Pacific islanders had a lot to teach New Zealanders, Mr Craw said.

P.M. out of hospital

The Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake, was discharged after surgery from hospital in Auckland on Friday and will spend about three week recuperating at 'Atalanga.

The British Prime Minister, Mr Edward Heath, and the Secretary of State, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, have sent the following messages to Prince Tu'ipelehake in Auckland.

From the Prime Minister: "It was with great distress I learnt the news of your illness. I send you my best wishes for a speedy recovery and hope you will be able to visit Britain soon."

From the Secretary of State: "I was much looking forward to your visit to Britain and it was with great regret I heard the news of your illness I send my best wishes for your speedy recovery and look forward to seeing you in London at a later date."

This And That

CHRONICLE DIARY

One of the reasons why road construction is so slow in Tonga is because the people are damaging the construction sites, a Ministry of Works road engineer tells us. An example of this is on the Fua'amotu-Nakolo-Ha'asini section of the Liku road where the survey pegs are being removed or damaged every night. This means that when workers come to start work again in the morning the survey pegs have to be replaced before anything can be done. This is costing the people of Tonga a lot of money and is also delaying the building of the road.

* * *

It sounds incredible, but we know it is true: A man who called the police for help in dealing wth a disturbance late at night was told they couldn't come because they had no transport, so he had to go to the station and collect them himself in his own vehicle. By that time the trouble was over, of course.

* * *

The new date for the open day at the Government Farm is Anzac Day, April 25. The event had to be cancelled last Monday because the ground conditions were bad.

* * *

Air Pacific agents in Tonga, F. M. Jones Ltd, told us yesterday they started using the new timetable this week but they have now been advised from Suva that it is all wrong and to hold off until further advice The new schedule may possibly come into use next week.

* * *

Japanese Overseas Co-operation Volunteers may come to Tonga. Mr Hitoshi Shindo arrives in the Kingdom tomorrow to discuss the proposal with the Government.

* * *

A most unusual motor accident is reported in the Cook Island News. It was between a motor cyclist and a pedestrian who was believed to be under the influence of liquor. The motorcyclist was travelling along the road when a pedestrian coming from the opposite direction struck the motorcyclist with his closed fist on the left eye. This caused the motorcyclist to fall from his motorcycle, but he was not hurt except for a black eye. The pedestrian was arrested the same night by the police.

The Post Office was open last Saturday when the cruise ship "Canberra" was in Nuku'alofa and so was the Banking Division of the Treasury, but we wondered why the Visitors' Bureau was closed, especially when there were about 1800 visitors in town.

Where Time Begins

Nuku'alofa, Thursday, April 13, 1972 Vol. VIII No. 45 3 Seniti

PREDICTION: SEARCH FOR OIL WILL CONTINUE

By the EDITOR

The decision on oil exploration in Tonga has been made and the Government has been informed by the Tonga Oil Participants, but no announcement will be made by the Minister of Lands, the Hon. Tuita, until Privy Council meets on Friday.

Until the announcement, anything written or said must be conjecture. I will predict, however, based on reliable information, that oil exploration will continue in Tonga but with only five participants instead of six.

One company, it is believed, has informed the Government that it is opting out. It would not be prudent to mention the name of the company at this stage; but it was significant that this company was not present yesterday morning when the representatives of the Participants, who are now in the Kingdom, called on the Minister of Lands. Sources say he was previously handed a letter informing him of the particular company's decision.

On Tuesday, representatives of the Participants arrived with the general representative in the Kingdom, Mr Alan Jackson of Tonga Shell NV Ltd. The others are S. Nasr of Ampol Exploration, Australia, L. Harpold, Republic Mineral Corporation, Texas, E. Ericson, Gulf Oil, Australia, R. Matthews, British Petroleum, New Zealand, and K. Creevy, Aquitaine, Australia.

Yesterday afternoon they had an audience with His Majesty and they are expected to leave Tonga on Saturday.

During their few days here, the Participants will probably have talks with the Government on the implications and complications of one Participant withdrawing, and the agreement will be carefully studied.

A New Concept In Shopping

The people of the Kingdom were introduced to a new conception in shopping for Tonga when Morris Hedstrom's new department store and supermarket open in Nuku'alofa this morning.

A special eight-page supplement is contained in this issue of the Chronicle to mark the occasion.

Last night, H.R.H. Princess Pilolevu had a special preview of the new store. She was introduced by the manager, Mr G. Suttle, to Mr David Crowe, the general manager of W. R. Carpenter (South Pacific) Ltd. the parent company of Morris Hedstrom Ltd., who thanked Her Royal Highness for honouring the company.

Mrs Crowe made a presentation to Princess Pilolevu.

Following a conducted tour of the new store a reception was held at the Dateline Hotel for invited guests.

Since the old store was demolished about two years ago the business has been operating in what will now become the bulk store. The striking feature of the new store is the spaciousness, the layout and the ease with which purchases can be selected.

The supermarket, where customers serve themselves, will be new to many Tongans, but the simple proceedure will soon be acquired.

Another new feature of the store is the snack bar where light meals and refreshments can be obtained.

As Mr Suttle says: "We are proud of our new store and we feel that the public will share our pride."

12 DISCIPLES IN VALAS

Imagine the 12 Disciples bare-chested and dressed in Tongan valas and eating breadfruit and yams.

If that's too difficult, imagine them stripped to the waist, with golden-brown tans, kneeling down in popaos spearing fish over the side.

Or try to visualize Jesus Christ turning water into coconut juice before a crowd of Tongan villagers sitting on the white sand beach, with the Pacific surf rolling in and palm trees waving in a gentle breeze.

Scenes like these are perhaps hard to imagine, but Auckland artist John Castle is having to dream them up to fulfill a commission he has received from the United Bible Society to illustrate a Bible for Tongans.

The society's plan is to produce a series of easily readable Bibles for the South Pacific and it is starting wth Tonga.

Apart from translation into the Tongan language, the Bible will have illustrations that include typical features of the local scene.

John Castle explained "Many Tongans have never seen a brick house or vineyards and the other Middle East living styles, so my job will be to illustrate the Bible in a Tongan setting."

Does this mean Jesus Christ will be depicted as a Tongan?

"This question is still undecided, but I think at this stage He will probably be the only person in Arabic dress and of European features," Mr Castle said.

"The rest of the Bible's characters will be Tongan, and most stories they are involved in will have the setting changed to Tonga."

Mr Castle has begun work on 48 illustrations for the Gospel of St Mark and he went to Tonga in January to make preliminary sketches of people and backgrounds.

The illustrations will be in pen and wash, using two basic colours as well as black. The two colours were "invented" by Mr Castle after his Tongan trip and are a shade of golden-brown and a turquoise.

"The golden-brown is for the skin colour of Tongans and the turquoise is the basic colour of the sea and sky."

"And by blending the two colours I can get green."

But the mammoth task of the Tongan Bible must first be finished and Mr Castle who is well known for his pictorial books on Wellington, Auckland, Christchurch and Northland, has many months of vividly imaginative work ahead of him. — AUCKLAND STAR.

"DEAR SIR..."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Court Warning

Dear Sir.—In your issue of the March 23, it was reported that there will be no probation for first offenders convicted of Housebreaking. It was further stated that all those guilty of housebreaking would be punished by imprisonment or whipping regardless of age.

I am amazed and find it incredible that such a warning or general statement can be correctly attributable to a Court of Justice. Its implications and ramifications are far reaching to say the least. From a legal point of view it will be unnecessary to have Counsel where there will be a plea of guilty. It will be unnecessary to make submissions as to penalty as the Court has predetermined this question. Imprisonment is inevitable in the case of a 14-year-old person of poor health not fit for whipping. It opens up the question of challenge on grounds of bias. Confidence in the Court to get a fair hearing could be diminished, and so on, if one wants to go into detail.

Before a Court of Law imposes sentence, it must always carefully take into account the retributive, preventive, deterrent and reformative aspect of the penalty appropriate to a particular case. Once the Court has completed this process and given careful consideration to all the facts before it and the circumstances of the unfortunate individual concerned, then it should pronounce the sentence. In giving sentence, the Court should also be careful to confine its pronouncements to the particular facts before it at that point of time.

This is a fundamental and elementary principle of law. To do otherwise is to prejudge without a fair hearing. It would be well to remember and hear the words of Lord Goddard, a former Lord Chief Justice of England who said:

"Justice must not only be done, but manifestly seen to be done."

The Criminal Offence Act of Tonga, provides for a maximum and not a minimum penalty for housebreaking. The Legislature in its wisdom has recognized, by so framing the Act, that the facts and circumstances of each and every particular case are different. The task of hearing and then dispensing justice has been left to the Court with wide unfettered powers. The Court should not therefore fetter those powers by now saying that there will be no probation for first offenders in cases of housebreaking, regardless of age.

How can justice be seen to be done, if before hearing submissions as to penalty from defending Counsel, consideration of the facts and sentencing, the Court pronounce in advance there will be no probation for first offenders?

I accept and appreciate that the Court may have been genuinely concerned with the prevalence or increase of housebreaking offences in the Kingdom but notwithstanding this, I openly and strongly disagree with that form of justice. It would have been more appropriate for the prosecution or Minister of Police to have been reported as asking the Court for a minimum penalty but certainly not regardless of age.

The Court must not be misguided by any ill conceived motive that would-be offenders will be deterred by such decisions. One should bear in mind the well-known example of the death penalty in murder cases not preventing or reducing the commission of this most serious type of offence.

The subject's constitutional right to a fair hearing must not be jeopardized nor respect for the Court minimised. Justice must be seen to be done.

Long Hair

Dear Sir,

I consider long hair to be quite acceptable as it does not cause any interference with others individual rights. This is different from being drunk or stealing.

But in a certain department they are more concerned about long hair than person's character or even his way of life. What they like is to see that men with long hair have it cut short before anything can be issued if they want to travel overseas on vacation.

The department concerned should know they are blocking the stream of time and violating the human rights, if the people have to act according to their wishes and beliefs.

Men with long hair appreciate the creation of God.

If I have to spend 30 minutes every week on haircut it will mean that when I am 70-year-old, I would have lost nine weeks on cutting my hair short instead of using that time on some other job.

Selling Bread

Dear Sir.—There is a funny thing in the selling of bread. When there is lots of flour in the Kingdom, the bakeries are competing to serve all retail stores, but when there is a shortage of flour the bakers seem to disappear and the stores can't get bread to sell.

Last week, we experienced a shortage of flour. One baker's bread delivery van, instead of stopping at my store as it has done for weeks, sped on to two other stores and left bread for sale. I believe the driver only did this because he is related to the owners of these two stores.

I have been to Riechelmann's twice to buy cartons of biscuits and was told that all the biscuits had been ordered by the big stores. What then will happen to the small retail stores in rural areas which meet the needs of the country people.

I believe my store is not the only one experiencing these problems.

I would like to suggested these proposals to every retail store:

a. We should have flour and bake cakes and pies for sale, instead of bread, so we can maintain the needs of our customers at all times.
b. If we have to continue selling bread, the profit we make on selling a dozen loaves should be raised from 5 seniti to 10 seniti a dozen.
c. We should order our biscuits direct from Fiji because the Friendly Islands Biscuit factory is unable to meet the demand, except to the major stores.

I would appreciate any support to my suggestions.

"Canberra"

Dear Sir.—I was simply amazed at the sweeping statements by certain passeengers on the "Canberra" as reported in your issue of last week.

I am an Auckland resident and travelled to Nuku'alofa with my wife on the same vessel. Far from being upset at the behaviour of the Tongan passengers we were most impressed with the good manners of every Tongan to whom we spoke.

We certainly did not witness the alleged incident in the 'Cricketers' Arms' but admittedly there were one or two instances on the evening before we arrived at Tonga when one or two Polynesian people became a bit "merry" on beer in one of the lounges, but certainly not to the extent of causing offence.

We talked to many passengers in the course of the voyage and did not hear one word of complaint about the behaviour of the Tongan people.

As far as we are concerned, our experience on the ship and since we have been ashore has only confirmed the Tongans as the "Friendly Islanders".

Sunday

Dear Sir.—With reference to a letter about Sunday observance from 22 students from Liahona in the March 2 issue of the Chronicle: I understand they are trying to keep Sunday holy within Liahona, but the clubs and hotels are different.

The hotel does not open for the public on Sundays and visitors staying in the hotel are co-operating in keeping the Sunday holy. In much the same way clubs operate for their members but observe Sunday Laws in their own way.

Irrespective of the difference between a school, club and the hotel, they do observe Sunday holy in their own way, in accordance with the law.

Don't Rubbish Tonga

Let's Keep Our Country Clean And Tidy

Have you ever walked along the sea front at Nuku'alofa, especially at low tide? Have you ever had a picnic on one of the beaches of Tongatapu?

If you have, you must have seen the filth, the rubbish, the broken bottles, the old beer cans, the remains of fruit and food, the rusty jagged canned corned beef tins, the torn bits of paper and plastic which are lying around everywhere. An offence to the eyes and nose and a danger to health.

Perhaps you don't notice these things because you are used to them, perhaps you think it doesn't matter if you carelessly throw rubbish away?

If so, you should have more consideration for yourself, for other people and for the country you live in.

DIRT SPREADS DISEASES.

Unlike human beings, rats and flies love dirt and rubbish. The more there is, the more they flourish and multiply.

Rats and flies spread disease and decay and are not pleasant to live with.

You can help control them and even stamp them out if you take the trouble to dispose of your rubbish properly.

A cut from a broken bottle can cripple someone for life or cost them a leg; a cut from a rusty tin can lead to blood poisoning which can cost someone his, or her, life.

Would you like to think that you were responsible?

It's quite obvious, too, that not content with throwing bottles thoughtlessly away, some people take a delight in smashing them as well.

What kind of brainless lout derives pleasure from this kind of thing?

LEAVE THIS PLACE AS YOU WOULD WISH TO FIND IT.

It's not me,it's somebody else! That's the usual cry when a bad situation is revealed.

The amount of rubbish thrown around shows that it is you, and everyone else as well.

Why don't you do something about it?

When you enjoy the natural beauty of Tonga and its beaches think of other people—neither you nor visitors like to see rubbish scattered around. It's not necessary, nor is it civilised. You can learn good habits, as well as bad ones, and you can set a good example to your neighbours, and even more important, your children.

They are the future citizens who will carry on the image of Tonga—do you want it to be a dirty, untidy one or clean and beautiful?

There are more and more people living in Tonga each year, and it becomes more and more important to consider other people, to prevent pollution and disease and to preserve and be proud of your country.

People are judged by their habits—the habit of cleanliness, both personal and in your surroundings, is one to be sought after, taught and appreciated.

WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT.

The first and most important thing is to think about it—keep it in your mind until it becomes part of you—a good habit which you follow automatically.

The following rules might help:

1. Set a good example. Dispose of your rubbish and litter tidily, and teach your children to do the same.
2. Keep a special place a box or a bin for all your litter The Health Department will see to it that it is collected whenever possible and disposed or properly. Where it is not possible to have it collected burn the rubbish every few days, and dig a deep hole to bury the tins and bottles.
3. When you are outside, don't throw rubbish away—take the trouble to put it in a rubbish bin, or on a pile for collection.
4. When you have a feast, or go on a picnic collect the litter, the tins, bottles, boxes, bits of fruit and the leaves and dispose of them in a proper place—a rubbish bin. If you don't do this at least dig a deep hole and bury your rubbish.
5. If you have a piece of land round your house, your fale or your shop keep it clean and tidy. You will live more healthily and pleasantly, and so will others. The only ones to suffer will be the rats, the flies and the cockroaches which thrive on dirt and rubbish.

Things cannot be miraculously changed overnight—change for the better is brought about by each one of us doing his small share to help. Change for the worse is brought about by doing nothing, by letting things slide, by hoping that somebody else will solve the problem.

BE PROUD OF YOURSELVES AND YOUR COUNTRY—KEEP IT CLEAN AND TIDY—YOU AND YOUR CHILDREN HAVE TO LIVE IN IT.—A contribution from the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa.

DID YOU DO THIS?

A typical section of the beach along the waterfront at Nuku-'alofa—all too typical, in fact and no place for bare feet. The Chronicle photographer didn't leave this mess after he had taken the picture. He put it in an old basket that was also making the beach look untidy and took it away to the side of the road to be collected by the Health Department.

Tongan Workers In New Zealand

Sione Losipeli 'Ofa-ki-Neiafu fills a 12½ gallon drum with oil in the blending plant at the BP installation, Waiwhetu.

Paula Peau colour codes pipelines leading to the blenders in the plant.

Paula Peau and Mr Sione Losipeli 'Ofa-ki-Neiafu are two of a group of 81 Tongans who arrived in New Zealand in February to work with various companies for five and a half months.

Both men are working at the British Petroleum installation at Waiwhetu, about 10 miles from Wellington. The others in the group are working for a motor company, a cigarette manufacturer, a meat company and the Department of Railways. Paula (33) is married with three sons and a daughter. Sione (27) is single.

Both were educated at Tupou College, Paula for eight years and Sione for six. They worked as carpenters for the Tonga Construction Company before coming to New Zealand, and they share an interest in football. At the Waiwhetu installation, oil is blended for BP in New Zealand, and it is this work in which the two are involved. The preparation of drums and the filling of various sized containers with lube oil takes up most of their time.

The installation also operates a sulphonation plant where detergents are manufactured for distribution throughout New Zealand. The BP laboratory is also on the installation site.

The installation distributes locally as far as Levin in the Manawatu district, and also the north-east of the Wellington province. It supplies bulk products further afield to Palmerston North in the Manawatu and Masterton in the Wairarapa by rail, and packed products to all other BP locations in New Zealand.

Tank ships come to the Point Howard wharf in Wellington Harbour and product flows along one and a half miles of pipeline to the installation.

There are 26 storage tanks at the installation with a total storage capacity of about 10 million gallons. The largest holds more than 2.5 million gallons.

Paula and Sione also do maintenance work in the tank compound which includes painting pipelines, valves and tanks. They work with more than 60 other staff on the 10-acre installation site.

Both men are living at the Railway Hostel at Gracefield, near the installation. In the evenings they watch television, and on Saturday they play table tennis and snooker as well. They attend three Methodist services each Sunday at the local church.

Before he came to New Zealand, Paula lost the tips from the middle and ring fingers of his left hand in a buzzer machine he was using.

"I was so happy about coming to New Zealand I was careless," he said.

A medical officer examined Paula's fingers when he arrived at the installation, and sent him off to the Hutt Hospital to have them attended to.

The installation Superintendent, Mr R. J. Crawford, is most impressed with Paula's and Sione's work.

"They're doing very well," he said. "They're always on time in the mornings, and they work well by themselves without supervision."

Both are saving their wages in order to take money back to Tonga when they return at the end of July.

British Petroleum's manufacturing supervisor, Mr Roy McKendrey, discusses an oil-blending procedure in the New Zealand plant with Paula Peau and Sione Losipeli 'Ofa-ki-Neiafu.

First Tongan Catholic Bishop Welcomed

His Majesty is greeted by Bishop John Rodgers, Bishop of Tonga and Bishop Patelisio Finau, Coadjutor Bishop of Tonga at the welcome feast given to Bishop Finau by the Catholic people of Tongatapu on Saturday afternoon at St. John's College, Ma'ufanga.

NEWS IN PICTURES

On Thursday afternoon, His Majesty granted Bishop Finau, the first Catholic Bishop of Tonga, an audience at the Palace.

A cake in the form of a church was a present to Bishop Finau from his sister living in Auckland, Mrs Kolosita Martin. In the picture also are the Bishop's brother, Kosema Finau, his wife Isapela (right) and Siu Tuita.

Catholic groups throughout Tongatapu presented dances in honour of Bishop Finau before His Majesty and the Royal Family. The picture shows the Ma'ufanga group.

MORRIS HEDSTROM'S
NEW NUKU'ALOFA DEPARTMENT STORE AND SUPERMARKET

THE NEW...

THE OLD...

With the opening of their new departmental store and supermarket this morning Morris Hedstrom Limited bring to a close a long chapter of trading history in the Kingdom and begin voyaging anew on perhaps unchartered trading seas with the introduction on a large scale of self service and self selection. However, in a developing country one must go forward and in expressing the company's confidence in the economic future of the Kingdom a new building has replaced a once familiar landmark and represents an investment of some $200,000.

The first expansion took place more than half a century ago when the premises illustrated above were erected on the present site. There were very few if any concrete buildings in those days, no contractors, and no electric power. Indeed the building situation was such that the old premises were shipped from Levuka. They served us and, we feel, our customers well, but we do not mourn their passing.

There is marked difference in the next stage which is clearly illustrated in the photograph of the new premises. Designed by the company's architects, Derrick Dignan and Associates, and built by the Tonga Construction Company, the new store and supermarket has a sales area of 8000 square feet and includes for the first time an up-to-date snack bar. A further 5000 square feet provides for the storage of bulk stocks together with three walk-in freeze rooms and an air-conditioned meat preparation area.

A large proportion of the shopfittings were supplied from New Zealand by R.M. Shopfitters Limited. The specialist departments, however, such as the new snack bar and luxurious liquor department, were designed locally and constructed by our own maintenance employees.

For those who like a little music with their shopping we have provided that too, so pay us a visit soon, even if you don't like music. We are proud of our new store and we feel that you will share our pride.

Congratulations And Best Wishes To Morris Hedstrom Limited On The Opening Of Their New Department Store And Supermarket

More space : New ideas : Better facilities

Pictured are Fosie 'Onesi and Viliami Hala'api'api busily price marking the merchandise in the supermarket before stacking it on the new all-metal hygenic shelves. The equipment being used is manufactured by the National Cash Register Company and consists of a series of porous rubber stamps which absorbs the special ink enabling many packages to be price marked without re-inking and at the same time giving a clear imprint to avoid errors.

Illustrated on this page are just some of the new and exciting departments all ready and waiting to offer you better variety plus quicker service. Also an indication of behind the scenes activity in preparation for the opening day.

Another piece of equipment new to Tonga is the supermarket trolley or trundler. The unit illustrated is manufactured in New Zealand by Messrs Faulkner Collins and is designed for the shopper with a large family and possibly visits town only once a week. It is also useful for our the wholesale buyer who requirements are less than carton lots. Provision is made for carrying very small children so that the mother has both hands free to do her shopping and the child is quite safe.

Staff training has not been overlooked and in the picture Mrs S. Tuita conducts a training session with Miss Christina 'Ahokovi one of the checkedout operators. The machines being used are also made by the National Cash Register Co. and enable customer's purchases to be added up automatically whether they are for credit or cash. This makes for quicker service and greater accuracy, thus avoiding mistakes.

Two new departments well worth a visit are the greatly improved and attractive liquor section (left) where you will find a great variety from which to make your selection whatever your taste may be and the snack bar (above). This is an entirely new department and is equipped with the latest machinery to serve you with that cup of tea or an ice cold drink. Combined with piped music which is relayed throughout the store, this is the place to meet your friends. Both these departments were designed locally and built entirely by the store maintenance crew.

PERSONALITY PARADE

In keeping with the company's long established policy of promotion from within and thereby offering security of employment, the long serving staff members, particularly those on the merchandise side who have been under some pressure in recent weeks, can now look forward to working in much more pleasant surroundings.

All the employees whose photographs appear on this page have spent many years in the company's service and have worked their way up from small beginnings and in circumstances that at times left much to be desired in the way of space and facilities. Much credit is therefore due to them for sticking things out when perhaps others would have faltered and the little publicity accorded them in this issue is some measure of reward for their loyalty in years past.

We feel you sure that you the general public will join us in offering our congratulations and wish them every success in the years ahead.

With the opening of our new premises which introduces new methods and much higher standards, greater demands will be made on all concerned and adaptability will be the keynote; nevertheless we are confident that as in the past they will all be equal to the task.

The Police

Dear Sir.—May I refer to two recent comments by your Scribes Converning the Police. which. in the interest of good public relations, should not be permitted to go unchallenged.

Chronicle Volume VIII No. 43, March 30, 1972, states that a person alleging to be a policeman obtained a free passage on a bus by way of permitting the driver to break a traffic regulation. The driver of the bus concerned has been identified, and he states that the person concerned said he was a policeman, but that the driver did not in fact know whether he was a policeman or not. I am satisfied from subsequent inquiries instituted that the passenger was not a member of the Force.

Members of the public should please note that every member of thee Police Force is issued with an identification warrant signed by the Minister of Police. If in doubt, request the person concerned to identify himself by showing this warrant.

Secondly, Chronicle Volume VIII No. 44, April 6, 1972, again by The Scribes. Why did the Chronicle find it incredible that a member of the public should assist the police? I am full of praise for the complainant who had the integrity and determination to stop a breach of the peace, by assisting the police with transport. More people with this sense of civic responsibility would materially assist in the fight against crime. A nation taking the stance that it is incredible for a member of the public to assist police is in for serious trouble.

Finally, I know who The Scribes are; but would you be so kind as to let your readers also know?

P. A. PILIU,

Acting Chief Supt. of Police.

REPLY: There is no secret about who The Scribes are; they are all the members of the Staff of the Chronicle.

The Scribes did not say they found it incredible that a member of the public should assist the Police, what they did find incredible was that out of the fleet of Police vehicles there was not one available at the Police Station to convey members of the force when their assistance was required. — Editor.

Taken Ill

Dear Sir. —Recently our Works Supervisor, Mr Gordon Dare, was taken ill suddenly while working on the Port of Refuge Hotel at Vava'u.

He was examined by the local doctor and again by the doctor on the "West Star" and it was their thoughts that he should be transfered to Nuku'alofa at the earliest possible moment for further diagnosis. At the Nuku'alofa Hospital he was examined again by a doctor who suggested his immediate return to Australia for medical check-ups and diagnosis.

Mr Dare is now back in Australia and has been examined by a leading specialist. The specialist has confirmed the report submitted by the doctor in Nuku'alofa and has been very warm in his praises of the efficiency and accuracy of this doctor's report.

I would like to take this opportunity of expressing publicly my warrant thanks to all those people who gave assistance and comfort to Mr and Mrs Dare during their trying ordeal.

As you are aware, my family association with Tonga has been long standing, and it has always been the friendliness and kindness of the Tongan people that I have felt have been their characteristic. I hope that in the years to come with the development of tourism and further activities in Tonga that this feature of the Tongan people will always prevail.

DON G. SUNDIN.

Nurses Today

Dear Sir,

I am referring to a letter by Manu Teali'i on February 3, in which he said that nurses today are more co-operative and the standard is more adequate than in the past.

As I see it, through nursing, one can be of great service to the people; but there are problems which arise for the following reasons :

1. Insufficient wages
2. Unsatisfactory attitudes of nursing sisters towards junior staff.
3. Not giving proper training to the student nurses
4. Some nurses are not working as hard as others, consequently the standards of nurses today are declining

I understand that the hard work is being carried out by the locally-trained nurses, while senior nurses have hardly anything to do.

As for co-operation and mutual understanding among the nurses, I don't think it exists. There is a marked distinction in the level of classes.

If senior staff can lead in the right direction then the junior staff would be only too willing to co-operate.

FIRST CERTIFICATE PRESENTED TO CO-OP SOCIETY

The first co-operative society certificate was presented by the Minister of Finance. Hon. M. U. Tupouniua to the president of the Uasila'ā Co-operative Thrift and Credit Society in a brief ceremony at Niutōua last Friday.

Welcoming the guests, the society president, Viliami Kaufononga thanked the Co-operative Adviser, Mr Frank Herbert and his staff for their help in advising on ways to form the society.

Before presenting the certificate, the Minister expressed the Government's graditude on the move made by the society and hoped others would follow.

He emphasised that the only way towards a prosperous life was to work together in unity and co-operation. The co-operative aim was not only to benefit the individual members but also help all by striving for the prosperity of the country.

'Regional co-operation is the only way to national prosperity," he said.

The minister concluded by congratulating the Uasila'ā Co-operative Thrift and Credit Society and wishing its members every good fortune in its operations.

The Registrar of Co-operatives who is the Director of Agriculture, Mr John Pitman, said when he first arrived in Tonga five years ago he discovered lists of so-called co-operative societies, but eventually discovered that the majority of these societies were in fact Town Committees or producers associations.

Mr Pitman said in many cases they had never functioned or that most of the listed members were either dead or had move away.

These societies numbered about 150, of which perhaps six could be regarded as functioning along co-operative lines. The others did not have the necessary rules and regulations or the proper book-keeping.

A successful co-operative society, no matter what its specific purpose, must follow certain rules, he said. It must operate honestly, with elected officers being faithful and members having trust in their officers.

The Uasila'ā Co-operative Thrift and Credit Society was founded in July last year by 21 men at Niutōua village.

They have a capital amount of T$90 in bank with $30 kept by the society for loan purpose to its members.

Every member had already planted a yam patch, 500 bananas and maintained two weaning pigs with piglets for commercial purposes to finance the society.

The society members are: President, Viliami Kaufononga; Vice President, Pokileti Pōhahau; Treasurer, Sunia Vaivao 'Ea'aetala; secretary, 'Asaeli Niu'ila; assistant secretary, Sione Linauna; Members are Sione S. Vehikite, Fonuakihe'eiki Fisi'iho'i, Paula Sili, Sioeli Pupu, Taniela Fekaukovi, Tevita Fālepapalangi, Viliami Vehikite, Tevita M. Kata, Sione M. Vaimo'unga, Loti Kelepi, Lisiate Pōhahau, Tupou Niu'ila, Tevita T. Malamala, Viliami Liku Mahe, Sekona Kengikē II and Paula Kaufononga.

Produce Manager on Course at Training Centre in England

The manager of the Tonga Produce Board, Mr Adolph Johansson, is attending the fourth course on co-operative marketing at the International Co-operative Training Centre, the Co-operative College, Loughborough, Leicestershire, England, from April 12 until July 5.

Matei Taumoepeau will be acting manager in his absence.

The International Co-operative Training Centre is an integral part of the Co-operative College, Stafford Hall, Loughborough. With the support of the British Overseas Development Administration it has instituted a series of specialist courses in particular areas of co-operative activity in developing countries.

The co-operative marketing course which Mr Johansson is attending, is designed to impart knowledge of techniques, methods and practices involved in co-operative marketing, which plays a vital role in the economic development of the developing countries.

The working of marketing organisations, both in the public and the co-operative sectors in the developed and developing countries, will be examined in order to draw relevant lesson. Methods of study will include lectures by the centre's staff and by visiting experts, group study projects, visits and evaluation seminars. There will be ample opportunity for the mutual exchange of knowledge and experience of co-operative marketing among the participants.

Already attending the Co-operative College at Loughborough is Siola'ā Tu'itupou, an officer of the Agricultural Department attached to Co-operative Development. Siola'ā is taking the co-operation overseas' sessional course which leads to a certificate in co-operation, which the college has been awarding for some years, and which is held by many of the leading co-operative figures throughout the developing world. Siola'ā has been at the College since last October.

Farmer Tour Groups Coming To Tonga

Tour groups of American farmers are expected to add Tonga to their itineraries following the visit to the Kingdom last week of Mr Ken Goy, executive vice-president of Farmer-to-Farmer Tours of the United States.

Mr Goy's company has been organising tours to Australia and New Zealand for farmers since 1958.

"We have been looking for somewhere else to go before or after touring these two countries," Mr Goy said, "and now we have found Tonga."

"I am most impressed", he said.

Three or four tours a year are arranged by Farmer-to-Farmer Tours and the first party will probably come to Tonga this time next year.

Mr Goy said about 50 farmers made up the parties and they were particularly interested in meeting farmers in the countries they visit. Besides seeing all the usual tourist attractions of Tonga, the American farmers would go out into the bush and talk to Tongan farmers.

Mr Goy was prompted to come to Tonga after meeting the Tourist Officer, Mr Peter Wallis, at a slide presentation evening in San Francisco, arranged by Pan American Airways.

Police outpaced Ha'ateiho for 40—11 victory in main game

The 84–3 win by Hihifo over Vaini on Saturday brings their total points for four games to 126. The Police which are still undefeated, is the only other team to score over the 100 mark – 111 points.

Ha'ateiho, despite their 40 – 11 loss to the Police still produced a brilliant display of entertaining rugby in the main game on Saturday. The Police forwards, with weight advantage were often pushed back by the Ha'ateiho pack.

With two minutes of play, the Police right winger, Vainikolo brought the first points with a try in the corner. Ilavalu failed with the conversion. Score: 4 – 0 to the Police.

In the 18th minute, the Ha'ateiho fullback, Mōsese Fiefia raised the flag with a 30yd penalty. Score: Police 4, Ha'ateiho 3.

Ha'ateiho pushed the Police back into their own half for much of the the time, but a switch of play brought them under pressure. From a penalty a yard from the Ha'ateiho goal-line, 'Euakaliti with a quick tap crashed for a try. 'Ilavalu missed the conversion – Police 8, Ha'ateiho 3.

Halfway in the first half, the Police centre, Kei 'Iongi ran through the Ha'ateiho backline to score under the post. 'Ilavalu converted. Score: 14 – 3 to the Police.

In the 40th minutes, on half way, Kei, picking up a loose ball, barged his way through the Ha'ateiho defenders. He was caught on the twenty-five by the Ha'ateiho fullback. Siale, following up took the ball and raced the last 25 yards to score under the post. 'Ilavalu converted.

Half time score: Police 20. Ha'ateiho 3.

Two minutes into the second half, the Police left winger, Hala scored a brilliant runaway try to score midway between the upright and the corner. Malakai missed the conversion. Score: Police 24, Ha'ateiho 3.

Two minutes later, with a good movement by the Ha'ateiho backline, the left winger, Laukau, squeesed his way through to score in the corner. Siua Mahe missed the conversion. Score: Police 24, Ha'ateiho 7.

A good pass along the Police backline, in the 16th minute, the second five-eighths, Sami Lātū gathered the ball midway his own twenty-five and half way weaved his way through four Ha'ateiho defenders to score. Malakai converted – Police 30, Ha'ateiho 7.

Halfway in the second half, from a scrum five yards from the Ha'ateiho goal-line the Police scored a push-over try. Malakai missed the conversion – Police 34, Ha'ateiho 7.

Ha'ateiho never gave up trying and in the 30th minute, following a good movement by both backs and forwards, a try resulted by the prop, Semisi. The fullback missed the conversion. Score: Police 34, Ha'ateiho 11.

With two minutes to fulltime, Vainikolo scored his second try for Malakai to convert.

Final score: Police 40 Ha'ateiho 11.

Taipaleti Tonga (19) the Ha'ateiho lock was a challenge for Polutele in the lineouts, winning a fair share of the ball. Flanker 'Atieli and Captain Samiu Tāufa, were both active in loose and tights.

The Ha'ateiho backline looked dangerous with the ball but not up to standard with their tackling, except for the second five-eight, Lipita Fesitā (18) who upsets a lot of Police movements.

Tactical kicking by 'Ilavalu at first-five often proved useful when the Police were under pressure. Apart from his goal-kicking, his positional play and tactical kicking could win himself a place against the Fijians in July. He was on the side that toured Fiji in 1968.

Last year's champion's, Kolofo'ou, had a shock 12 – 18 defeat by the young Fasi side.

Fasi, well led by captain Tevita Leger dominated all phase of play. Semisi Fa'aui and Manavahē outplayed the Kolofo'ou forwards in the right, well supported by hooker Afualo Matoto.

'Uhila Tai, the Fasi five-eights played his best game for his club on Saturday and several times cut through the Kolofo'ou defence.

Kolofo'ou, by not playing as a team had cost them the game. Kimbu, Manulevu and Siō were outstanding but lacked supports.

Halfway into the second half, Fasi was leading by 14 points to 12, and the Kolofo'ou half-back missed an easy penalty which could have put them in the lead.

Ten minutes to full time, on half-way 'Uhila cut through the Kolofo'ou defence, and then fed it inside to Semisi who was in support and then passed on to the flanker, to score. Tevita Leger missed the conversion – Fasi 18, Kolofo'ou 12 at full time.

CHAMPION TO FIGHT TOMORROW

By PAUA MANU'ATU

The national middleweight boxing champion, Pongi Lie of Va'a'u and the promising light-heavyweight, Samisoni Ngata of Vaotu'u will meet in a 10-round non-title bout at Hauhau-'o-Tau-fa'āhau Theatre tomorrow afternoon.

The fight will be the first for Pongi since he outboxed Tevita Piu to win the title in September last.

He lost two fights on points, the first to Australian light-heavyweight champion Greg McNamara and the other to Pago Kid at Pago Pago.

Close Scores In Knockout Soccer

By CHRIS

The final elimination round in the knockout competition for the Friendly Island Biscuit trophy saw some excellent games on Saturday at Tonga College.

In a very close game Langi Leka ran out winner by 2 goals to 1 against Lotoha'apai United.

This match produced good fast play that showed great improvement by both teams.

Tonga College and Ngele'ia B finished with no score and played five minutes extra time both ways, still without result.

To obtain a result the new rule was invoked with each team having 5 penalties. Tonga College goalkeeper gave a super display by saving every shot. Tonga College scored one penalty and move into the semi-final.

Ngele'ia A beat Toafaka'amu by only goal scored in a fast and very even game. Both defences were sound and the goalkeeping was of a very high standard.

Veitongo A, after being a goal down in the first five minutes against Sopu, came back strongly to win by no less than 4 goals to 1. 'This was a robust game and kept the Veitongo supporters on their feet all the time.

USP CENTRE NEWS

By MARGARET BLUNDELL

For some weeks now the University of the South Pacific has been working an experiment in satellite communication with the University of Hawaii and Wellington Polytechnic. Now with the agreement of the Government of Tonga, the USP Centre will be included in this experimental work.

The Carnegie Foundation has given the University an extra grant to cover the costs of this work and at the end of this week Alan Cutting of USP a Physicist, will arrive with basic apparatus. This is interesting because it is a modification of the receivers used by taxi drivers in New York. It is relatively cheap, hence its possible application for educational uses in very scattered areas such as the Pacific.

To begin with, the station in Tonga will have between 3 or 4 hours a week and in a short time we hope to make arrangements for external diploma of education students to talk about their correspondence assignments with people on campus.

There has been a big response from teachers who are interested in learning more about teaching art in schools. Very soon we will call a meeting of these people to discuss arrangements for them with the new term after the May break.

HUB OF THE PACIFIC FOR TWO WEEKS

Fiji's Suva city becomes the hub of the Pacific when it hosts the 20-nation South Pacific Festival of Arts from May 6 to 20.

Representatives of every culture, art and sport throughout the Pacific area will converge on Fiji for the extravaganza, some 3000 participants in all.

Never before have the peoples of the South Pacific (Melanesia, Polynesia, Micronesia and Australian aboriginal) convened for such a large gathering, and all indications are they will be received by a world-wide audience.

The 15-day spectacle will be staged on a grand scale. A total of eight theatres (each giving three sessions daily) will feature performances from a number of countries and extravagant outdoor performances are also scheduled.

The huge outdoor opening and closing ceremonies are to be presented like "evolving moving pictures", each with a cast numbering several thousand. These evening spectacles are bound to be more than impressive.

In the university grounds the various participating countries will build indigenous houses and dance troupes will be a regular feature in the grounds.

Here, too, will be artisans at work creating the wide spectrum of artifacts found around the Pacific.

Present-day Pacific activities aren't being overlooked either. There will be spontaneous lunch hour events daily in the streets of Suva and pop bands will vie with each other during special evenings at the University of the South Pacific.

Fiji will hear its first live symphony orchestra performance when the Symphonia of Auckland, appears in concert and later accompanies the Dorian Singers with a 300-voice choir conducted by Australian musician and composer John Antill.

And sport hasn't been left out of the impressive festival programme either. Virtually every sport played in the Pacific, and there are some unusual ones among them, will be represented at the event.

Dancing, singing, drama, poetry and music. Festivals of books, films and stamps. Cocking and feasting. Displays. Canoe races, varied brands of cricket and bowls.

All the signs are pointing to Fiji for May. That's where the Pacific is heading.

Festival Show On Mala'e Pangai A "Must" For Everyone

All roads in Nuku'alofa on April 27 at 4 p.m. will lead to the Mala'e Pangai where before The Royal Family, about 240 guests, and (it is hoped) all the people of Tongatapu, the 250 men and women who will represent Tonga at the South Pacific Arts Festival in Suva in May, will present a special show before they leave on the "'Olovaha" on May 1

'Everyone in Tonga must come", a spokesman for the organising committee said. "The group will present to Tonga exactly what it will do at the festival. It will, in fact, be a dress rehearsal."

But this will not be the last rehearsal. When the "'Olovaha" arrives in Suva on May 3, the whole show will be rehearsed again on the 3rd, 4th and 5th.

Tonga will first take the stage at the festival on Monday, May 8, when dances are presented in conjuction with Fiji Meke, in the Lower Civic Auditorium. However, this will not be their first appearance because all representatives will give items at the grand opening ceremony on Saturday, May 6. Fiji will welcome all visitors and performers from the South Pacific with items by the Royal Fiji Police and Royal Military Forces Bands and the Festival Choir.

On the morning of Monday, May 8, the village of traditional houses of the South Pacific and an exhibition of handicrafts will be opened at the University of the South Pacific and Tonga is again represented.

The dancers will appear next on Wednesday, May 10, in an afternoon performance in the Main Civic Auditorium. In the evening of the same day a lecture demonstration on Tonga will be given at the Fiji Museum.

An exhibition of indigenous games from countries of the South Pacific will be given in Albert Park on the afternoon of Thursday, May 11.

On Sunday, May 14, a massed ecumenical service with the Royal Fiji Police Band, Festival Choir of 300 voices and with participating countries, will be held at Albert Park.

The dancers will make their last official appearance, along with Maori and Fiji dancers, at the traditional village on the afternoon of Thursday, May 18.

Every country taking part in the festival will join for the grand ceremonial final night in Albert Park on Saturday, May 20.

The date for the return of the Tongan contingent has not been settled but time will be allowed for shopping before the "'Olovaha" returns to bring the party home. The vessel will not be staying in Suva when it delivers the group.

The group does not only include dancers. There will be 43 women demonstrating tapa making and the weaving of fine mats and baskets, at the traditional village at the University. Also 30 schoolgirls will be presenting the indigenous games. They will be supervised during the time they are away by the Senior Tutor of Queen Salote College, Manu Faupula, and Sister 'Atenina of St Mary's College.

Arrranging for such a large group of Tongan to make the trip to Fiji has been possible only because of the co-operation received from all quarters, the spokesman for the committee said.

This "spirit of cooperation" was evident from when rehearsals started about six months ago, the spokesman said, and nowhere was it more evident than in the vital matter of providing food and transport twice a week for the permormers.

The Government gave two boxes of mutton flaps each week, the District Officers of Tongatapu arranged for the other food and transport was provided by the commodity boards.

The Government is meeting all costs of transporting the contingent to Suva and the Fiji Government is providing accommodation and food. The whole party will be staying at Suva Grammar School.

Fiji has further assisted by not insisting on passports and will accept certificates of identity instead. The Minister of Police has also cooperated by waiving the usual 50 seniti fee for the issue of travel documents.

The spokesman said the committee ended its final meeting last week, confident that Tonga's representation at the festival was the best possible and that the members of the party would be worthy ambassadors of the Kingdom.

FOOTNOTE: The Chronicle will be going to the festival to send back reports and pictures, especially of the activities in which Tonga is involved.

Don't Resist

Who could resist this smile? The Tonga Visitors' Bureau hope you won't resist if Mrs Marjorie Litsinger (the wearer of the smile) asks you for information.

Mrs Litsinger is the research officer for the Visitors' Bureau and she is in the Kingdom for for two years as a Peace Corps volunteer. Her husband is also a volunteer entomologist with the Department of Agriculture at Tokomololo. Mrs Litsinger majored in psychology and social work at university and comes from Madison, Wisconsin.

Mrs Litsinger will be conducting research into visitor movement in and out of Tonga. She will survey local attitudes to tourism and the visitors' reactions to the Kingdom — "satisfactions and disatisfactions."

The Tourist Officer, Mr Peter Wallis, said that from the information Mrs Litsinger gathers it will be possible to gain a better overall picture of tourism in Tonga and its potential to the economy. The information should be most useful to tour operators, he said.

We hear that the owners of the three cinemas in Nuku'alofa have agreed to show only one feature film in future, plus shorts, as an alternative to raising the price of admission. Children however, will have to pay more if they want to go to films at night. The new admission for them is 20 seniti, which should reduce the noise at the night sessions. At the matinees, the prices will be 5, 10 and 15 seniti.

At the feast for Bishop Finau on Saturday afternoon there were 1030 guests and 1800 pigs were provided. Not that the official guests ate all the pigs, but this does support the story in the Chronicle two weeks ago about sharp decrease in the number of pigs in Tonga. We confess that we had our share of pig on Saturday.

* * *

A striking feature of the celebrations for Bishop Finau have been their ecumenical nature. At the feast on Saturday speakers included the President of the Free Wesleyan Church of Tonga, the Rev. Dr. S. Havea, the President of the Free Church of Tonga, the Rev. Lēlea Fonua and Bishop Fine Halapua of the Anglican Church. At the ordination service on Tuesday evening, Lessons were read by Dr Havea and Bishop Halapua and a choir of nearly 1000 Free Wesleyan voices took part in the Mass.

Don't miss the boat! You could if you don't take note. The "'Olovaha" is back on its regular schedule after slipping in Suva and will in future be leaving Nuku'alofa at 7 o'clock each Monday and Thursday. The sailing time from Vava'u on Tuesday and Friday is 6 a.m.

RESTRICTION ON FLIGHT LOADS FROM TONGA

A payload restriction has been placed on the use of Fua'amotu airport which means that Air Pacific and Polynesian Airlines are restricted in the number of passengers they are permitted to carry from Tonga to other destinations, the Miniser of Works, the Hon. Langi Kavaliku has announced.

Captain R. Duffied, the general manager of Air Pacific, accompanied by Captain N. Ganley, the operations manager, recently visited Tonga for discussions with the Minister and Government officials to consider whether any steps could be taken to rectify the position.

Captain Duffield and Captain Ganley while they were here had an audience with His Majesty and discussions with the Deputy Prime Minister, the Hon. Mahe Tupouniua.

The Minister said it had been decided that everything possible must be done to speed up work on the new runway so that 4500 feet of it will be completed to a standard which will make it useable by HS 748 aircraft, when the restriction would then be removed.

The target date for the completion of this part of the work is the end of November next, and Government has approved a recommendation by the Minister of Works to this effect.

The restriction has been imposed purely for safety reasons, and as safety in aviation is paramount, the two regional operators are bound to accept the restriction which will mean a loss of 10-15 seats each flight, so long as the second runway is used.

However, to minimise inconvenience to the travelling public, Air Pacific has agreed to put on extra ad hoc flights whenever the additional traffic justifies this, pending the introduction of another weekly frequency, probably in September, when there will be five frequencies a week. Polynesian Airlines now has an additional weekly frequency.

During the last 12 months average loadings to Tonga for Air Pacific were 65% of the capacity of the aircraft with 40 seats and it is therefore hoped that, having regard to the additional frequencies, the loss of seats over the next 7½ months will reduce inconvenience to the travelling public to the minimum, the Minister said.

Use It!

Sixteen rubbish tins like this are being placed along the waterfront and on the Mala'e in Nuku'alofa for YOU to place your used cans, bottles, coconuts and paper. They have been provided by the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa as part of a drive to clean up Tonga. The Health Department will empty the tins regularly and hope to provide more bins later, especially in places where people gather. Turn to Page 3 and read about what happens on Saturday.

Shipping Agency Phases Out

The Tonga Shipping Agency will cease to function with effect from May 8, 1972, and will be replaced by the Pacific Navigation Company Ltd.

The general-manager is Captain C. H. Hill-Willis and the acting secretary and legal adviser Dr. D. R. Dixit.

The company has an authorised capital of T$2 million of which T$1.094 million has been subscribed by acquisition of all the Tongan registered vessels at their current written down values.

The board comprises: Chairman, the Prime Minister, H. R. H. Prince Tu'ipelehake; directors - the Hon. M. U. Tupouniua, (Minister of Finance), Taniela Tufui (Secretary to Government), S. P. Afeaki (Produce Board nominee), A. Tupouniua (Copra Board nominee.)

A 11lb 1oz baby boy was born inside a taxi while speeding to Vaiola Hospital from Sopu about 11 o'clock on Tuesday night. The baby died on arrival. The mother, Mafi Fielea (37) of Kolomotu'a, was reported satisfactory yesterday.

. . . And Then There Were Five

The search for oil in Tonga will go on, but without one of the major partners in the consortium of companies which make up Tonga Oil Participants. The Minister of Lands said in a statement last Friday that Tonga Shell NV had "reluctantly" decided to withdraw from the Petrol Agreement with His Majesty's Government.

Representatives from the five remaining Participants held discussions with the Government last week and they are prepared to continue under the Petrol Agreement of June 4, 1970 on a reduced concession area of 4000 square miles.

As it will take some time for the remaining Participants to assess and determine the methods of continuing, and also find other persons to participate in the venture, the Government has suspended the Participants obligation under the agreement for a year, with effect from June 4 this year. It has also been agreed that the remaining agreement years be postponed accordingly.

This means there will be no activity in the search for oil for a year. It will also give the other partitcipants time to look around for another company to buy Shell's substantial proportion of the shares or else the other Participants will have to buy them up themselves, if they wish to continue.

The reducing of the concession area from 6000 to 4000 square miles makes 2000 square miles in the North of the Kingdom available for the Government to negotiate a new price.

Why is Tonga Shell pulling out?

The general representative for the company, Mr Allan Jackson, said it was simply that on the basis of the results of the research and drilling, Shell did not consider it worthwhile continuing.

"The other Participants were not of that opinion," he said.

Shell was sorry this decision had to be made, Mr Jackson said, "but as has been said many times before, there was never any forgone conclusion in the oil business."

He said the "tremendous" cooperation of the Government,

VAVA'U RIGHT FOR DEVELOPMENT OF LIGHT INDUSTRY

The Vava'u group has appropriate environment and topography for the development of light industries, says the industrial consultant from India, Mr R. C. Paliwal, who has just returned from a visit to the group to evaluate the climate for light industry.

Mr Paliwal said that although the conditions were favourable, Vava'u lacked the communications and public services necessary for bringing a faster pact of develop- for light industries.

In his opinion, the people of Vava'u needed guidance to divert them from their present activities to the industrial field.

He said: "No doubt it is a slow process, but a start has to be made and this is the time when a move in the right direction is essential".

Mr Paliwal in his three days in Vava'u had meetings with heads of departments and public men and visualises the development of the following industries in the group:

Oil expelling and oil refining; paper conversion products based on tissue paper; cardboard from waste paper and grass; tomato products and pineapple processing; mechanisation of the bread industry; soft drinks; carpentry shop; handmade matches; nylon socks; sugar; washing soap; leather shoes and sandals and canvas shoes; dehydration of taro and other vegetables like capsicum, carrots, beans, peas and cabbage; insecticide formulations; compounded fertilisers; vanilla processing; chalk sticks; personal effects from celluose wadding; agricultural tools; plastic novelties; plastic toys; rubber balloons; wire nails; plastic purses, diary cocers, raincoats, handbags and plastic bags; banana powder; printing press; beer plant; copra dehydration unit; coir processing unit; coconut shell flour mill; pop corn; icecream; coir handloom and handicraft products like mats, carpets, ropes and brushes.

This week Mr Paliwal has been visiting 'Eua.

He is in the Kingdom at the request of the Government under Indian Technical, Economic and Cultural Assistance Programme. On the completion of his survey, his findings will be reported to the Government through the Government of India. It will highlight the scope of industries in the Kingdom for development along with an implementation programme for the execution of the recommendations of the report.

Mr Paliwal has also examined the workings of the Copra Board and the Produce Board and it is executed that his report will present a plan for the development of these boards' activities.

"Dear Sir . . ."

Letters to the Editor.

Sunday

Dear Sir, — I would like to present here, my comments regarding Sunday observance, for the good of the people of Tonga.

In April 13 issue of the Chronicle S. Vaka stated "clubs operate for their members but observe Sunday Laws in their own way."

Who is responsible for allowing or giving the authority for these people to have trade on Sunday? And if they are not buying liquor on Sunday, they are in fact having it and paying for it later on week days.

The clubs observe Sunday in drinks of liquor and beer because if anyone walks pass the club, they will easily hear loud discussion and laughing.

Clubs have a membership and the Government has a staff. Those who have given the authority to the members of the club to buy on Sunday should give the civil servants the same rights to buy goods from the Government store. Any member of the staff of any commercial store should also have this right.

Is it impossible for the club members to buy their liquor or beer on Saturday and have it at home on Sunday? This will help stop the unnecessary noise and laughing at the club on Sunday.

Members of the Government and other institutions have important things they need on Sunday, but they have to delay it because it is Sunday.

Why only give the authority to a handful of people to trade on Sunday but not to the majority of the people.

SOLOMONE KAUFUSI.

Driver

Dear Sir, — I wish to contribute my opinion on drivers.

I boarded a truck travelling to Ha'asini last Thursday, and regret taking the ride from the moment the truck moved out of the bus depot to the main road. Not only it was overloaded but the driver was also speeding. As I understand he was drunk and more important he was not the owner of the truck.

It's only a pity that the truck is the only transport available to Ha'asini.

Do the drivers have any consideration for their passengers?

I would suggest the Police keep a closer watch for drivers who are speeding and overloading buses and trucks.

JOHN WIGHT.

DRIVE TO CLEAN UP TONGA STARTS ON SATURDAY

Last week some facts and observations were put before readers to show that keeping Tonga clean and tidy will help everybody to have a happier and healthier life.

Last week some facts and observations were put before readers to show that keeping Tonga clean and tidy will help everybody to have a happier and healthier life.

The article (like this one) was contributed by the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa, but it also had the full support of the Health Department.

Doctors in Tonga have confirmed that there are many sad cases of severe cuts and injuries from broken bottles and tins which would never had happened if people had been more careful about disposing of rubbish.

How many people too have had stomach upsets through eating food contaminated by flies, rats and cockroaches, and how many upsets have been caused by drinking water contaminated by rubbish and dirt.

When we say "what are you going to do about it?" You will quite rightly say "it's all very well for the Rotary Club to preach to us about litter, but what are they going to do about it?"

This is going to be done:—

With the cooperation of the Health Department, distinctive rubbish bins will be placed at key sports in Nuku'alofa. Put litter into these instead of strewing it around. It will be collected regularly, and properly disposed of.

On Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, members of the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa, in conjunction with Health Department are having a drive to clean up the sea-front and shore between Queen Salote and Vuna Wharves, by community action.

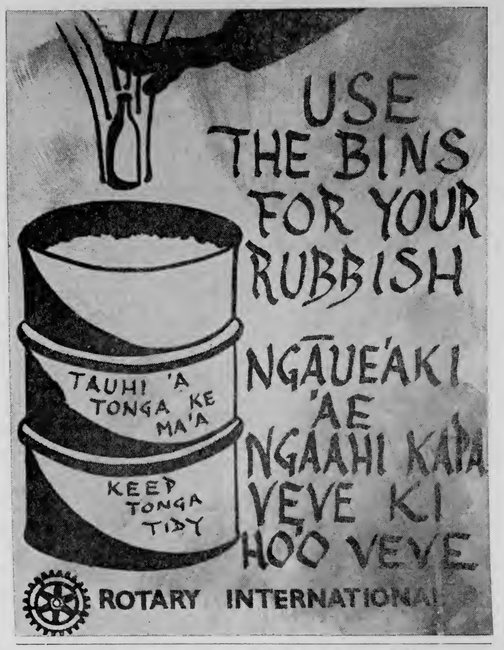
Anyone who wants to come along and help is welcome. Show that you are interested! Set a good example.

Let's have it cleaner than it's ever been before even more important, let's keep it that way, and spread the good work to other streets, the villages, to gardens and to houses, by our own example.

Keep on reminding your children and yourselves of the importance of being tidy and disposing of rubbish properly.

Don't forget:

A PLACE FOR EVERYTHING AND EVERYTHING IN ITS PLACE—APPLES TO LITTER AND RUBBISH, AS WELL.



Beautify The Kingdom Is Sione's Aim

Tonga will earn more overseas funds in tourism if the people help to beautify the kingdom, says the officer-in-charge of the Fā'onelua Tropical Garden, Sione Lui.

"Beautiful flower gardens and tidiness attract tourists, he said. "Tonga had a great potential in scenic attractions of true Polynesian nature coupled with lovely beaches.

"Tourists love to visit Tonga because of this, but if town committees insisted that the people have more flower gardens in their homes and tidy up their grounds, I believe more tourists would come, and stay here longer."

Lui recently returned to Tonga after having a year in-service training with the Hamilton City Council parks and reserves department in New Zealand.

During his training, Lui studied the development, planning, landscaping and administration of parks and gardens.

He said the new ideas and ways of maintaining parks and gardens he learnt he planned to introduce to Tonga.

Beaches in the kingdom left something to be desired in landscaping and tidying up, he said.

Lui's visit to New Zealand was arranged by a member of the Hamilton East Rotary Club, Mr F. G. Foster, who returned to New Zealand early last year after a year teaching English at the Tupou High School.

Lui's fares were met by the Rotary Clubs of Hamilton East and Nuku'alofa.

Mr Henry Back In Cook's Poll

The Cook Islands Premier, Mr Albert Henry, and his Cook Islands Party have been re-elected to power in a general election.

A vigorous and at times bitter campaign by the Democratic Party led by Dr Tom Davis gained only one extra seat from the ruling party.

Dr Davis scraped in at Rarotonga in the Teauotonga electorate by 35 votes.

The Cook Islands Party now has 15 seats and the Opposition Democrats seven in the Legislative Assembly.

The Cook Islands Party, which has ruled for the past seven years, has been returned for another four years.

FIJI VOTING IN GENERAL ELECTION

Fiji is going to the polls in the first general election for the House of Representatives since independence in October 1970. Polling is being carried out between last Saturday and April 29 and the results are expected on or about May 1.

A bigger House will be constituted when the members are named. There are more than 100 candidates for the 52 seats – 16 more than in the last House.

The enlarged House will consist of 12 Indian, 12 Fijian and three General representatives from Communal contituencies and 10 Indian, 10 Fijian and five General representatives returned from National-roll constituences.

Observers expect Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara's Alliance Government to be returned to power, but with a smaller majority.

SPC Planners Chaired By Tonga Rep.

The planning committee of the South Pacific Commission, a body of representatives from the territories and countries which are directly associated with the work of the commission, met in Noumea last week.

The representative from Tonga, Mr John Kite, was elected chairman, and the Honourable Buraro Detudamo, representative and Senior Commissioner of Nauru, Vice-Chairman.

A drafting sub-committee was also elected.

The meeting brought together chief planners from 14 territories and countries in the Commission's region and was responsible for recommending a three-year plan to the 12th South Pacific Conference and 35th session to be held in Western Samoa next September/October. The meeting recommended a work programme for the commission which should, as far as possible, enable it to cater for some of the needs of the area.

Representatives from international and regional organizations at work in the commission's area attended the meeting as observers. It is hoped that collaboration with these organizations will avoid overlapping of work programmes.

The Secretary-General of the Commission, the Honourable G. F. D. Betham, in welcoming the representatives to the meeting, emphasised that countries of the region should not hesitate to express their needs but, at the same time, be aware of budgetary limitations.

The role of the planning committee is influential and there could be no doubt that the programme established by this body would give the commission a sense of direction that more closely follows the present trends in the region, he said.

THE REAL PROBLEM IN RUGBY

How often you heard the cry. "Put your whistle away, ref, lets have some football?" And how often have you felt like making the same comment?But have you stopped to consider that the 30 players taking part in the game decide how it will be played and that the referee's job is to see that neither team gains and unfair advantage? So says an article in Rugby News.

Such phrases as "good sportmanship", "fair play and the spirit of the game" often seem to be outmoded or forgotten today. More than ever it is "in" to beat the ref. and gain an unfair advantage.

Infringement of this nature usually involve illegal tactics which are the cause of most penalty kicks and so much of the whistle that you hear. If coaches and captains insisted on their teams playing within the law, then we could get on with the game and it would be more enjoyable for players, spectators and the referee! After all as well as striving for championship points, the players are surely there, first and foremost, to enjoy their football. It must be difficult for spectators to follow some of the referee's decisions in close play at scrums, rucks and lineouts. So let's consider some of the tactics (often illegal) that cause so much whistle at these particular phases.

Scrums and lineouts are only means of re-starting play, but as possession is vital from them tactics, legal or otherwise, are often the order of the day.

Let's look at a half-back putting the ball into the set scrum. First of all, he has to stand one yard from the scrum opposite the middle of the tunnel and having held the ball with both hands mid-way between knees and ankle put it into the scrum quickly and straight to land immediately beyond the loose head prop.

But does he want to do this? Not on your life! It goes in from above his knees (so the opposing hooker can't see it), or not straight, or nowhere far enough, so that it's mighty difficult for any foot in the other front row to get near the ball. Good tactics? No – cheating would be a better word and any ref. worth his salt will award a penalty kick and tell the players concerned why.

The other player who has a lot of fun in the scrum is the hooker. He is there to take the ball and rake it he will, even if his feet are half out of the tunnel before the ball is put in.

The scrummage law requires a clear tunnel so that the ball can be put in fairly and hookers must have their feet back and in what is termed a "normal stance" which means they must be on the ground and not be twisted round, or crossed. If the hooker is sitting on his backside you can bet your last dollar he's not binding and usually, it is the arm furthest away from the ref. that has been dropped.

Invariably after these contortions he hooks the ball, so more whistle, more penalties and all so unnecessary. Even an average hooker has a ten-to-one chance of possession from his own loose head.

And if the referee doesn't control and take action at this stage? Well, both sides think he's a mug, who doesn't know his drill and this can lead to other difficulties.

The 10yd rule at lineout and restrictions on No. 8's have presented great opportunities for the ball to be spun, but do they want to get things moving from lineouts? Not in your life! The winger throws the ball in not straight, or it doesn't in five yards. If the ball does go in fairly, someone decides to block, barge, jersey pull or perhaps tackle an opponent without the ball. If a maul forms, you can almost quarantee there will be someone off-side, because he has come in on his opponents side of the maul. Then, perhaps, the backs decide to take a hand and they are up well over the 10yds line before the lineout has ended. Unfortunately there isn't much chance to apply "advantage" at lineouts because the play is hard and close and a fair measure of control is required.

There are plenty of opportunities, too, in general play for illegal tactics in an effort to gain an advantage. Offside, early tackling, late tackling, obstruction, not releasing the ball when brought down in the tackle, not retiring 10yds at a penalty kick – all these can lead to another blast on the whistle and that good old cry "Throw your whistle away and let's get on with game, ref."

This is where coaches and captains come in. If they would all encourage their teams to play within the law, then we would probably have 50 percent less whistle, at least half as many penalties and a lot more football.

Young Athletes Show Their Form

Tupou College made a clean sweep of the boys' shields by winning the five grades at the 27th Tongatapu inter-collegiate athletic championship held at Teufaiva on Friday and Saturday.

Queen Salote College in the girls' track and field championship took three shields by winning midget, senior and open grades. The intermediate and junior shields went to Liahona and Tonga High School.

The metric system was used for the first time. All the best track times and length and height in field events were recorded in the new measurement.

There was plenty of keen competition, but the finest moments were provided by the two young distance runners in the senior grade. S. Tupou of Tupou College and T. Vaikona of Tonga College proved themselves. Games prospects.

Both runners in 1500 metres bettered P. Haukinima's winning time in the open grade. Haukinima represented Tonga at the South Pacific Games last year.

Tupou in winning the 1500 metres with Vaikona trailings yard behind him, set a grand time of 4mins 29.7secs and bettered Haukinima's time by 5.9 seconds.

In the 3000 metres, Vaikona came first in 9mins 55.5 seconds and also bettered Haukinima's time by three seconds. Vaikona also won the 800 metres.

Apart from Sanitesi Latū's (Tupou College) performance in winning discus, pole vault, high jump, 110 metres hurdles and anchor-leg of his team 4 x 100 metre relay in the open grade, T. Kolo of Tonga High School in the intermediate grade was the other outstanding performer in the boys' division.

Kolo won the 100, 200 and 400 metres. He also came second in 4 x 100 metre relay and third in long jump.

'E. Tu'ineau of St. Andrew's School in the intermediate grade was the outstanding performer in the girls' division. She won the 100. 200, 80 metres hurdles and came second in the 400 metres.

Her times in the 100, 200 and 80 metres hurdles bettered Kalasi Iongi's (Queen Salote College) winning times in these three events in the senior grade.

His Majesty and H.R.H. Princess Pilolevu attended the sports meeting on Saturday afternoon and His Majesty presented the shields.

This year's arrangements for the two-day event were carried out by the staff of Liahona High Schoool.

Ngata, Lie Fight A Thriller

By PAUA MANU'ATU

Tonga middleweight boxing champion, Pongi Lie was outpointed by the promising Vaotu'u light-heavyweight Samisoni Ngata in their 10-round non-title bout at Hauhau-'o Taufa'ahau Theatre last Friday.

The fight itself was a thriller with science, aggresiveness, magnificent counter-punching and sound defence. The crowd, a capacity one, was well pleased.

Lie was a great little fighter. He bustled Ngata with fast combination punches and carried the fight to his opponent in the first two round. Yet Ngata left lead was always invariably found its target, while his lightning fast right stopped the champion from gaining the initiative.

Ngata was the cool master throughout, landing more clean blows to the head and body when he carried the fight most of the bout.

His left and right blows carried greater sting in his impressive attacks. Ngata cut the champion's left eye brow early in the seventh round and decisively beat Lie also in eight and nine with fast combination.

The champion tried desperately in final round, but the "big punch" was beyond him.

This was Ngata's 10th win in 12 fights. It was Lie's third defeat in 22 bouts.

Before the referee declared the winner at the end of the final round, the champion possibly suspected it and told the crowd he found it so hard to cope with the bout.

"I tried my best to reach the final round," he added.

Referee Tevita Tapueluelu of Neiafu was the sole judge of the fight who scored 25½-22 points in favour of Ngata.

Undefeated To Meet

By HOPOATE MOENGANGONGO

The two undefeated rugby teams so far this season will meet at the main game of the fifth round at Teufaiva on Saturday.

They are the Police and Tavatu'utolu. Last year the Police were lucky to edge Tavatu'utolu by 3-0.

As there was no play last week, Tavatu'utolu had been working extra hard, and the coach Tafokitau Tapealava is confident his team will win.

Lasike's goal-kicking will be vital for Tavatu'utolu.

Polutele for the Police will be challenged in the lineouts by the Tavatu'utolu lock, Fakava.

If the Police backline continues their present forum, they should not have any difficulty in overrunning the much lighter Tavatu'utolu backline.

GARDENS GIVE WAY TO RUGBY UNION ON "MISS TONGA"

The Fā'onelua Garden Committee has given way to the Tonga Rugby Union on this year's "Miss Tonga" contest and following is a statement by the chairman of the Garden Committee, Mr H. V. Barnard :

"The Fā'onelua Garden Committee deeply regret that unforeseen circumstances have now made it impossible for them to run the "Miss Tonga 1972" contest.

"In 1971, it was the committee's declared intention to hold the first ever Miss Tonga contest, but it stepped down to let the Tonga Amateur Sports Association have this privilege. It was announced after the 1971 contest that the 1972 Miss Tonga contest would definitely be run for the benefit of Fā'onelua. Rules governing the contest were published in January, 1972 and already a lot of arrangements have been made including passages to Hawaii for the winner and her chaperon.

"In the latter part of March, quite by chance, it was learned that the Tonga Rugby Union was planning a "Miss Tonga Rugby" contest on similar lines to the Miss Tonga contest, with an overseas trip for the winner. The contest was planned for June, 1972, two months ahead of Fā'onelua's proposed contest, and firms and organisations were to be asked to sponsor contestants.

"An urgent meeting of the Garden Committee was convened at which the President of the Tonga Rugby Union, Mr. Lupeti Finau, was present, to see whether any compromise solution to the problem could be reached. Mr. Finau started that his committee was determined to run the proposed "Miss Tonga Rugby" contest and they would not listen to any compromise proposal. Moreover, it was the Union's intention to run contests also in 1973 and 1974.

"The Garden Committee felt that whilst it could still run its planned contest, such action would prejudice both the Garden's and the Union's chances of obtaining public support, hence it decided to withdraw and leave the Union to run its contest.

Commenting on this statement, Mr. Finau said the Union did plan to hold a "Miss Tonga" contest this year. No exact date had been set but it was likely to be in June.

He said there has been offers of free accommodation in Sydney and Canberra and the Union was awaiting offers of air passages from overseas airlines.

The had to raise funds to pay for one-way fares for the Fiji Rugby team coming to Tonga in July, and other expenses connected with the visit.

The union also needed money for the fare to Nadi of the Tongan team which is to tour Australia next year.

Shell Quits Oil Participants

particularly the Minister of Lands, had made it easier for Shell to withdraw.

Mr Jackson commented that the Tonga Oil Participants, represented by Shell, had spent about T$2 million on the exploration project in two years and a "fair proportion" had been spent directly or indirectly in the Kingdom.

Contrary to a popular misconception, oil exploration has not cost the Government anything.

Tonga Shell NV will be closing their office in Tungi Arcade sometime in June. This will be after an audit of accounts has been carried out to satisfy the Government that the money claimed to to be spent has actually been spent. Under the agreement, the Participants are obliged to spend a stipulated amount for the first two years.

"Shell exceeded the amount", Mr. Jackson said.

CHRONICLE DIARY

'Ofila Hingano, the 14-year old boy from Ha'apai who is being given a chance to walk for the first time in his life through surgery at the Royal Far West Children's Hispital in Sydney, left in the 'Tauloto' on Monday for Australia. Arrangements have been made by the Rotary Club of Nuku'alofa.

* * *

We are told the Tourist Visitors' Bureau will be open on Saturday for the liner 'Arcadia' and on future Saturdays when cruise ships are in.

* * *

Travellers overseas who need to have an X-ray will have to postpone their trip for a fortnight because the Ministry of Health has run out of X-ray film. New supplies are expected in two weeks.

Don't forget the "Open Day" at the Government Experimental Farm next Tuesday, Anzac Day, a public holiday, it should be one of the events of the year. Previously planned for Easter Monday, it had to be postponed because of wet conditions.

* * *

Another big event next week is the special performance on Thursday at 4 p.m. on Mala'e Pangai, before the Royal Family, by the group to represent Tonga at the South Pacific Arts Festival in Suva.

Morris Hedstrom's shiny, bright, clean new store has a dirt problem — or to be more specific, dust! Every day, the traffic, particularly the buses, on the reconditioned Railway Road, sends up clouds of grey dust which spreads its gritty self over everything. The dust nuisance is unpleasant for everyone in the area and we wonder if it would be possible for the Ministry of Works to spray water or old engine oil over it until it is sealed.

* * *

By this time next week, the University of the South Pacific Centre in Nuku'alofa expects to be able to talk to colleagues in Hawaii, Suva and Wellington on their new satellite communication radio. Ironically, it is still not possible for the Centre to talk to anyone in Nuku'alofa by telephone, because there are no lines available.

Film Admission The Latest Price Increase

Admission prices in Nuku'alofa's three cinemas increased this week by an average of five seniti and all children will have to pay full price at evening sessions.

This was one of the decisions made by the newly-formed Tonga Motion Picture Exhibitors Association. Their inaugural meeting decided to form an association to solve problems common to themselves and to improve ways and means of presenting the best in entertainment and educational films to the public.

The new admission prices for night sessions at the three cinemas in Nuku'alofa are :

35 seniti upstairs, 30 seniti back stalls, 20 seniti front stalls and 5 seniti fee for reservations.

Matinee prices : 5 seniti for children under five-years old, 10 seniti for primary school children in uniform, 15 seniti for college and high school pupils in uniform, 20 seniti for adults downstairs and 30 seniti for adults upstairs.

There will be no refund on tickets sold.

A fixed price of T$30 for benefit screenings or "picture night" hire was set.

The association also resolved that all cinemas in Nuku'alofa should show one full feature, plus shorts and cease the practice of showing double features.

The Tali'eva Theatre, owned by Mr Hale Vete was given exemption to show double features until the existing contract with the distributor expired.

Association officers elected were : Chairman, Hale Vete; treasurer, Ralph Sanft; secretary, Ron Vea.

Guests To W. Samoa

Western Samoa opened its new Faleolo airport on Friday and Tonga was represented by the Acting Prime Minister, the Hon. Mahe Tupouniua, the Minister of Works, the Hon. Langi Kavaliku. Also present from the Kingdom was the civil aviation adviser, Mr Ken Saker and his wife, and the Acting British High Commissioner, Mr Humphrey Arthington-Day.

They returned to the Kingdom on Tuesday by Polynesian Airways with the leader of government business of Niue, Mr Robert Rex and Mrs Rex, who were on the way back to Niue. The Tongan official party farewelled Mr and Mrs Rex from Fua'amotu.

Western Samoa's new airport runway is 5000ft long and 300ft wide at present, sufficient for the new Air Pacific BAC1-11 to operate from. Eventually the runway will be 5500ft and 500ft wide with a 900ft stopway at each end.

Something To Look Forward To

The Chronicle has had a preview of a treat in store for Tonga. Last weekend, through the courtesy of Air Pacific, the Editor went on the new BAC 1-11 from Suva to Nadi Honiara, Port Vila and Port Moresby and back. Tonga will have to wait until June next year before the new 74-seat jet aircraft can land on the new sealed runway at Fua'amotu, but the Editor says it will be a new flying experience for Tongans — "something to look forward to". The full story of the flight to Port Moresby on Air Pacific's BAC 1-11 jet will be told in next week's Chronicle. The picture shows the Editor, Mr Robert McClelland, about to enter the aircraft through the tail stairway.

Bishop Rodgers Resigns

Pope Paul VI has accepted the resignation of Bishop John H. M. Rodgers as Bishop of Tonga as from last Tuesday, the Vatican has announced.

He is automatically succeeded by Bishop Patelisio Punou-ki-Hihifo Finau, S.M., D.D., M.A., as from the same date.

The new bishop will be officilly installed as Bishop of Tonga in a ceremony at St. Mary's Cathedral in the first week of next month.

Bishop Rodgers (56) said his future plans were not definite, however, he will leave next month for the Cook Islands where he is still holding office as acting bishop.

His resignation has ended a 31 years of service to the Catholic mission in Tonga.

Bishop Rodgers came to Tonga on February 23, 1941, to be the headmaster of 'Apifo'ou College, later known as St. John High School. He held that position until June 29, 1953, when he was appointed Bishop of Tonga.

DAY EARLIER NEXT WEEK

Next week's Chronicle will be published and on sale on Wednesday because of the public holiday on Thursday for the birthday of H.R.H. Crown Prince Tupouto'a.

TREATMENT IN TONGA "BEST" SAYS WRITER

"The best treatment I've had anywhere in the Pacific. The Tonga Visitors' Bureau has given me fantastic co-operation." This is an unsolicited comment from Australian travel writer Mr Tony Berry who visited the Kingdom last week.

Mr Berry was on a familiarisation trip around the Pacific area as a guest of Air New Zealand and Air Pacific. His journey took him to Tahiti, Fiji, Samoa and the West Coast of America as well as Tonga.

After seeing many Pacific Islands, Mr Berry said it was a mistake for tourists to assume that all islands were the same. He said he had been particularly struck by the difference.

He had been given a thorough tour of Tongatapu by the Tonga Visitors' Bureau, but the highlight had been the feast and entertainment, for him alone, at Oholei Beach.

"A unique place and the best presented feast and entertainment I have seen", said Mr Berry.

Mr Berry is a regular contributor to the Melbourne Age newspaper and travel trade and consumer publications in Australia, the United States and Britain.

"I will certainly have some nice things to say about Tonga," said Mr Berry.

Secretary To Visit U.S.

The Secretary to Government, Taniela Tūfui, leaves the Kingdom on Saturday for the United States and will return sometime in June.

He is to attend a government management seminar at Aspen, Colorado, conducted by the Brooking Institute followed by a travel award from the U.S. Government.

Mrs Tūfui will accompany the Secretary.

Go Home If You Don't Like The Film

Most filmgoers if they don't like a film go to sleep or go home; but the Hauhau 'o Taufa'ahau Theatre has patrons whose missiles thrown to express their discontent with a film have, in two years, just about ruined a T$1000 screen, says the manager Tevita Tapueluelu.

Several large holes have been patched but the screen is no longer as good as it was. If the damage continues it will not be possible to show films on it "and then the vandals will be sorry", Mr Tapueluelu said.

Complaints to the police have resulted in a close watch being kept for the throwers of objects, but no one was apprehended and the throwing increased.

At least no one was caught until recently when the staff caught two boys who caused damage and they were taken along to the police. They are to appear in Court soon.

Project at Tokomololo

A new project is under way at Tokomololo, the construction of a fertilizer and chemical store—house for the Department of Agriculture by the Ministry of Works.

The store-house, 105ft x 50ft is estimated to cost well over $16,000 and the commodity boards have contributed towards the cost.

The project has been assisted through the United Kingdom grant aid.

Upon completion of the store, the department will be able to purchase large quantities of fertilizer at a cheaper price.

The secure storage will also make it easier for the distribution of fertilizers to the growers.

The iron framing for the store was prefabricated in the U.K. before being shipped to Tonga.

"DEAR SIR..."
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Oil Search

Dear Sir,—Last week's article concerning the future of oil exploration in the Kingdom, and Tonga Shell's withdrawl was yet another example of the fair, objective, and courteous reporting which has characterised the Chronicle's coverage of oil exploration over the last two years.

However I would like to correct one or two statements made which probably arose from my not making things as clear to your reporter as I might have done.

1. First and foremost, the cooperation of the government throughout the Participants work in Tonga did not make it easier for Tonga Shell to withdraw; to the contrary such cooperation is a very positive factor, hence the great reluctance of Tonga Shell's decision.
2. Secondly it was not Tonga Shell alone which exceeded the stipulated amount to be spent, but all six companies comprising the Tonga Oil Participants.
3. Lastly, Tonga Shell's share of the venture reverts to the other five Participants without compensation; the money spent by Tonga Shell on unsuccessful exploration cannot be recovered; oil exploration is a risky business!

Bread & Biscuits

Dear Sir,—May I comment here on Viliami Lomu's letter on April 13 concerning being unable to buy a carton of biscuits from Riechelmann Bros.

It seemed to me after thoroughly reading his letter that Lomu is trying to say Riechelmann Bros are selfish in their operation and look down on small retail stores.

I believe that business is like the growth of a tree which depends on the service of its root from the soil. Riechelmann Bros. biscuit factory is like that; they manufacture biscuits and sell them to the major stores where the retail stores can buy.

If he was unable to have any biscuit today why not come again tomorrow instead of expressing his dissatisfaction right away.

Lomu should find out what creates the shortage of bread and biscuits. If the flour shipment arrives regularly every fortnight, no one will have any reason to complain about the shortages.

The first shortage of flour this year was in February and early March. Thanks to Riechelmann Bros who imported 200 bags of flour from Suva at $1 a bag more than the usual price, the public was able to get bread and biscuits during that time. They did not however apply to charge a higher price, they absorbed the $200 loss on it.

NEW HEAD FOR ST ANDREWS

Mr and Mrs John Connally of Auckland, New Zealand, arrived in the Kingdom last Thursday where Mr Connally will take up the appointment of headmaster of St. Andrew's School for two years.

He is replacing Mr R. Hornsby who has been headmaster of the school since 1969 and who returns to New Zealand with Mrs Hornsby next Thursday.

Before taking up his present appointment, Mr Connally was a sheep and cattle farmer at Te Puke in the Bay of Plenty.

Before his retirement in 1966 he had been headmaster of Dilworth School, Auckland, since 1950.

He graduated with a B.Sc. from Auckland University in 1930 and will be teaching mathematics and science at the St. Andrew's School.

Mr Connally has a great interest in rugby, but said he would not be coaching as the school already has good coaches. He represented Auckland in 1930 as centre three-quarter and from 1931 - 38 played for the Bay of Plenty.

Mr Connally had 40 years of commissioned service in the NZ Territorial Force, and held the rank of Brigadier.

During World War II he was platoon commander of the New Zealand forces in North Africa and Italy. After the war he was brigadier commander for the New Zealand forces in the North and South Islands.

The retiring headmaster, Mr Hornsby, welcomes the new headmaster, Mr John Connally to St. Andrew's School.

3 Tongans 'Survive' N.Z. Officers' Course

Three cadet officers of the Tonga Defence Force recently returned to the Kingdom after successfully taking a three-months officer training course with the 30th National Service Intake at Waiouru Military Camp, New Zealand. They are 'Iteni Helu, Fetu'utolu Tupou and Lupeti Vi. ,

They have been commissioned to the rank of second lieutenant with the Tonga Defence Force and will be appointed as training officers and platoon commanders.

The officer training course started on January 5 with 41 New Zealanders and three Tongans. After three weeks of basic training only 27 qualified to proceed with the course. At the end of the course only 11 qualified as officers, including the three Tongans.

Tupou and Vi joined the Tonga Defence Force in January 1971 as long service regular soldiers. After completing six weeks of basic training they were given instruction in NCO and officer duties and gained practical experience as assistant training officers and platoon commanders.

The course includes studying of minor tactics, drilling, radio, weapon training, range shooting and military law.

Tupou said : "The staff and participants in the course helped us a lot but the weather was a bit unkind.'

The three Tongans were active in other activities, including rugby, athletics and cricket.

Vi and Tupou said the experience they had gained would be useful for training soldiers in Tonga.

LASIKE'S BOOT DECIDES IN TAVATU'UTOLU v. POLICE

Lasike's boots and the bustling tactics used by Tavatu'utolu against the Police on Saturday was the deciding factor in their 12 - 11 win. The Police scored two tries to one but Lasike made all the difference by kicking two penalties and conversion.

Tavatu'utolu in the second half kept the game loose and used speed to overcome their weight disadvantage. This was the best game seen so far this season and was a brilliant display by both backs and forwards for the full 50 minutes.

In the first 15 minutes of play the Police pushed Tavatu'utolu back into their own half for most of the time, when they tried to tighten the game.

From a scrum on Tavatu'utolu 25 the Police half-back Malakai played the blind side with the second five-eight coming round to send their right winger, Hala, to score in the corner. 'Ilavalu missed the conversion. Score, 4 - 0 to the Police.

Ten minutes later the Police scored a brilliant forward try. The Tavatu'utolu fullback in trying to kick into touch at his own 25 was charged down by the Police left winger, Siope Matāpule. The Police forwards were all there to take control of the ball for Veilomani to score midway between the upright and the corner. 'Ilavalu again failed to convert. Score, 8 - 0 to the Police.

Play moved from end to end with the Police dominating play for most of the time, especially in the lineouts and scrums.

About 10 minutes to half time, from a scrum midway between the Police 25 and half-way, Tali Kavapalu at second five-eight for Tavatu'utolu, playing his first game for his new club, found the gap and went straight for the corner, then passed inside to the No. 8, Fatai Kefu, in support, who scored under the post. Lasike was on target with the easy conversion.

Score at half-time 8 - 6 to the Police.

In the second half Tavatu'utolu changed their tactics and played the game loose. This proved valuable as they could not play it tight any longer against the heavier Police pack. The Tavatu'utolu forwards, being lighter, were much faster to the loose balls and dominated second phase play.

For much of the second half play was in the Police half. Tavatu'utolu took advantage of the wind behind them by doing high kicks over the Police back.

Midway in the second-half the Police were penalised for high tacklings. Lasike was on target with the 30 yards penalty to put Tavatu'utolu on the lead for the first time by 9 points to 8.

The last three minutes was the most exciting part of the game.

Tavatu'utolu was penalised in their own 25 from a lineout infringement. 'Ilavalu landed the penalty to put the Police back on the lead 11 - 9.

Almost on full time the Police were penalised for an illegal tactic in the tight which Lasike landed and the whistle went for full time.

Final score, Tavatu'utolu 12, Police 11.

Tali Kavapalu showed great speed and accelleration paired up well Talilotu at centre.

Malakai, the Police half-back played soundly and give good service to his backline with his long and accurate passing. On several occasion upsets the Tavatu'utolu half-back.

Siope the Police left winger, making his first appearance since last season, showed determination but was starving for the ball all day.

Kōlofo'ou made a come back to down Hihifo by 11 - 4 after trailing 4 - 0 at half time. From a lineout about five yards from the Hihifo backline, Kimbu scored the most dramatic try of the day by taking the ball off the Hihifo halfback's hand and dived over for the try.

Makameone Taumoepeau, the Kolofo'ou second five-eight was the danger man on the backline, whether attacking or in defence.

Nukunuku was downed 4 - 0 by Ha'ateiho in a fast and exciting game. Laukau the Ha'ateiho left winger, scored the only points. From a breakdown of a Nukunuku back movement Laukau was quick on the spot to take the ball and raced over for a try.

The regular halfback of the New Zealand tour of 1969, Fred Muller, played well in his first game for Nukunuku, since his return from New Zealand two weeks ago.

Vaini, who have not scored a point on the championship so far, held Kolomotu'a to 12-all draw.

CHRONICLE

Adviser came to see if more help is needed

What further assistance, if any, can the British Government be advised to give Tonga for the development of its co-operative movement? This is what the adviser on co-operatives to the Overseas Development Administration of the British Government, Mr B. J. Youngjohns, recently paid a brief visit to the Kingdom to find out.

It was a 1969 visit by Mr Youngjohns that resulted in the British Government, under their technical aid programme, providing in November 1970, an adviser on co-operatives to the Tongan Government, Mr E. F. Herbert.

His schedule included: to explore the economic and commercial feasibilty of various types of co-operatives: to conduct a combined education and assessment campaign; and ascertain what could be done with the present co-operative law. An interim report was submitted to the Government and as a result, Mr Herbert's tour was extended for a year to November this year.

Mr Youngjohn's programme during his visit included an audience with the Queen, meetings with the Ministers of Finance and Lands, senior civil servants, leaders of co-operative societies and other persons interested in the development of co-operatives.

General meetings with members of the proposed Fonu Produce Marketing Society and the proposed Houmakelikao Kindergarten Society were also held with Mr Youngjohns.

He was given a feast by the staff of Co-operative Development before leaving the Kingdom.

Talking By Satellite

In a ceremony at the University of the South Pacific centre on Saturday afternoon, Princess Pilolevu inaugurated the first Satellite communication link between the centre and the University of Hawaii and the University of the South Pacific.

The picture shows Princess Pilolevu speaking to listeners in Hawaii. On the left is the lecturer at the University of the South Pacific centre in Nuku'alofa, Miss Margaret Blundell.

Speaking from Hawaii were Mr K. Law and Mr Muir of the University of Hawaii. A member of Parliament for Vava'u, Pouono Niusini spoke on behalf of the Tongan people in Hawaii

From the University of the South Pacific speeches were made by a former Secretary to the Government of Tonga, 'Inoke Faletau, John Porritt and Sione Tupouniua.

A physicist from USP, Mr Allan Cutting was in Tonga for three weeks to set up the equipment. Mr Cutting said this was the first time universities had been linked through Satellites.

This communication link will enable students in Tonga taking courses at the USP to talk to lecturers and to listen to lectures.

The equipment had been contributed by the Carnegie Foundation in New York and the National Aeronautic and Space Administration granted a permission for the universities to use the satellite free of charge.

Fale Builders Off To Arts Festivals

The first group for the South Pacific Arts Festival will leave on Saturday in the "Aoniu". They are a group of 10 craftsman from the village of Kanokupolu who will build a Tongan fale in the village on the University of the South Pacific campus.

A member of the executive committee Mr Siosiua Fonua, will travel with the group.

The frame of the 30 feet fale, made out of coconut trunk and the walls made out of reeds, will be taken by the group.

Thatch for the roof has been prepared by Tongans in Fiji because of restrictions on importing this material from Tonga.

The group will also take in the "Aoniu" handicrafts for display at the village.

The "Niuvākai" will sail for Suva on Monday to take the Tongan Arts Festival team instead of the "'Olovaha". It will then load transhipment cargo and return to Nuku'alofa.

The "Hifofua" arriving today from Suva will sail this afternoon for Niue to pick up the Niue Festival team who will join the "Niuvakai" in Nuku'alofa for Suva.

Prime Minister Coming Home

The Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake and Princess Melenaite are expected to return to the Kingdom this morning from Auckland where the Prime Minister underwent surgery last month.

Their Royal Highnesses are expected to fly to Fiji next Tuesday to attend the South Pacific Arts Festival.

They Are Keeping Tonga Tidy

At least 200 people in Nuku-'alofa want to keep Tonga clean and tidy. They were the ones who turned up last Saturday morning to take part in the first stage of the campaign organised by the Rotary Club and helped clean up the beachfront from Vuna Wharf to Faua Harbour.

Besides the members of the Rotary Club, pupils from various schools and boys of the newly-formed Sopu Scout group took part. They collected huge piles of bottles, drink cans, cigarette packet, coconut shells, corned beef tins and even old shoes. First the rubbish was put in the new rubbish bins provided by the Rotary Club and then the Health Department refuse truck came along and emptied the bins.

It was difficult to estimate how much rubbish was collected, but the beachfront looked a lot cleaner after a couple of hours work.

"This is not the end of the "Tidy Tonga", said a spokesman for the Rotary Club. The 16 blue bins will remain on the foreshore and it is hoped the public will use them. The Health Department plans to place more bins in strategic places around the town."

All around town are posters prepared by the Rotary Club telling the public where to put their rubbish.

The Chronicle would like to draw the attention of the public to any bad examples of rubbish disposal and would like readers to inform us of any unsightly rubbish at public places in Tongatapu.

This And That

CHRONICLE DIARY

We believe that the policy of first come first served is the fairest, therefore we find it particularly calling to queue for the occasional meat at the Vuna Market, have to wait and watch while all the speecial orders are made up and then have to accept the scraps of the beast that are left. Why should some people get preference just because they ordered. We don't mind the hospital getting special treatment, but not private individuals.

* * *

The ill-fated open day at the Government Farm is planned again for June 4, a public holiday for Emancipation Day. Maybe the third atempt will be lucky. Although the weather was find on Tuesday, the day was postponed because rain had made the ground wet and traffic would have become bogged down on the road.

* * *

The village of Veitongo caught our eye while driving along the main road this week. The people have erected attractive fences along frontages of the homes on both sides of the roads.

* * *

How many people knew what the public holiday was for on Tuesday? We asked several groups of young people in the streets of Nuku'alofa on Tuesday and were surprised at the number who didn't know. Some knew it was Anzac Day but didn't know what it was all about. For the record, Anzac Day, from the words Australia and New Zealand Army Corps, originally marked the Gallipoli landings in Turkey in World War I. It is now observed by Australia and New Zealand as their national memorial days for both World Wars.

* * *

We had to work on Tuesday for you to be able to read your Chronicle today. The quietness of the afternoon was shattered by ominous noises from our neighbours, the Central Police Station. The yelling, banging and thumping went on for several minutes from the direction of one of the cells and we wondered what was going on. We were not able to get an answer.

* * *

We wonder what some tourists felt about their visit to Tonga last week when the bus in which they travelled to 'Oholei Beach bogged down in the mud south of Lavengatonga. Heavy rain was falling at the time and the passengers had to get out of the bus and walk along the muddy Liku road about a mile to the beach.

$35,850 Contract For Construction Of Vava'u Airfield

The $35,850 contract for construction of the Vava'u Airfield was formally signed by the Minister of Works, The Hon. Langi Kavaliku last Friday.

The Contractors are Messrs D. G. Sundin & Co. Pty of Sydney, Australia who are associated with the construction of the "Port of Refuge" Hotel at Neiafu, Vava'u.

Work on the 2,100 ft runway, to be constructed north of Leimatu'a village, will commence when compensation for crops and land has been paid by the Government.

Messrs Sundin & Co., who have an Engineer on site, hope to complete the work within five months from the beginning of construction.

When completed, the airfield will at first be available for use by light aircraft on a charter basis. However, negotiations by the Government are at present under way to inaugurate a scheduled service between Fua'amotu and Vava'u.

This service will be extended to Ha'apai and 'Eua on completion of the airfields on these islands.

MORE MACHINERY FOR FUA'AMOTU PROJECT

The Government has decided to purchase additional heavy machinery for the Ministry of Works to ensure that work on the runway at Fua'amotu Airport may proceed more quickly.

This will also enable a limited road reconstruction programme to be undertaken at the same time as the Airfield Construction programme.

Orders are to be placed in the United Kingdom for a heavy grader, a 2 cubic yard shovel loader and a compressor at a cost of $51,800. An application for approval of the purchase using a United Kingdom Loan funds is under consideration.

The Government of New Zealand provides a Mechanical Supervisor, under Technical Assistance term, for a two year period, to ensure that the Roads and Airfield construction machinery valued at well over $225,000 is well maintained and efficiently operated.

It has been announced in Wellington, the New Zealand Government will also send two engineers to Tonga for two years to assist with the upgrading of Fua'amotu airport.

The Foreign Affairs Minister, Sir Keith Holyoake, said the men would be recruited from the permanent staff of the Ministry of Works but their secondment would be financed from the Government's bilateral aid programme to Tonga.

FURTHER OIL DRILLING CONSIDERED

Consideration is being given to drilling further oil wells in Tonga in 1974, including one offshore, says the executive vice-president of Republic Mineral Corporation, of Houston, Texas, Mr E. C. Wallace, according to a report in the New Zealand Herald.

Mr Wallace, who is also chairman of Republic Petroleum Corporation (N.Z.) Ltd, was speaking in Auckland. His company plans to drill four exploratory wells in New Zealand this year, one in Northland and three in the Waikato.

Mails Lost On Ships

A statement from the Chief Post Master, Siua Kaihau Hōlani said mail bags on Union Steam Ship Company's vessels had been opened and damaged. Some of the parcels were lost.

Two mail bags on the "Tofua" on May 2 were opened. The statement said an officer from the vessel informed the Chief Post Master that it was opened in Niuē.

A further 10 mail bags on the "Tarawera" on March 27. were opened and the mails were damaged. An officer from the vessel said they were opened in Apia.

The statement said complaints had been put forward to the company's local office and the head office in Wellington.

A spokesman for the company's local office said they have informed the Post Office staff not to remove mail bags that had been opened till the master of the vessel had seen it.

Banking Consultants

A team of consultants from the United Nations Development Programme and the Minister of Finance Hon. Mahe U. Tupouniua were granted an audience with His Majesty, on Tuesday afternoon.

The consultants who are leaving today were investigating the feasibility of establishing a South Pacific Region Development Bank. The Government of Tonga, Western Samoa, the Territorial Government of American Samoa, Cook Island, Gilbert and Ellice Islands and British Solomon Islands Protectorate are said to be interested in establishing a regional developing bank.

Arts Festival

Dear Sir.—This Arts Festival in Suva—is it to promote South Pacific art forms or just the business of the director of the show, T.V. and Broadcasting and recording companies?

What do they know about being night-club performers, about South Seas Art forms and dances? What sort of "promotion" can they bring?

How long would this exploitation go on? But it serves the Polynesians and Melanesians right for being too dull.

Announcer Trainees

Dear Sir.—I beg to voice the unanimous opinion of myself and fellow workmates. I am quite apprehensive and worried over the present policy at the Tonga Broadcasting Commission regarding the selection of Announcer Trainees. Is it not possible to give these Trainees their training in the Studios before letting them go on the air? Would it not be better to give them practice in speaking and reading by using a tape-recorder and thereby getting them to learn from their own recorded mistakes?

It is sad that the right people are not encouraged to take up broadcasting. School broadcasts are always such a joy given the excellent presentation and care with which they are handled. We love to take our radio with us to the bush and enjoy these sessions while working in our gardens and we also learn a lot from the children's lessons. There are many more people fitted for the job in this country and the somewhat random selection of young and immature school pupils to go on the air, is quite wrong. I propose that this training be undertaken in a separate room within A3Z for, after all, the person who selected these would be the only one to tolerate these school kids mistakes.

I have been overseas and have spent a fair while in Fiji and may I say that people there really love to tune in to Radio Tonga. Recently however, they are complaining mainly because of the poor presentation and the numerous mechanical breakdowns which damages our image overseas. What have they done to Broadcasting? Bring back Radio Tonga please. Think of the future and get some improvement into Broadcasting.

Film Admission

Dear Sir.—May I refer to the recent increases in the costs of going to the pictures as stated in the April 27 issue of the Chronicle, being that: 20 seniti seats remain on that price; 25 seniti seats be increased to 30 seniti; 30 seniti seats be increased to 35 seniti.

The shows are also to be cut down to a single feature. It has been rather clever to say that the overall average of the rise is just 5 seniti. The truth however is that: 20 seniti seats have been increased 50% (by the cutting out of one feature); 25 seniti seats being increased to 30 have risen 70% (20 + 50%); 30 seniti seats being increased to 35 have risen 66⅔% (16⅔ + 50%).

With the advent of single feature shows it could only be said that film costs have increased 50% as shown above.

Though shorts are shown, they have not in any way helped to make up for the tremendous rises. Film-goers are therefore lamenting the fact.

Government, by law, still regulates the prices of imported goods and some of the local prices, for example, transport, beef, and pork, so that Traders would not exploit the people.

I therefore, put it to you that it would not now be wrong for the Government to bring the price of movies under the Competent Authority to ensure fairness.

A Sprawling Town With An Air Of Great Prosperity

By the EDITOR

Before I go to a place I have never seen before I try to conjure up in my mind a picture of what I think the place looks like. Port Moresby I imagined would be a rugged pioneer town, a small place on the edge of large harbour with tall bush-covered hills in the background.

Air Pacific took me there a couple of weeks ago in their new BAC 1-11 jet, the aircraft that will eventually come to Tonga when the new runway is finished at Fua'amotu. My mind picture of Port Moresby was right is some respects. It does have a large harbour and there are a lot of hills, but they not as heavy with bush as I expected and Moresby is not a small place.

In fact, it was the size that surprised me most. It is a sprawling town, well planned and developed and with an air of great prosperity. An indication of the size is that the distance from the airport to town is 11 miles and all that area is urban development.

The prosperity comes from Australian money but Port Moresby is the gateway to a huge area of land with great mineral resources.

My arrival in the air terminal at the Port Moresby after an 8½ hours flight from Suva did not give me a good impression. The stark and uninviting building must be the worst terminal in the world for such a busy airport.

The noise from the aircraft on the tarmac made the public address system unintelligible and made it almost impossible to make myself understood to the girl at the information counter where I was trying to find out how to get to the city. No public or airline transport is provided so you have to hire a taxi. But this is easier said that done. About half a dozen direct, free telephone are provided to call a taxi. but this is no guarantee you are going to get one. I had to try several times before eventually one came to take me to the hotel.

An afternoon and an evening is hardly long enough to form any real conclusions about a place you are visiting for the first time, but it is supprising what can be learnt by walking around with your eyes open and talking with people who like myself were just sitting in the shade of the trees on the beach front.

A Chinese man, who I found out was to be a passenger on my Air Pacific flight out of Port Moresby the following morning was most informative. He was a merchant going to Honiara on business. He came from a large family of Chinese who lived in the western district of the territory but was born in Australia and proud of it.

He said the move towards independence was causing concern among what he called the "responsible" people of the territory. He had grave doubts about the ability of the Papuans to govern themselves and no figure had yet emerged who looked as if he was going to lead the people to independence.

There were great tribal and language divisions among the people, he said. In his district alone 40 different languages were spoken.

Independence denoted that Australian expertise and aid would be withdrawn and this was the cause of alarm, my Chinese friend said. There was no doubt about the mineral potential of the territory but business as interests were being cautious about spending money because of the political situation.

I had about an hour to wait and watch planes of all shapes and sizes taking off distant places—Boeing 727s, DC3s, Airbuses, Fokker Friendships, Air Force Hercules and even helicopters.

And then it was time for our BAC 1-11 to load. I found myself sitting next to my Chinese friend and before he left the plane at Honiara I had his card and a firm invitation to visit him at his home in a town near the Fly River he said. I'm not really sure where it is, but I hope I can take him up on his offer some day soon.

TONGAN CONTINGENT CAUSED CONSTERNATION IN SUVA

From the EDITOR, in Suva.

The Tongan contingent caused consternation in Suva when they arrived for the South Pacific Festival of Arts early last Wednesday morning. It appeared that instead of their number being the expected 250 there were 400 and the story was going around that the Tongan performers had brought their relatives along with them.

Actully, the number is 262, but how they seemed like 400 is this way:

The "Niuvakai" arrived about midnight on Tuesday and stayed in the harbour until about 7 o'clock on Wednesday. Soon after customs and immigration formalities had been completed the contingent was whisked away by buses to the Suva Grammar School at Veiuto where they are accammodated.

A meal was waiting for them and everyone was hungry. Few had eaten earlier on the ship and some had not eaten since leaving Nuku'alofa on Monday because they were seasick. Their hunger was so great and the food so good and hot that they went back for more. The women serving the meal were not aware of this and when their count of meals served rose to 400 they became concerned and wondered where all the Tongans had come.

The leader of the contingent, the Hon Ve'ehala, was sent for to explain and he immediately recognised what had happened. To the Fijian women serving all Tongans looked alike and they were not aware that many of them were doing an Oliver Twist.

I still find it hard to convince people that there are only 262 Tonga performers at the festival and that they have not brought along their relatives.

For the record, the "Niuvakai" did bring about 380 to Suva, including 30 Niueans, but no other Tongans, except performers, are staying at the school.

For the next two weeks Suva Grammar School will be home for the Tongans - and a very comfortable home it is. The building is comparatively modern and the grounds spacious and well laid out. I found the Tongan group very happy there when I visited them.

The topic of conversation seemed to come back to food again and they were all full of praise for the meals they were being given.

The food is supplied by the Fiji Government and cooked by a committee of women from the school Parent-Teachers' Association.

The Tongan community in Fiji has also brought gifts of yams, pigs and biscuits to the school.

Each member of the contingent also brought a supply of yams.

Riechelmann Bros donated biscuits for eating on the 'Niuvakai.'

In the three days before the official opening of the festival on Saturday there wasn't much time for sitting around. Rehearsals for the ceremony, recordings and meeting the many friends who came visiting had to be fitted in.

The organiser seems to have thought of everything to make their Tongan guests happy, even to the extent of sending a doctor every day to treat any medical problems. If anyone has to be admitted to hospital the costs will be met by the Fiji Government.

PRIME MINISTER'S MESSAGE

The Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake issued the following message in Suva:

"The pressures of this century are such that there is a growing tendency for countries to standardise their way of life. As the communication gap closes so we are all being drawn into a cosmopolitan way of living and in the process we are losing identity. Yet our arts and customs, which are our heritage, must be retained and fostered if we are to give our children a true national identity.

The South Pacific Festival of Arts has not only presented us with an opportunity to show the world our talents but also has committed my people to a better understanding of the importance of our heritage. We are happy to be associated with this great adventure."

The Prime Minister has a busy round of engagements during his two weeks in Suva. Besides attending the opening of the festival on Saturday night and the opening of the traditional village at the University of the South Pacific on Monday morning, he was a guest with Princess Melenaite at a reception by the Indian High Commissioner, Mr Bhagwan Singh on Friday night, went to worship with Tongans at Suva Grammar School later on Sunday morning, and with Prince Alaivahamama'o, went to a luncheon in the Officers' Mess at the Fiji Royal Military Forces Barracks. On Monday night he attended a reception at the home of the Fiji Prime Minister.

On Monday afternoon, the Prime Minister opened the first of the individual displays of traditional dancing and singing in the Suva Civic Auditorium.

Presentation of Gifts

The magnificent opening ceremony has been the high point of the festival so far and it will be hard to excell, but the Tongan group is still talking about Thursday afternoon's special performance and presentation of gifts to the Fiji Prime Minister, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, at the school.

With Ratu Sir Kamisese were the Deputy Prime Minister, Ratu Sir Edward Cakobau, and the Minister for Communications, Works and Tourism, Ratu Penaia Ganilau.

The Tongans led by the Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake, presented to the Fijian chief tapa cloth stacked about 8 ft high, 300 bottles of oil a "fihu", mats, baskets and table mats, as well as a kava root. Several roast pigs and cooked taro were presented to Prince Tu'ipelehake and his people.

The Hon. Ve'ehala spoke in Fijian on behalf of the Prime Minister and the matāpule of Ratu Sir Kamisese replied on his behalf.

It was a very warm gathering and tears flowed.

Tongan Group Is The Second Largest

Tongan with 260 performers is the second largest group at the South Pacific Arts Festival. The largest in Fiji with 2000 people and includes performers from the Indian, Chinese, Banaban and Rotuman communities as well as Fijians.

New Zealand has sent 135 including Maoris, a choir and a symphony orchestra, the British Solomon Islands 75, the Gilbert and Ellice Islands 70, Western Samoa 50, Australia 45, the Cook Islands 40, American Samoa 40, Niue 30, Papua New Guinea 25 and Nauru 5.

Suva is bustling with Island visitors and bright with decorations for the South Pacific Festival of Arts

Among the decorations are several giant orange-polythene "takia" sails.

The 30 ft stylised sails have been erected through the Suva city area for the festival.

Following a similar theme, orange polythene canopies have been put up over Cummings Street and bright banners hung from shop fronts and strung across the streets.

TAVATU'UTOLU DOWNED FASI BY 14—4

Some fine rugby was seen at Teufaiva last Saturday despite the very heavy condition of the ground resulting from the heavy rain during the week.

In the main game Tavatu'utolu defeated Fasi 14-4 in n exciting and spectacular game.

Fasi started with several attacking movements, but could not open the sound defence of Tavatu'utolu.

About 15 minutes from half time the Tavatu'utolu second five-eighth, following a good back movement from second phase play, drew the Fasi defenders inside then send Talilotu to score.

Halftime score: 4-0 to Tavatu'utolu.

With 15 minutes into the second half, Fasi was penalised six yards from their own goal line. Tavatu'utolu with a quick ta p kick, passed along their backline; Tali kicked behind the Fasi defence, but racing for it he was tackled by one of the Fasi backs.

The referee, Siaosi Moleni immediately awarded a penalty try which Lasike converted.

Score: 10-0 to Tavatu'utolu.

Ten minutes later, Tavatu'utolu again scored to put themselves further ahead by 14-0.

Final score: Tavatu'utolu 14 Fasi 4.

Paula was the outstanding back on the Fasi side who covered well behind the backline and had some good runs.

In the forwards, Manavahe and Tevita Leger were hard toilers in the tights and the lineouts.

Tavatu'utolu had one of their forwards ordered off the field before halftime but it did not seem to make such difference in their forwards' play which dominated the lineouts and second phase play.

Tavatu'utolu could have scored more tries if they had used Tali and Talilotu more. The first five-eighth spend the whole day kicking or playing his own game.

Ha'ateiho was never able to show their true form when they were defeated by Hihifo 18-10.

Hihifo had Ha'ateiho under pressure for most of the time till the last few minutes when their backline combined well to score two brilliant tries.

Fakahau, the Hihifo flanker, had a timeless day chasing the ball and second two tries.

Kolofo'ou had an easy day defending Mu'a 50 - 0. Kimbu shone up well. He scored a most spectacular try when he took the ball on the Mu'a 25 and weaved his way through the Mu'a forwards to score under the post.

In a very exciting game, Nukunuku downed Kolomotu'a 8 - 4. Nukunuku had more possessions from the lineouts and scrums, with the backline playing well scored two tries.

The Police scored the highest points of the season when they defeated Vain(110 - 0. Police scored 20 tries and converted 15.

Rugby lessons from former All Black

There has been a lot of improvement in forwards play, especially in scrummaging and driving, commented former All Black hooker, Mr Dennis Young, after watching club rugby at Teufaiva on Saturday

Mr Young is in Tonga for two weeks to coach clubs and schools in Tongatapu, in a request from the Tonga Rugby ootball Union. He was in Tonga in 1969 coaching the team that toured New Zealand.

On Saturday's game he was most impressed with the style of play the backs displayed and said he would not like to see it changed . It is mainly in the forwards he wants to improve on certain aspects, to win more ball.

He said the team which toured New Zealand would have done even better if they were able to gain more possession of the ball.

Namoa KO's Ha'apai Champion

Fo'ui light- heavyweight, Fetaiaki Namoa scored a knockout victory over Ha'apai light heavyweight champion, Tipeti Moa in the third round of their 10-round bout Wednesday at the Hauhau-'o-Taufa'ahau Theatre.

In the first two rounds, Namoa fought behind his fast left, slowly working out his opponent. He tagged the champion with a fast combination early in round two as Moa tried to move in close.

Later in the round, the two threw everything they had in trading punches with each other in the corner, the fans really love it.

It happened again early in the third round and Namoa caught the champion unaware,' with a terrific right-cross to the left iaw coupled with a fast left and right combination to the head and body that sent the champion to lay flat on the canvas.

As soon as the refree Tevita Moala counted the champion out, Dr Lutui Fonua and the champiop's seconds went inside to help revive the champion. He recovered two minutes later.

Sione Ngalu and Bruce Sovaleni fought to draw in their six-round light heavy-weight bout.

What's in a Name? Roses Have 13,000

What do Queen Elizabeth, Helen Traubel, and Ma Perkins have have in common?

They are roses. An avid rosarian also would know that Queen Elizabeth, a medium pink hybrid, has such appropriate botanical ancestors as Miss Edith Cavell, Robin Hood, and Kitchener of Khartoum.

With 13,000 varieties blooming in gardens and green houses around the world, the great, near-great, and hitherto unknown all stand a good chance of having a rose named after them.

Amazingly, most of these garden varieties are derived from just eight Asian species. Botanists believe that the plant itself originated 60 million years ago in Asia, the National Geographic Society says.

Wild Arctic Rose

Wild roses grow all over the northern hemisphere—even north of the Arctic Circle—but they bear little resemblance to the carefully bred garden varieties. The wild blossoms usually are spread open.

Years of hybridization have created such a genetic jumble that a breeder might raise 100,000 rose seedlings and get only one or two worth marketing.

An indefatigable lot, rose breeders even have managed to grow a thornless rose, but the goal of a true blue rose still eludes them. Closest so far are hazy lavender and lavender-blue hybrids.

The patron saint of modern rose breeders is Empress Josephine, Napoleon's wife. In 1804 she bought a chateau outside of Paris and started to grow roses there, though Napoleon complained bitterly about the expense when he wasn't away at Austerlitz or Jena.

Within 10 years, Josephine had more than 200 varieties blooming in her gardens, and horticulturists from all over Europe visited it. Her collection was so highly esteemed that when conquering British troops arrived in 1815, they were instructed to protect Josephine's roses.

French American Beauty

Curiously, a French rose became one of the most popular flowers in the United States. In 1882, the historian and rose enthusiast George Bancroft received a shipment of roses named Mme. Ferdinand Jamin. Three years later, a Washington, D.C., nursery offered them for sale under the appealing name, American Beauty.

The long-stemmed rose was an immediate success. Though difficult to grow in a garden, it was a florist's dream. For years no self-respecting Stage Door Johnny would think of arriving for duty without a luxurious bouquet of American Beauties.

American Beauties and other old-fashioned roses have been eclipsed in recent years by hybrid tea roses, hardy plants that bloom abundantly in many colors. Breeders still are looking for the ultimate yellow rose, and when they develop a fine one like the new hybrid tea called Apollo, they tend to rhapsodize (with a practical touch):

". . . sunrise yellow, delicately infused at the base with shadowy infiltrations of crimson like the dawn of a misty morn. The dark green, disease resistant foliage makes a beautiful background for the flowers which stand out like rays of the morning light."

Rain Threatens The Opening Ceremony

From the EDITOR in Suva

Magnificent and spectacular are words I don't often use, but they are the only words to describe the opening ceremony of the South Pacific Arts Festival on Saturday night at Suva's Albert Park.

Rain had been falling for about a week and rehearsals had churned the ground into a quagmire, but this did not deter the performers from turning on the most outstanding display of Pacific Island culture ever seen.

Right up to the start of the show workmen with shovels and wheelbarrows were spreading sand over the worst parts of the performing area, but it was an impossible job.

The slipping of the bands- [illegible] with mud as they marched; one dancer lost a shoe and I swear I saw a frog in a puddle in the front of the Press stand.

The only rain during the performance fell for a brief time during the traditional kava ceremony of welcome to island leaders and guests by the chiefs and people of Kubuna. As this is conducted sitting, tarpaulins were spread on the ground.

The "House Full" sign was up early on Saturday morning and about 5000 people packed the stands with many more standing on the outskirts of the ground. Dress was strictly casual with VIPs and visitors alike wearing aloha shirts or print dresses.

Unusual for an island occasion, the ceremony began sharp on time and from then on it was a superbly timed production of music and movement without a pause for three hours.

The tone of the show was set with music and precision marching by the bands of the Fiji Police and the Fiji Military Forces. Then came the yaqona ceremony.

Dances representative of the people of Fiji followed. They included a spear dance by the men of Wailevu, a standing dance by the women of Nasigatoka and a club dance by the men of Levuka, Kadavu.

Chinese students from St Josephs Convent did a ribbon dance, a dazzling display of colour. The long banners they waved became heavy with water and mud but the children persevered and the crowd loved them for it.

In a Gujerati folk dance by the Indian people, glittering red saris dragged in the mud, but the performers did not seem perturbed.

The Festival Choir sang the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah and then came the spectacular group dances from Tonga, Australia, Samoa, Cook Islands, Papua-New Guinea, New Zealand, New Caledonia, the British Solomon Islands and the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

Tonga had the honour of leading the group dances with a lakalaka, and the men received resounding applause from the huge audience when they were required to sit or lie on their backs in the mud. When they hit the ground vigorously with their hands they became splattered with mud, but it did not matter.

As the lakalaka group faded into the darkness still singing the spotlight picked up the Aborigines of Northern Australia who did an intriguing hunting dance.

And so the spectacle went on . . . the Papua-New Guinea group with their colourful and elaborate masks and head-dresses, which only arrived in Suva about two hours before the show; the Waihirere Maoris from Gisborne, N.Z. with twirling pois and a haka (war dance); the unusual whistling and foot - stamping dance of the New Caledonian Melanesian dancers.

As one group ended the lights would pick up another group in another corner of the arena and the crowd was enthralled.

The lightning deserves special mention. We were assured by the director of the festival, Mr Victor Carell, at the Press conference on Friday that it would be sophisticated and he was right. I doubt that it has been duplicated anywhere in Australia and New Zealand. High banks of spotlights shone from high towers on each side of the ground and from above the stand. The effects produced by these lights was stunning.

The sound too was faultless. Many groups had recorded their music and songs beforehand, but with Tongan group of about 200, including 80 in the choir, this was not necessary.

The costumes also contributed to the spectacle. They were truely traditional—no coloured paper and plastic.

The opening ceremony set the seal of success on the festival it was a superb production.

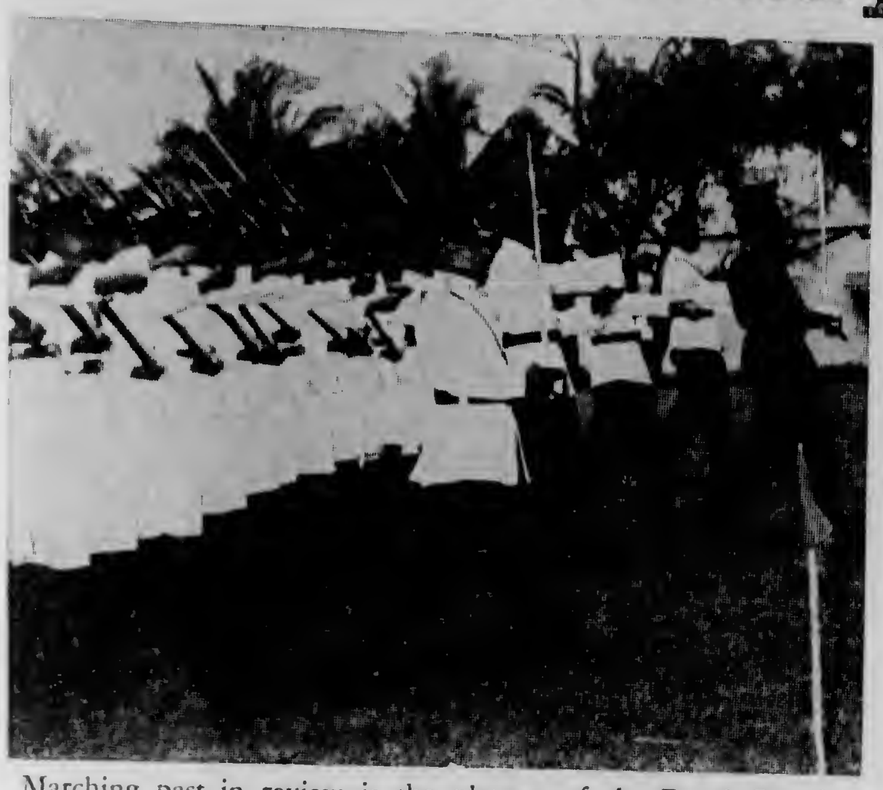
Birthday Parade



Marching past in review is the platoon of the Royal Guards, commanded by Lieut. Fetu'utolu Tupou of the TDF.

His Royal Highness Prince Tupouto'a, taking the salute. Behind him is the Commander of the Tonga Defence Force, Major R. McGregor and Lieut. S. Tu'a Taumoepeau.

A parade to celebrate the 24th birthday of His Royal Highness Prince Tupouto'a was held on the Mala'e Pangai last Thursday by the Tonga Defence Force and the Royal Guards.

His Royal Highness is Colonel-in-Chief of the Force and the Guards.

Four platoons of the TDF and one of the Royal Guards marched past in review before His Royal Highness. The music was provided by the Police Band.

Then followed a display showing the contrast between a fighting soldier of the past and today.

His Royal Highness presented prizes to two Roval Guardsmen Kilifi Mafile'o for first aid and Fataua Talanoa for the best care of weapons and two prizes to Private Viliami K. Helu for the best shot and best recruit among the new TDF recruits.

In spite of the unfavourable weather the shelters were crowded with invited guests, which included H.R.H. Princess Pilolevu, Ministers of the Crown, members of the Tongan nobility, the Acting British High Commissioner, Mr H. Arthington-Davy and heads of churches.

Rain Threatens The Opening Ceremony

From the EDITOR in Suva

Magnificent and spectacular are words I don't often use, but they are the only words to describe the opening ceremony of the South Pacific Arts Festival on Saturday night at Suva's Albert Park.

Rain had been falling for about a week and rehearsals had churned the ground into a quagmire, but this did not deter the performers from turning on the most outstanding display of Pacific Island culture ever seen.

Right up to the start of the show workmen with shovels and wheelbarrows were spreading sand over the worst parts of the performing area, but it was an impossible job.

The marching of the bands-men [illegible] with mud as they marched: one bandsman lost a shoe and I swear I saw a frog in a puddle in the front of the Press stand.

The only rain during the performance fell for a brief time during the traditional kava ceremony of welcome to island leaders and guests by the chiefs and people of Kubuna As this is conducted sitting, tarpaulins were spread on the ground.

The "House Full" sign was up early on Saturday morning and about 5000 people packed the stands with many more standing on the outskirts of the ground. Dress was strictly casual with VIPs and visitors alike wearing aloha shirts or print dresses.

Unusual for an island occasion, the ceremony began sharp on time and from then on it was a superbly timed production of music and movement without a pause for three hours.

The tone of the show was set with music and precision marching by the bands of the Fiji Police and the Fiji Military Forces. Then came the yaqona ceremony.

Dances representative of the people of Fiji followed. They included a spear dance by the men of Wailevu, a standing dance by the women of Nasigatoka and a club dance by the men of Levuka, Kadavu.

Chinese students from St Josephs Convent did a ribbon dance, a dazzling display of colour. The long banners they waved became heavy with water and mud but the children persevered and the crowd loved them for it.

In a Gujerati folk dance by the Indian people, glittering red saris dragged in the mud, but the performers did not seem perturbed.

The Festival Choir sang the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah and then came the spectacular group dances from Tonga, Australia, Samoa, Cook Islands, Papua-New Guinea, New Zealand, New Caledonia, the British Solomon Islands and the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

Tonga had the honour of leading the group dances with a lakalaka, and the men received resounding applause from the huge audience when they were required to sit or lie on their backs in the mud. When they hit the ground vigorously with their hands they became splattered with mud, but it did not matter.

As the lakalaka group faded into the darkness still singing the spotlight picked up the Aborigines of Northern Australia who did an intriguing hunting dance.

And so the spectacle went on . . . the Papua-New Guinea group with their colourful and elaborate masks and head-dresses, which only arrived in Suva about two hours before the show; the Waihirere Maoris from Gisborne, N.Z. with twirling pois and a haka (war dance); the unusual whistling and foot - stamping dance of the New Caledonian Melanesian dancers.

As one group ended the lights would pick up another group in another corner of the arena and the crowd was enthralled.

The lightning deserves special mention. We were assured by the director of the festival, Mr Victor Carell, at the Press conference on Friday that it would be sophisticated and he was right. I doubt that it has been duplicated anywhere in Australia and New Zealand. High banks of spotlights shone from high towers on each side of the ground and from above the stand. The effects produced by these lights was stunning.

The sound too was faultless. Many groups had recorded their music and songs beforehand, but with Tongan group of about 200, including 80 in the choir, this was not necessary.

The costumes also contributed to the spectacle. They were truely traditional—no coloured paper and plastic.

The opening ceremony set the seal of success on the festival it was a superb production.

Stories Damaging To Tonga's Reputation

By the EDITOR

The indignation of many Tongans at home and in New Zealand has been aroused by highly critical front-page articles about the Kingdom and its people in the May 9 and May 16 issues of the New Zealand national weekly newspaper, Truth.

In the mail this week, the Chronicle received several cuttings of the articles from different Tongans in various parts of New Zealand and all expressed concern in their covering letters at the damage the articles could do to Tonga's reputation.

On the front page of the May 9 edition the story is headed "Human Cargo: Tongan Tripper". It alleges to tell how crewmen on the Union Steam Ship Company's vessel "Tofua" have been smuggling Tongan stowaways "for years".

Truth says it was told by the crewmen that it was a "lucrative perk", and "a simple operation with no risks attached".

The men also enjoy outwitting Auckland's Customs and Immigration official, the story says.

After six short paragraphs in this vein, the story jumps to an inside page which besides continuing the front-page story, also has two others about Tongans who have overstayed their three-month visitor's permits or been smuggled in to the country.

A story headed "NZ Streets Paved with Gold" begins: "Almost unbelievable! But thousands of Tongans still live under a feudal system in their Pacific homeland.

"Their future is bleak.

"This is why hundreds, perhaps thousands, of Tongans seem to be preparing to migrate to New Zealand".

Tongan-born Auckland lawyer, Mr Clive Edwards is quoted as saying: "At the moment there are more than 500 illegal Tongan immigrants in the Auckland area.

"The numbers are increasing all the time.

"It's heading fast towards the thousand mark."

The other story on the page, headed "Home Away from Home", says the "short and sweet" phrase, "We want to stop!" is wistfully echoed by hundreds of Tongans who live and work illegally in the Auckland area.

"They lead an unreal life", the story continues. "They're fully aware they could leave happily for work in the morning—but by nightfall might be behind bars waiting for a court appearance and eventual deportation."

One Tongan, who is alleged to have worked in Auckland for two years after he was smuggled into the country, is quoted by Truth as saying: "I am like all the others. We want to stop!

"None of us want to go back to Tonga because there is nothing there—no work with decent pay, no future for us or our families."

"LIVING LIKE PIGS"

The May 16 story, also on the front page, quotes a young unidentified New Zealand woman from Auckland, married to a Tongan, commenting on the previous week's story about stowaways. It is headed " 'Pigs' War With the Slum Lords" and begins: They live like pigs in Tonga! But the 'pigs' are stirring—trouble's brewing and revolt is in the air."

The woman recently visited her husband's homeland and what she saw there was "disgusting".

She continues; "The slums in Tonga are worse than anything I've seen in New Zealand.

"Thousands are living like pigs.

"It's dreadful. It's disgusting.

"No wonder they're getting out in their hundreds and coming to New Zealand."

She blames the "ruling Tongan nobles and the Tongan Government".

The story continues on the back page with highly emotional statements, sweeping generalisations and the provocative heading: "One Day They'll Turn on Their Masters".

As one Chronicle correspondent said in her letter, "It is surprising how some people can analyse a country which they obviously know nothing about".

Truth is a widely read sensational newspaper which is not noted for its accuracy or integrity and it belies its name.

The bulk of its readers are gullible and not particularly discerning, therefore the paper has an influence it does not deserve. Unfortunately what it says can damage Tonga's reputation in New Zealand.

If, as it professes, it is a crusading paper and sincerely wants to find out the truth, it should send its most competent journalist to Tonga to see for himself. If Truth was a responsible newspaper it could possibly help Tonga.

ONE NEW FACE IN ASSEMBLY

Four People's Representatives serving in the last session of Parliament, two other members who were defeated in last election and a new member were chosen on Friday for three-year terms in the Legislative Assembly.

Returned by Tongatapu voters for third and second terms respectively were Tu'ilatai Mataele and Tomiteau Finau. Masao Paasi and Tevita Siale who had served three terms previously were re-elected to represent Va'u and Ha'apai respectively.

Returned to the House after absences of many years were Taniela Mafua as a Vava'u representative and Lopeti Tofā-'imala'e'aloa who was unsuccessful in last election but topped the Ha'apai's election last week.

Taniela Manu was elected as Tongatapu representative for the first time this year in place of Sekonaia Tu'akoi who is now a Police Magistrate.

Unsuccessful in his bid for reelection was Ha'apai Representative S. Lātūnipulu 'Unga.

Lata'ipouono Niusini who represent Vava'u last year is in Honolulu and did not seek reelection.

N.Z. Man To Train Local Splintmakers

A Waikato Hospital (New Zealand) charge technician, Mr P. F. Scully, is due to arrive in the Kingdom today to conduct a three-month training programme for othopaedic splintmakers.

His visit is under the auspices of the New Zealand Red Cross who are providing equipment and paying Mr Scully's fares.

The Tonga Red Cross will be looking after Mr Scully's accommodation.

The training programme is being arranged by the Director of Health, Dr Supileo Foliaki, and will be conducted at the Tonga Construction Company.

Those who complete the training are expected to be able to keep the hospital supplied with splints and calipers.

BOARDS' WORKINGS INCLUDED IN CONSULTANT'S SURVEY

The working of the Tonga Copra Board, the Tonga Produce Board and the Tonga Construction Company are included in the survey of industry in the Kingdom, carried out by Government of India consultant, Mr Paliwal, at the invitation of the Government of Tonga.

Mr Paliwal said he had conducted time-and-motion studies of some of the departments of the boards to acquaint himself with the bottlenecks which are hindrances to the economies.

The coir industries needed orientation of existing equipment, he said, and additional equipment to make them a viable proposition and to improve the quality of coir and products.

Coconut shells could find industrial use by converting them into coconut charcoal or coconut flour, Mr Paliwal said. The peel of coconut should be dehydrated and valuable oil could be recovered before the peel is used for the manufacture of cattle and pig feed.

The manufacture of copra also needed improvement, according to the consultant, before the premium is expected by the board and the individual grower.

New lines of industry which the boards were capable of undertaking would give them openings for better earnings and at the same time create an atmosphere of industrial development in the country, Mr Paliwal said.

The setting up these industries would create an enthusiasm in the producers and farmers for producing more because they were assured of an outlet for their commodities at reasonable prices.

P.M. Going To Samoa For Celebration

The Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake, will attend the opening of the new Western Samoa Parliament House in Apia on May 31 and the tenth independence anniversary from June 1 to 5.

The Prime Minister of Fiji, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, left on Sunday on an official visit to Australia which will last about 10 days. He is making the visit at the invitation of the Australian Government.

National Park's Scheme Praised

The dedication of four national parks in Tonga prompted the following leader in the Fiji Times last week :

REEFS AS NATURAL PACIFIC PRESERVES

An interesting feature of the four national parks which were dedicated by the King of Tonga last week is that two of them are sections of coral reef.

This is wholly in keeping with the nature of most Pacific territories, which are groups of islands set in great areas of sea, from which is derived much of the sustenance and much of the character of Pacific peoples.

Some of the islands are themselves coral-based.

Others are protected by barrier or shore reefs from the worst dangers of storms and are given the sheltered harbours which, in spite of growing air services, are still the focal points of Pacific trade and the movements of people.

Like the sea, the reefs and the nearby waters are a prolific, ever-renewed source of food.

Until recent years, their resources would probably have been confidently described as inexhaustible or unfailing.

Now there are doubts, and good reasons for these doubts.

Both man-made and natural enemies present threats – man-made through pollution, the excessive cutting away of coral, and drilling for oil, and natural through the depredation of crown of thorns starfish.

Even the crown of thorns owes it dangerous growth rate in at least some measure to the intervention of man, who has removed such natural enemies as the davui in large numbers for commerical use.

As through man has come destruction, so by the wise actions of man can come restoration and preservation.

This is the significance of Tonga's action.

It can well be used as a model by Fiji's national trust board.

THOUSANDS SAW FREE SHOW ON UNIVERSITY CAMPUS

The biggest audience the Tongans have had at the South Pacific Festival of Arts was at the University of the South Pacific last Wednesday when they were on the same bill as the Waihirere Maoris from New Zealand.

The groups performed in the natural ampitheatre in the university grounds which gave an uninterrupted view to many thousands of people. An added attraction was that the show was free.

The university campus was also the site for the traditional village where six dwellings of South Pacific countries were erected and will remain. Some will be for student use and one will possibly be used as a university council room.

Displays of handicrafts were set up in the island houses and in university rooms.

The handicrafts in the Tongan fale were sold out in about three days. Mr S. Fonua who was in charge said he brought about $400 from Tonga but wishes he had brought about $1000 worth to sell.

One visitor bought two carvings for $150.

When the stock of handicrafts brought from Tonga was exhausted a display was maintained from handicrafts the performers had brought themselves.

Tapa and mats were made by the women and these were also sold at the Tongan fale.

In charge of the arrangements at the university was the former Secretary to Government, 'Inoke Faletau, at present on loan to the University of the South Pacific as external relations officer.

In an interview with the Fiji Times he said the two weeks of the festival were worth 1000 university open days.

For him the festival achieved something he had wanted to do since his appointment to the university about 18 months ago.

"It brought the mothers, brothers, relatives and friends of our students to the campus to look, live, participate and perform," he said.

"It gave the Pacific people who own this university a chance to see and find out what is being done here."

Mr Faletau said people who visited the university to look at performances and displays became interested in developments on campus and he spent the festival fortnight answering questions and showing them around.

Reception Made Many Friends

Dignitaries of many territories gathered several times for receptions during the South Pacific Arts Festival in Suva, but none were more convivial that the reception hosted by the Prime Minister, HRH Prince Tu'ipelehake and Princeess Melenaite at the Travel Lodge.

About 80 guests were present including the Governor-General of Fiji, Sir Robert Foster and Lady Foster, the Prime Minister of Fiji, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara and Adi Lady Mara, most of the members o f the Fiji Cabinet, the High Commissioners for New Zealand, Australia, Britain and consular representatives of the United States and Taiwan. Leaders of many of the national groups performing at the festival were also present.

Tongan guests included HRH Prince 'Alaivahamama'o, the Hon Ve'ehala and 'Eva, the Hon Luani, Mrs Heu 'Ahome'e and Mrs P. Cousins.

Contributing in no small way to the success of the evening was the entertainment provided by Sione 'Aleki on his ukulele and dancing of the tau'olunga by the "famous Nuku'alofa twins" Mrs Sela Foukimoana and Miss Moana Ta'e'iloa.

A GREAT HONOUR

A singular honour was accorded Tonga on the last day of the South Pacific Festival of Arts when Fiji made a presentation of gifts to all the partipating countries.

In a ceremony at Albert Park in the afternoon, the Hon. Ve'ehala was chosen to receive the gifts on behalf of all the territories and make the speech of acceptance and thanks. He is familiar with the form of ceremony and also speaks Fijian.

The Fiji Prime Minister, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara led his people and H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake led the Pacific people's party.

Prince Tu'ipelehake was presented with a tabua (whale's tooth).

First Visit To "Tauloto"

From the Editor in Suva

The Prime Minister, HRH Prince Tu'ipelehake and Melenaite and HRH Prince 'Alaivahamama'o visited the Tongan vessel "Tauloto" while it was in Suva and were the guests to dinner of Captain J. Stott and his officers and crew.

This was the first time any of the royal visitors had seen the "Tauloto" and they were reported to be "most impressed". Prince Tu'ipelehake and Princess Melenaite stayed on board for about four hours. Prince 'Alaivahamama'o left earlier to attend a concert.

The "Tauloto" is in port unloading cargo from Australia before going on to Pago Pago, Apia and Nuku'alofa.

A FRIENDLY CUP OF TEA

Sitting down to a nice cup of tea is a most pleasant pastime, but it was never more pleasant than when the Indian High Commissioner, Mr Bhagwan Singh, entertained the schoolgirls of the Tongan contingent to the South Pacific Festival of Arts and H.R.H. Prince Alaivahamama'o in the High Commission offices in Suva last week.

Mr Bhagwan Singh knows tea: he was for several years chairman of the Indian Tea Board and responsible for promoting Indian tea throughout the world.

After tea was taken, films were shown including one that demonstrated the correct way to make a good cup of tea.

As one girl commented, there was more to making tea that what she thought.

The film of the tour of India last year by Their Majesties was also screened. Although it has been shown often in Tonga, most of the group were seeing it for the first time.

TAVATU'UTOLU AND POLICE SHARE SHEILD AND CUP

By HOPOATE MOENGANGONGO

The Police and Tavatu'utolu are the co-holder of the Hellaby Shield and the Sports Association Cup for the Senior A championship after the final round on Saturday. Tavatu'utolu displayed a most impressive overall game to defeat last year's holder of the Hellaby shield, Kolofo'ou 3 - 0.

It was the Tavatu'utolu backline that had been most impressive with their handling. Tali and Talilotu were a very good combination and were able to show their skill. Tali had a 50-yard break early in the first half but did not get the support. Two minutes later, from a scrum on the Kolofo'ou 25 Tali sliced through the Kolofo'ou backline to be stopped only inches of the line.

Kolofo'ou forwards showed a good combination of Kimbu, Siō and Manulevu who started attacking movements from lineouts and rolling balls, with short hand-to-hand passing, before letting the ball to the backs. The forward's driving power and possession was strengthened with the return of Kuluni to the side. He was particularly useful in the rucking and the lineouts.

It was the Kolofo'ou backline which let them down in the first half, especially the centre, who had trouble from the sun shining straight in his face.

Tavatu'utolu was using the high up-and-under in the first half which seemed to give Kolofo'ou trouble and it was only the sound defence of the fullback that saved them.

Both teams had their chance of piling points in the first half. Metui for Kolofo'ou, kicked two penalties within his range. He had the distance but not the direction.

Lasike, the Tavatu'utolu fullback, also had two shots at the goal. He landed his second attempt but was called back by the referee Siaosi Moleni for not placing the ball on the mark.

Ten minutes to halftime, Finau Toetu'u, the Tavatu'utolu first five-eight, landed a 25-yd drop goal to score the only points of the game.

In the second half of play, Kolofo'ou were mounting attacking movements time and again but seemed to be hitting against a brick-wall. Valite had his chance of equalising the score with a 25 yards penalty in front of upright but was off target.

Tavatu'utolu centre, Talilotu, in the 30th minute of the second half, had a 40-yd break and could have scored a try if he had tried to beat the fullback by running outside him. Instead he sidestepped inside running into the Kolofo'ou defenders.

It was dark before the game finished and the referee stopped the game five minutes to fulltime.

ENTERTAINING DISPLAY

In the curtain-raiser, Kauvai defeated Police B to win the Senior B championship in one of the most entertaining display of rugby of Saturday's fixtures.

Kauvai dominated forwards and back play and were well led by captain Paha. Centre Haueti, Kauvai landed a penalty in the first half to score the first point of the game.

The Kauvai first five-eighth 'Uluaki was player who quickly caught the eye of the spectators. He was splendid with his tactical kicking and often cut through the Police defence. Late in the second half he score a try running through six Police defenders, side stepping and swerving before touching down under the post.

The Kauvai forwards were very effective in their forward rush and driving with short passing and the back always spinning the ball.

The Police A outplayed Fasi to win by 30 - 6. It was only in the first 10 minutes of play that Fasi was able to stand up against the heavy Police pack and was leading at one stage 6 - 4 from two penalties by Tevita Leger and a try by Malakai for the Police.

Fasi was outplayed in all departments and the Police backline was able to spin the ball freely resulting in four tries scored by the backs and three by the forwards.

For the Police: tries by Malakai (2), Hala, Vainikolo, Polutele, Siaosi Selupe. Masima, Ilavalu conversion.

Fasi: Tevita Leger two penalties.

RED CROSS NEWS

By MARJORY PITMAN

Red Cross Week 1972 was most successful and the committee wishes to express their thanks and appreciation to the many individuals, firms, organisations and village communities for responding so well to their appeal for funds.

It would be impossible to list everyone who gave so much of their time to help with fund-raising, but particular mention must be made of Dr 'Alo 'Eva and 'Oto'ota and the Police Band, who spent so much time travelling throughout Tongatapu visiting the villages.

Women are reminded that each Thursday morning the Red Cross Hall is open from 9.30 – 11.30 for the purpose of sewing for bazaars and various other small jobs which help the Red Cross to function. All are welcome.

Ve'ehala Explains Tongan Dance

The development of Tongan dancing was the subject of lecture demonstration given by the Hon. Ve'ehala at the Suva Museum during the South Pacific Festival of Arts.

The demonstration began with an explanation and performance of an ancient chant —so old that only a few of the words could still be understood, the Hon Ve'ehala said.

The recognisable words applied to sailing and paddling a canoe and the chant was performed with small wooden paddles which were twirled and waved.

Seona Martin of the Fiji Times said of the demonstration: "Men and women combined for a stirring and graceful lakalaka which almost raised the roof."

The Hon. Ve'ehala explained: "We are so used to singing in the openair we do not know what it is to sing inside a small building."

Miss Martin said the sound of the voices was surpassed only by the applause of the audience.

A feeling of friendly informality crept into the museum lecture-demonstrations which allowed a genuine involvement between audience and performers, Miss Martin continued.

"It is perhaps more typical of the Pacific way of life than a full stage production would be."

CASUAL DRESS IN SHOPS AND OFFICES

Dress in Suva for the festival was strictly informal. The festival committee asked firms to allow their staff to wear aloha shirts for the two weeks.

The fashion was aloha shirts and dresses made of Island print fabric with festival symbols. The design incorporates the words South Pacific Festival of Arts with the sun and double-hulled canoe symbols from the festival posters.

Last - Minute Pull - Out By Tahiti

Tahiti pulled out of the South Pacific Arts Festival at the last minute, "because of finance difficulties", a Fiji Government Minister, the Hon. Jonati Mavoa, said at Press Conference.

Mr Mavoa, who is chairman of the festival committee said he found Tahiti's excuse surprising and hard to understand because it was regarded as one of the more affluent South Pacific countries. Small territories like Niue had managed to participate, he said.

Originally Tahiti was to send 30 dancers.

Some festival officials think the Tahiti decision reflects French annoyance with a protest made by Fiji last month against the continued nuclear bomb tests in French Polynesia.

Guam is another territory which had said it could not afford to take part in the festival, but this advice was received months ago.

As Mr Mavoa said, Guam, like Tahiti, was comparatively well off.

Sione Recorded

Sione 'Aleki, the ukulele virtuoso, recorded a programme for the Fiji Broadcasting Commission while he was in Suva for the South Pacific Festival of Arts.

KO TO VAKA IN NINTH

Mani Vaka, of Tonga, the South Seas heavyweight boxing champion, retained his title when he knocked out challenger Filimone Naliva in 2min 9sec of the ninth round of their scheduled 15 rounder at the new Suva Town Hall last Monday.

Fiji champion and Ba southpaw Naliva was counted out after being dropped by a volley of punches to the head.

Vaka returned to Nuku'alofa by air Pacific on Tuesday morning.

The champion said he hurt Naliva early in the ninth round with a solid left cross to the jaw following by a left-right combinations to the head which dropped Naliva for the mandatory count of eight.

As the fight resumed he overwhelmed Naliva with fast left - right combinations to the head which again sent Naliva crashing to the canvas for the full count.

Vaka said Naliva caught him with a terrific left cross to the head in round four, "I was really in trouble but luckily managed to defend myself. Naliva took this round".

"I fought back in the fifth round and drew blood from Naliva's nose and also cut him over the left eye with a right cross."

In round six, seven and eight, Vaka carried the fight to the fast tiring Fijian.

Commenting on the bout Vaka said, "There is a marked improvement in Naliva's style since we met last July.

He said boxing fans in Suva chaired him over their heads and danced jubilantly around the ring when the fight was over.

Fiji former heavyweight champion, Leweni Waqa and Southpaw Nadumu both challenged Vaka for a crack at the title toward the end of July or early August.

Vaka said he would accept either one of them on his terms of a $2000 purse tax-free, win, lose or draw.

CLOSING OF FESTIVAL

Extravaganza Of Lights, Sound And Colour

From the EDITOR in Suva.

The closing of the South Pacific Festival of Arts on Saturday night was just as much a triumph as the opening. Again there was the brilliant spectacle of colour, lights and action, but this time without the mud.

The weather for the whole week had been fine and warm and this probably helped draw the capacity crowd to Albert Park. There were more than for the opening; I estimated a crowd of 6000. Every inch of space where it was possible to get a view was occupied and there were even people under the open stands looking through the legs of those who were lucky enough to have a seat.

All seats for the stands were sold out days before and black-market flourishing in Suva charging anything up to $10 for a $3 ticket.

The programme was a 3½ hour non-stop extravaganza of singing and dancing from groups representing every territory taking part in the festival.

Tonga again had the honour of being the first country to perform and presented a thrilling lakalaka. The Tongans were the only group who did not need amplified sound and their singing reverberated around the arena.

A local "clown" came on to the arena while the Tongan group was performing and proceeded to do a sort of striptease act. A lot of the crowd seemed to enjoy it but some felt it was in bad taste. He finished up by offering as fakapale the layers of clothing he had taken off.

As one group finished the lights would fade, there would be a moment of darkness and then they would pick up another group in a different section of the performing area.

I learnt from the director of the festival Mr Victor Carell that the elaborate lighting incorporated four special spotlights of which there are only 20 in the world.

The lighting and colour was never more stunning than in a repeat performance of a mass ribbon dance by Chinese girls. On the opening night their ribbons became waterlogged, spoiling what we now know was a brilliant display.

Some of the performances went on for a long time and the crowd began to get restless, but before they could become bored a new sight and sound would recapture their interest.

When the group had performed the whole arena was plunged into darkness and at the far end a mass of little twinkling lights came on. This was the police band with battery operated lights attached to their instruments and uniforms and they proceeded to do a marching display in the darknes with only the lights they were wearing showing. The crowd loved it.

The finale to the pageant came when the band stopped in the centre of the ground before the VIP stand and were surrounded by all the peformers as they played "Now is the Hour", "Auld Lang Syne" and the festival song "Brothers of the Isles" in which the singing was led by the Festival Choir and the Dorian Singers from New Zealand.

The Prime Minister of Fiji, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara officially closed the festival and the band and the crowd sang "Isa Lei".

But this was not the end. After the Governor-General, Sir Robert Foster, and his wife had left, the band broke out into pop music and there was dancing with gay abandon.

By this time the performers and audience had completely mingled and the whole arena was seething mass of dancing people. This went on for about 20 minutes before the band stopped playing and the dancing stopped.

The festival was over, but the spirit engendered by this memorable event shows every indication of continuing.

BREAD MUST BE IN PLASTIC BAGS

All bakeries in Tongatapu have been notified that the Ministry of Health requires their products to be covered with dustproof and flyproof plastic bags from October 1.

Health Inspector Tupou Vaipulu said the requirement, which will be strictly enforced by the department, comes under the bakeries and bread vendors regulations of the Public Health Act, section 4, which states:

"All bread and bakery products shall be protected from dust, flies and other vermin to the satisfaction of the Medical Officer".

Mr Vaipulu said: "It appears to me that in many cases the terms of this regulation are not being implemented."

The handling of bakery products ready for immediate use by the buyer, without a cover, is unhygienic, he said.

The practice of wrapping bread with old newspaper was also unsuitable for public health, Mr Vaipulu added.

As plastic bags might not be immediately available, the requirement will not be enforced until the beginning of the last quarter of the year, to give ample time for bakeries to make necessary arrangements, he concluded.

Air Pacific To Buy Second BAC 1-11 Jet

The board of Air Pacific, at its first meeting held in Tonga, announced yesterday their unanimous agreement to purchase a second BAC 1-11 Twin Jet Aircraft for delivery from the United Kingdom in July, 1973.

The new runway at Fua'amotu airport is expected to be completed by June next year to take pure-jet aircraft.

Opportunity was also taken for Ministers to have discussions on

The Acting Chairman, Captain P. W. Howson, said the current Air Pacific BAC 1-11 Twin Jet, which entered service on April 2, 1972, was performing well up to expectations. Air Pacific management were very pleased with its performance and based on this the board were unanimous in approving the general manager's recommendation for the purchase of a second jet aircraft.

The Air Pacific board decision will be subject to ratification by the Governments of Tonga, Fiji, Western Samoa, the Gilbert and Ellice Islands and British Solomon Islands Protectorate who are shareholders in the Company, and the Boards of Air New Zealand, B.O.A.C. and Qantas who are the airline shareholders.

The Air Pacific board meeting in Tonga is the first held in a Pacific Island member country outside Fiji. Meetings have been held in Australia and New Zealand.

Yesterday afternoon, members of the board had an audience with His Majesty.

Present in Nuku'alofa for the board meeting, held at the Dateline Hotel, were Ministers from Fiji, Western Samoa and Tonga responsible for Civil Aviation, together with senior airline representatives of Boac, Qantas, Air New Zealand and officials representing the British Solomon Islands and the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

At Tuesday's Tonga Visitors Bureau reception for the board of Air Pacific the Hon Ve'ehala, The Fiji Minister of Communication, Works and Tourism, the Hon Ratu Penaia Ganilau, the Acting Prime Minister the Hon Mahe Tupouniua, the Western Samoa Minister of Works, the Hon Tupuola Efi, and the Minister of Works and Education, the Hon Dr Langi Kavaliku.

'INOKE FALETAU NEW HIGH COMMISSIONER

Mr 'Inoke Faletau has been appointed Tonga's High Commissioner in London replacing Baron Vaea. The date of Mr Faletau's departure for Britain has not yet been decided.

Mr Faletau, who for more than a year has been seconded to the University of the South Pacific in Suva as external relations officer, returned to the Kingdom on Saturday and resumed duty as Secretary to Government. Mr Tanielu Tufui has reverted to the office of Crown Solicitor.

On the departure of Mr Faletau for London, Mr Tufui will revert to his former duties as Secretary to Government and Crown Solicitor.

Airlines Hold Key To Tonga Tourism Says Minister

The key to development of tourism in Tonga was held by Air Pacific and Polynesian Airlines and the Kingdom's efforts to increase the flow of visitors would have only marginal effect without improved frequencies and reduced fares for tour groups, the Acting Prime Minister, the Hon Mahe Tupouniua, said in his speech at a reception at the Tonga Visitors' Bureau on Tuesday afternoon for officials and airline representatives attending the meeting of the board of Air Pacific held in Nuku'alofa yesterday.

The Minister said His Majesty's Government would be following the deliberations of the board with the keenest interest.

It was not the Government's wish to develop the tourist industry in Tonga for a mass market, the Minister said.

"We are too much aware of the strains and stresses which uncontrolled tourism can produce in a society to fall into this error. We wish to avoid these pitfalls as far as possible and do all we can to ensure that Tonga will remain a desirable visitor destination for your children's children and their grandchildren," the Minister told the delegates.

"We are also aware that too fast a growth rate would extend our infrastructure development beyond acceptable limits," the Minister continued. "I am told, however, that we can absorb a growth rate in air visitors of up to three times the present rate during the next three years and with your co-operation we are confident we can achieve this target."

The Hon Mahe Tupouniua outlined recent developments in accommodation and travel in the Kingdom. He said the Port of Refuge Hotel in Vava'u would be officially opened by His Majesty on October 2 and that it was the Government's intention to extend the International Dateline Hotel by 30 rooms and four suites.. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Truth" Articles

Dear Sir.—I have heard with interest that you have printed matter related to Truth's article of May 16.

Please find enclosed a copy of the reply myself and Graeme Baumgart sent to Truth, which was not printed.

By not printing our direct criticism, Truth has proved that it is a low-calibre paper and lacks integrity. However, it does have the largest circulation in New Zealand, which is the most worrying feature concerning its sensationalist-type reporting.

Graeme and myself were both VSA teachers in 1970; Graeme at Fatai and myself at Holonga. We both feel ashamed and disgusted at the Truth May 16 article. We feel ashamed that a New Zealand newspaper would print such lies and is misconceived about a country which the reporter has never seen. We were proud to live in Tonga and will be proud to return.

I hope that you can print some of our reply to Truth's article, and point out to the people of Tonga that Truth doesn't print any criticism of itself—the truth.

THE EDITOR
"N.Z. TRUTH"

Having taught in Tongan villages and lived with Tongan families throughout 1970, we read the two articles in "Truth" dated May 9 and 16, with a mixed feeling of disgust and dismay. We both feel that if "Truth" had named its informants (Mr Clive Edwards being the only informant named) then this may have added more weight to otherwise badly-stated, misconceived articles—more about that later!

First, with regard to the illegal immigrants from Tonga, the figures and corresponding statements that "Truth" makes are conflicting, to say the least. I quote from "Truth" Tuesday, May 9, "Most (Tongans) will enter the country with a three-months visitors' permit and stop on as illegal immigrants." "Truth" then states that there are 1400 Tongans who came to New Zealand last year on these three-month permits, and at least 2000 would come this year. Then "Truth claims: "At the moment there are more than 500 illegal immigrants in the Auckland area". This figure of 500 is not even a majority of 1971's figures, let alone all of the previous years, which simply shows the inaccuracy of the first quotation.

These figures show that the majority of Tongans who come to New Zealand do not want to stay here for ever. This fact if shown even more in the results of a study by Mr P. Karalus (at present residing in Auckland, himself married to a Tongan) on those 60 Tongans who worked in the Hutt Valley under the special government scheme. Mr Karalus discovered that only a third of those in the first scheme in 1971 wished to stay on in New Zealand after their six months permit had expired. It must be remembered that this is only a third of those who wanted to come in the first place, and not of the total population. Thus, the figures drop even lower.

One of our main complaints is the gross cultural ethnocentricity shown by the Auckland woman (see article May 16) married to a Tongan, who claims that "Tongans live like pigs", and are ruled by "slum-lords" (nobles). We wonder why this woman can make so emphatic a statement and yet not have the courage to have her name published.

We also wonder how long she has spent in Tonga, and whether she can speak Tongan. Her comments display a complete lack of understanding of Tongan culture and values.

All her comments on the Tongan way of life are based on her own cultural concepts—mainly materialistic ones.

We both personally feel that the question of illegal immigrants from Tonga should be discussed in New Zealand newspapers, provided the true facts are shown—this would automatically involve discussing New Zealand's immigration policy for Tongans—this policy must be one of the major reasons for Tongans having to enter New Zealand illegally. Social conditions for Polynesians entering New Zealand should also be discussed, as should exploitation of Pacific Islanders by New Zealand—e.g. shipping companies, the distributors of Pacific Island produce, the landlords; and many New Zealanders racialist attitudes towards "islanders".

In other words, attack this problem from New Zealand's end, and let the Tongans themselves fix up their end, which they are quite capable of doing.

We were both amazed at the amount of space that was given to the Auckland woman, with her ethnocentric views of Tonga.

We certainly didn't live like pigs in Tonga, our Tongan families didn't live like pigs, and neither did our respective villages, nor any other Tongan people we came into contact with during our year's stay. We would be delighted to go back and "live with the pigs" in the future, and as a matter of fact, we both intend to do just that.

Dear Sir.—I read Dr Joe Fanamanu's letter to the "Truth" newspaper which was published in your Chronicle but fortunately not published in New Zealand. I am glad that it was not published here because of the following reasons.

Dr Fanamanu, although he is not the accredited representative of the Tongan Government in New Zealand is nevertheless regarded as such by some people. If other people don't regard him as such, they do at least look upon him as a Tongan Government official, which he is.

It is therefore very saddening to see him refer to overstayers convicted or otherwise as hoodlums and troublemakers. I am sure he doesn't mean it or alternatively he doesn't know what he is talking about.

He should know that all visitors who come here are screened by the Tongan Police and only after they are satisfied that the visitors have cleared Police records they are permitted to go overseas.

Where does Dr Fanamanu get his information from that they are hoodlums and troublemakers?

If Dr Fanamanu cares to check these people before accusing them of being what they are not, he will find that most of the overstayers are people with four to six young children, working here to educate their children or trying to build a house. Are they hoodlums or troublemakers because they care for their children or try to provide a home.

Although his letter was well intentioned and in some ways should be applauded by Tongans because of its patriotic tone, it clearly shows he is out of touch with the position of overstayers.

In the area I live there are at least 40 Tongans overstayers. In Otara, Otahuhu, Papatoetoe, Penrose, New Market, Newton, Kingsland, Eden, Ponsonby, Grey Lynn, New Lynn where Tongans tend to congregate the number of overstayers in anyone area would be greater than that in Mangere.

Dr Fanamanu should report the name of the girl who has repeatedly since her return from Tonga in December, 1971 been responsible for false and vicious attacks on Tonga in the Sunday Newspapers and the Truth.

R. G. M. GUTTENBEIL.

Dear Sir.—I am a Tongan living in Tonga. I have read N.Z. "Truth" newspaper about Tonga. I am very sad and I know it is not the truth about Tonga.

Many years ago I was friends with many Europeans from Australia, America and N ew Zealand and they thought and said Tonga was beautiful, peaceful, clean and healthy.

I have been a Tongan teacher for over 32 years I love to keep Tonga, in the minds of all Tongans in the present and future the real paradise of the world as I think only Tonga is, Tonga can live happily by keeping our own Tongan customs.

In my opinion the Tongan way of life is suited to the climate and environment of Tonga. Tongans do not need a big house like Europeans do. A Tongan family spends most of the time outside because the weather is hot and humid. They do not need to seek shelter in the house except for sleeping or when it rains. A European could come to Tonga and look at the Tongan style of housing and make a very wrong judgement about Tonga.

A Tongan kitchen is outside and away from the house. The toilet and bath house are also separate structures from the house. The main Tongan house is the sleeping area. Tongans have few possessions so they need a very small space for storing these things. Using European standards to judge the Polynesian life style is very wrong and misleading.

Again judging the Tongan income by European standards is wrong. Tongan need very little or no money to live. A Tongan could live without money for at least a year or more. He is not dependent or commodities from the store. He gets his food from the bush and sea. His house can be built from natural materials. He may need some money for his

"I'd Like a Hundred Just Like Them!"

Freezing-chamber foreman Archie Graham explains the system of tagging sides of beef to three of the Tongans in his charge. They are, from left, Dave Malu'ifonua (Kolomotu'a), Dave Hanisi (Vaotu'u) and Israel Fonuanisa (Veitongo).

TONGANS IN N.Z. ARE MOST WELCOME AT THE GEAR MEAT COMPANY

Mr Archie Graham, freezing-chamber foreman in the Gear Meat Company's freezing works at Petone, New Zealand, is impressed with the five Tongans in his charge.

"Good? I'd like a hundred just like them" he said recently. "They give me only one problem—how to stop them working."

Part of a group of 81 that arrived in New Zealand in February for six months under the Hutt Valley Chamber of Commerce scheme, the Tongans like the work, although it is quite different from anything they have ever done before. Of the 10 Tongans with the Gear Company, five work in the freezing chambers, three in the gutting room and two in the hides and skins department.

The scheme, designed to ease a labour shortage in the Hutt Valley and to give Tongans lucrative employment in New Zealand, is now in its second year. Although last year some Tongans were housed at the company's hostel, this is the first year that Tongans brought to New Zealand under the scheme have actually worked for the company.

They are able to earn more money at the freezing works than in most other Hutt Valley industries. The rates of pay are high and as a 12-hour day is worked six days a week at the height of the killing season, the basic rate of something more than NZ$60 a week is considerably swollen by overtime and penal rates.

The most highly paid are those who work in the freezing chambers.

The foreman, Mr Graham, said that the five Tongans working in his department had adjusted to conditions remarkably well.

"Coming straight from the tropics to work long hours in sub-zero temperatures meant that we had to ease them into the job gradually, but they were soon working as vigorously as anyone else," he said.

Mr Graham said that the Tongans got on well with their workmates—Europeans, Maoris and Samoans. Because the Tongans were quiet and good-natured and had pleasing personalities, their fellow workers went out of their way to give them any assistance they could. There was a language problem, but he, as a Maori, noticed a marked similarity between Tongan and his own tongue.

The works manager, Mr O. N. Clayton, said that the Tongans were outstanding workers and were giving first-class service. Their attendance record was excellent. They were strong, wellbuilt lads and had adjusted well to the climate, the work and the food. Apart from some influenza when they first arrived, there were no health problems.

The Tongans with the Gear Company live in the company hostel where they are well looked after; meals are subsidised by the firm. Mr Clayton said that, even if there were no jobs available at the works when future groups of Tongans came to New Zealand, accommodation for some of them at least could always be found at the hostel.

Freezing-chamber foreman Archie Graham hopes to see some of his lads again after they have returned home. He plans a trip to Australia on company business in August and, if time permits, he will return to New Zealand by way of Tonga.

VSAs Will Continue To Fill Valuable Need

The New Zealand Volunteer Service Abroad school-lever programme will continue to fill a valuable need for some yet, particularly in Tonga, says the director of VSA, Mr Gordon Skipper in his annual report.

In some countries the school-leaver programme was beginning to outlive its usefulness, he said, and the number of requests for this group of untrained volunteers had fallen slightly.

"The trend was not unexpected," Mr Skipper said, "and does not generally imply dissatisfaction with volunteers performance in the past; its real significance is that as training programmes in developing countries achieve their targets, competent local young men and women are becoming available in quantity.

The total VSA strength in the Pacific was 120 and over a quarter of this was in Tonga, including half the school-leavers.

To fill the 38 requests received mainly from Tonga for school-leavers to serve in the current year, VSA interviewed 176 applicants from whom 45 were selected: this mean seven were not placed in assignments abroad.

Mr Skipper said in reviewing VSA's tenth year said "we can record with some satisfaction that the total volunteer roll passed the 500 mark—infact it will shortly reach 600—and that the demand for VSA qualified volunteers remained at a very high level."

Town Down, But Certainly Not Out

BY HOPOATE MOENGĀNGONGO

Town came back after trailing 10–13 at three minutes to fulltime to beat Country 14–13 in the first trial for selecting teams to play Fiji next month.

Country kicked off and kept Town in their own half for much of the first 15 minutes. It was unfortunate they missed easy penalties. The fourth attempt at goal for Country by replacement halfback, Mosese Fiefia, put them on the lead 3–0.

Fifteen minutes to halftime, on Country's 25, Town halfback, Metuisquеezed through a gap and sent five-eight 'Uhila to score under the post. 'Ilavalu added the extra two points with the conversion to put Town in the lead 6–3.

Five minutes later, Town left-winger Mōsese Tu'ipulotu took the ball from broken play, midway 25 and halfway on Country side, dashed 30 yards to score to the left of the upright. 'Ilavalu failed with the conversion.

The score at halftime, Town 10, Country 3.

Second half saw Country much stronger and Captain Sione Mafi, landed two penalties to bring the margin closer 10–9 to Town.

Halfway through from a scrum on Town 25 Country No. 8 Sione Mafi engineered a movement on the blindside to send flanker Fakahau to score. Sione Mafi missed the conversion.

Score: Country 13 Town 10.

Three minutes to full time. Siō, breaking from a lineout on Country 25 dribbled the ball to the goal line then dived over to score, putting Town back on the lead. 'Ilavalu missed the conversion.

Score at full time: Town 14 Country 13.

Tonga can expect to field a very strong team against Fiji next month if the high standard of rugby in the first trial on Saturday is any indication.

The back play was first class and the selectors will have a hard time deciding who will be on the test side.

Pānuve Fakava, second five-eight for Country, who has been a regular on the Tonga side since 1963, but missed out on the Samoa tour last month, played terrifically on Saturday, giving Sami Lātū a hard time. He handled the ball well, and more important his experience showed. Sami was on the team that toured Samoa.

The Town centre, Vainikolo had a busy day trying to run past Taufu'i. He was well marked and I think Taufu'i was the best defender on the field.

Taufu'i is a strong and determine runner and he will be giving the Fijians a lot to worry about Polutele and Siaosi Selupe I dominated the lineouts for Town and were very aggressive in the tights. Both men were on the Samoa tour and were very fit. Siaosi was captain of the touring side.

For Country, Etuate and Naufahu, the locks, toiled hard in the tight and showed great promise, but lacked height and weight to match the two Town locks.

The forward that caught my eye was the Country captain and No. 8, Sione Mafi who showed up well in all aspects of play—tights loose and cover defence. He was the mastermind of several good movements by Country.

The game brought into view two very promising players on the Country team. They are winger 'Inoke and flanker Fakahau.

'Inoke turned up well on the right wing for Country. He is a strong and determined runner and very sound on defence. He has a great future in rugby and I think he is one of the prospects for this matches against Fiji.

Fakahau playing his first big game showed great potential, and broke down several Town movements.

Kimbu and Siaosi Selupe II the Town flankers also put on a great show displaying their great ability as loose forwards.

'Uhila at first five-eight for Town was on form and showed deceptive running.

In the earlier games, Colts defeated Combined Islands 21–3.

It was interesting to note some very promising players who played remarkably well, like Taufa and Siale in the backs and Fakavā, 'Onetone and Fa'aleo in the forwards.

The Colts scored three tries and three penalties to Combined islands one penalty.

The final trial will be on Saturday when Possibles meet Probables, then a training squad will be named.

Plea For Dedication To Shipping Work

An appeal for dedication to the seagoing staff of the newly-formed Pacific Navigation Company in a letter from the general manager, Captain C. H. Hill-Willis.

On May 8 all the ships operated by the Tonga Shipping Agency on behalf of Government, Tonga Copra Board and Tonga Produce Board became the fleet of the Pacific Navigation Company Limited and Tonga now has its own commercial shipping line.

Captain Hill-Willis said: "This is a big step forward and will, we hope, lead to further expansion and progress in the shipping world. It is now up to YOU, for you now have the opportunity to show, not only to Tonga, but to the world that Tongans really are a seafaring people and that the oft heard title of "Vikings of the South Pacific" is not just an unfounded legend.

"You are now members of a service that will be a credit to both yourself and Tonga.

"Remember that yours is the responsibility of representing Tonga overseas and only by creating a favourable impression can we succeed. Your job depends entirely on the fares paid by passengers and the freight payments made for cargo carried. It is therefore, not only your duty, but in the interests of yourself and your family to ensure that passengers are treated as honoured guests and properly taken care of and that cargo is carefully watched to make sure it is not damaged or lost. These points are of utmost importance and notice will be taken of officers and ratings who pay special attention to these things.

"We are embarking of a most exciting period of Tongan history, which could be called a "voyage of discovery", for we have to find out if the people of the S.W. Pacific and the traders of Australia and other countries are going to trust us with their cargoes. This they will only do if they feel that we can carry out the job honestly and correctly, if our ships are clean and well kept and on time. They will judge these things from what they see and hear about YOU", Captain Hill-Willis said.

PIPA's FUTURE CRUCIAL CONFERENCE DECISION

The future of the Pacific Island Producers' Association is the crucial decision the association's conference meeting this week at Rarotonga in the Cook Islands, has to decide.

PIPA'S future has been in doubt since the South Pacific Forum member governments decided earlier this year to set up a new trade organisation, the South Pacific Bureau for Economic Co-operation.

The Bureau will have its headquarters in Suva and deal mainly with regional trade matters.

One of PIPA's most important functions has been to co-ordinate island trade, particularly in produce like bananas.

The possibility of PIPA being absorbed into the new bureau has been discussed.

At this year's forum meeting in Canberra, island government leaders were not able to reach a decision about PIPA's future and left the issue for the PIPA conference.

The conference began on Monday and a provisional agenda listed PIPA's future in relation to the forum as the first major item.

Tonga's delegation to the conference is headed by the Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake, and includes the Director of Agriculture, Mr J. Pitman. the Development Officer, Mr H. V. Barnard, the Assistant Secretary of Natural Resources, T'a Taumoepeau, and T. Nakao representing the growers.

The Fiji Times Political Reporter, Matt Wilson, says one problem of which the PIPA delegates will be acutely concious is that some PIPA member—like the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony—do not belong to the South Pacific Forum.

The forum is for independent countries and any decision to absorb PIPA into the new economic bureau must be considered in the context of a plea by Papua-New Guinea leaders for admission to the forum. Island leaders do not favour the Australian territory's membership until it becomes independent.

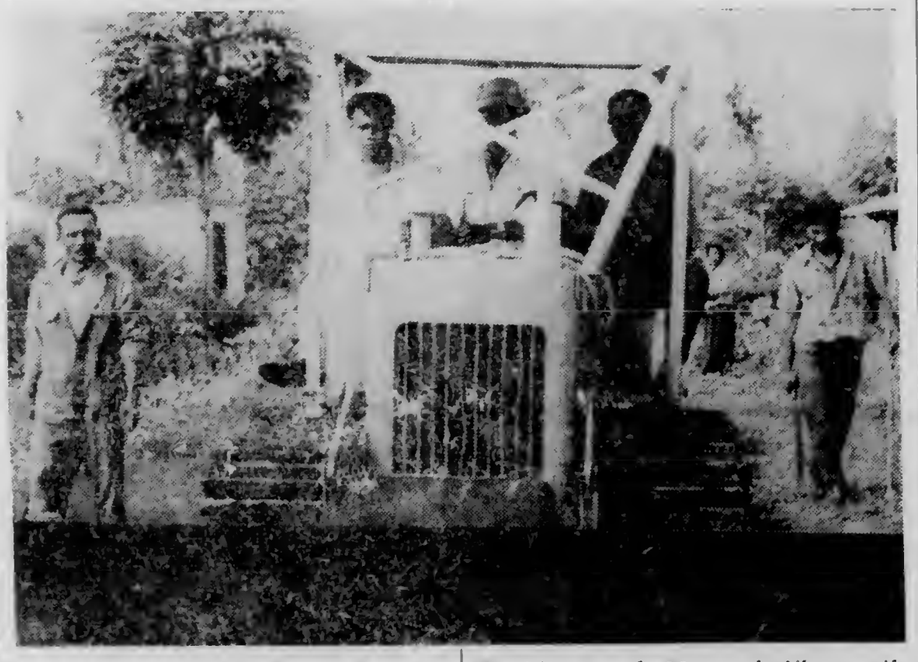
Any move directly involving colonies like the Gilbert and Ellice Islands in forum matters might be interpreted as strengthening Papua-New Guinea's case for membership.

The Gilbert and Ellice Islands would come within the forum's ambit if PIPA became a division of the new bureau for economic co-operation.

Matt Wilson says the conference will involve intense discussion about the possibility of PIPA continuing to function separately, but without duplicating tasks entrusted to the bureau.

The PIPA conference will discuss the banana and copra industries of the member countries and report progress towards the establishment of a regional shipping line.

Helping Themselves



Residents of Houmakelikao village on the eastern outskirts of Ma'ufanga are busy this week building a new three-quarter mile road.

It crosses from Hekoni road in the centre of the village to the immediate west of Mr Peter Warner's boatyard on Vuna Road.

In the picture a bulldozer hired by the residents to clear the road.

The cost of a substantial part of the construction is being met by Mr Warner.

Policy Statement On Tourism

application was also being considered for the building of an international resort hotel at Ha'atafu Beach.

Fua'amotu Airport was being extended to medium-jet standard and a start had been made on a light aircraft in Vava'u. He said the Government was prepared to investigate the development of the Vava'u airfield to turbo-prop standards.

The Minister concluded by saying that it was realised that tourist development would bring change just as education and economic development in other spheres does.

"The strains and stresses that an increasing visitor flow will have on our custom and culture is recognised and will have to be faced. It needs courage, foresight and careful planning to develop a tourist industry, especially in a country the size of our Kingdom."

The Kingdom would work with its neighbours—Fiji, American Samoa and Western Samoa—to ensure that the industry is developed rationally and to the lasting benefit of the people, he said.

matters of mutual aviation interest before the board meeting.

In all, about 20 delegates and officials were present.

The programme of entertainment prepared for the delegates included a buffet supper given by the Acting Minister of Works, the Hon Ve'ehala, a reception by the Hon Dr Langi Kavaliku, who is the Tonga member of the Air Pacific board, a reception by the Tonga Visitors Bureau and a cocktail party given by the Tonga Tourist Association at the hotel last night.

Delegates were taken on sightseeing tours and airline representatives were invited to inspect the developments at Fua'amotu to prepare it for pure jet services.

CHRONICLE

This And That

CHRONICLE DIARY

The eyes of the world on Tonga. Japanese and Australian photographers and TV cameraman have recently been shooting the Kingdom, a Canadian TV team is here at present and a BBC team will be filming for the TV children's programme "Blue Peter." In about two weeks a yacht called the "Four Winds" is expected from the U.S. and will feature in a film being made about a teenage boy who sails the Pacific.

A Texas policeman spotted a couple sitting in a tree. "Who are you and what are you doing?" he asked. "I'm Tarzan," said the young man. "And I'm Jane," said the woman. "Oh yeah, then where's Cheetah? asked the officer. The couple produced their pet chimpanzee, who had been romping on a higher limb of the tree.

The Chronicle compounded an error it made in 1968 when it said in the caption to last week's front-page picture that June 3 was the anniversary of the roval double wedding of Their Majesties, King Taufa'ahau Tupou IV and Queen Mata'aho, and Their Roval Highnesses, Prince Tu'ipelehake and Princess Melenaite. The actual date was June 10, last Saturday, and we took our information from a special edition of the Chronicle on July 3, 1968 marking the 50th birthday of His Majesty, which apparently was wrong. We apologise for this mistake and for any embarrassment it may have caused.

THE SCRIBES.

FILMING OPENING

For the first time, His Majesty's Speech from the Throne at the opening of Parliament this morning will be filmed, by special permission.

A Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV team at present making a film in Tonga for world-wide distribution, will also shoot His Majesty's drive from the Palace to Parliament as well as scenes inside the House.

SELLING THE KINGDOM

A promotional tour of Australia and New Zealand begins on Saturday for the Tourist Officer, Mr Peter Wallis.

In Australia Qantas will be the hosts for seminars in Melbourne and Sydney on tourism in Tonga at which Mr Wallis will meet tour operators and the Press.

The Qantas sales manager, Pacific Islands, Mr W. R. Vidler, told the Chronicle Qantas was helping the Tonga Visitors Bureau to sell the Kingdom as a tourist destination. At present most tours terminated in Fiji, but Mr Vilder said Qantas was anxious to create more interest in Tonga and have it included in package tours.

To this end, a team of 10 tourist agents from Australia would be coming to Tonga from July 18 to 20, Mr Vidler said.

Where Time Begins

Nuku'alofa, Thursday, June 22, 1972 Vol. IX No. 3 3 Seniti.

KING TO LEAD FLAGRAISING ON TELEKI ON MONDAY

The flag will be raised on the new Tongan islands of Teleki Tonga and Teleki Tokelau on Minerva Reefs in a ceremony on Monday in which His Majesty, King Taufa'ahau Tupou IV will take part.

The interisland vessel "'Olovaha" has been chartered by the Government and will leave on Saturday night at 11.50 for the reefs. It is expected to arrive early on Monday morning and leave as soon as possible after the ceremony, arriving back in Nuku'alofa on Tuesday night.

The official party is expected to include the Deputy Prime Minister, the Hon. Mahe Tupouniua and representatives of the Legislative Assembly .

Space is also available on the "'Olovaha" for 150 paying passengers at T$8 each. Passengers will have to provide their own food.

His Majesty proclaimed Minerva Reefs part of the Kingdom of Tonga in his Speech from the Throne last Thursday morning at the opening of the Legislative Assembly. He gave details of two artificial islands which had been built on the Minervas—one on the south reef and one on the north.

The Legislative Assembly sat in special session on Thursday afternoon to pass the necessary Act.

The proclamation, in a Tonga Government Gazette Extraordinary, issued the same day said :

> WHEREAS the Reefs known as North Minerva Reef and South Minerva Reef have long served as fishing grounds for the Tongan people and have long been regarded as belonging to the Kingdom of Tonga· AND WHERES the Kingdom of Tonga has now created on these Reefs islands known as Teleki Tokelau and Teleki Tonga; AND WHEREAS it is expedient that we should now confirm the rights of the Kingdom of Tonga to these islands; THEREFORE we do hereby AFFIRM and PROCLAIM that the islands of Teleki Tokelau and Teleki Tonga and all islands, rocks. reefs, foreshores and waters lying within a radius of 12 miles thereof are part of our Kingdom of Tonga.

His Majesty said in his speech that provision had been made in the Estimates for the construction of two lighthouses on the reefs, to be maintained by Tonga.

The "Hifofua", with the Minister of Police, the Hon. 'Akau'ola on board and the working party which built the two island, is expected to return to Nuku'alofa tomorrow.

The new Tongan island of Teleki Tonga on Minerva Reef at low tide. This picture and others on Pages 8 & 9 were taken by the Chronicle and Government photographer, Lisiate Tūlua.

Minerva reefs are about 180 miles away from 'Ata, the southermost island in the Kingdom and about 260 miles from Tongatapu.

FOOTNOTE : The last time a similar flagraising ceremony was held was in 1930 on Falcon Island, the "jack-in-the-box" island at present submerged.

PRISONER KILLED

A prisoner died while working at Minerva Reefs and another prisoner has been charged in connection with the death. The body of the dead man and the arrested man were returned to Nuku'alofa on the "'Ata" on Monday, June 11.

No further information can be released at this stage as the matter is sub-judice—a legal expression in Latin meaning that is under consideration by the courts and not yet decided.

Dear Sir, — I wish to refer to your article on Page 3 of the Chronicle issue of June 1 concerning the British Aid Programme.

There are two minor and one major errors :—

"Truth" Articles

Dear Sir—The Chronicle of May 25 carried the headline Stories Damaging to Tonga's Reputation. The phenomenon of sorcerers is nothing new and is found in any country in the world. The matter of overstaying permit is no exception. New Zealand has its share of this and shown its concern via "Truth".

I am most disturbed with the mention of 'Living like Pigs'. One can only conclude that the woman who made the accusation took her own domestic standard as a criterion for passing such a sweeping judgement on Tonga.

The standard of living in Tonga is nowhere near that claimed by the woman in the May 16 issue of 'Truth'. I can say that Tongans are far better off than several thousand Europeans in the world today who stay in parks and hunt for food in garbage bins and dumps. Their clothing is no better and one finds it difficulty to refrain from crying at such deplorable condition. All this is unknown in Tonga.

Further, living like pigs is a little better than behaving like pigs. I will never forget one freezing cold evening on a train among a whole lot of Europeans and without a single coloured person in sight I noticed a rather elderly man who was without any warm clothing and was on the verge of dying from cold. None of the others paid any attention to him. I took my coat off and give it to old chap. A young woman may yell for help and finally drown while a whole crowd watches with no move towards giving aid. Children are born and left on the streets sides. What sort of behaviour do we take this to be then?

With such a quick diversity of behavioural styles and with racial discrimination as an example, one is always left wondering. Is it civilization? Is it European? Strife and even armed clashes today are product of discrimination and are therefore not the least bit surprising. May I suggest that the correspondent in the May 16 issue of Truth take another look at her statement.

M. 'A-TONGA.

* * *

Dear Sir — I asked that this letter be published regarding the article in the 'New Zealand Truth' and the letter by Joe Fanamanu.

The 'Truth' does not name and what the New Zealand woman who is married to a Tongan, saw and said about Tonga is also justified.

Tonga is one of the poorest countries in the world and poverty is widespread. However a man of moderate wisdom must see things is an understand it.

The living conditions are not up to the standard of the civilised world, especially people who are unemployed or people who are employed but under paid.

I am not sure yet of the great flow of Tongan overseas and people stowing away. Countries like Australia, New Zealand and United States offer a better social and political life. The people are being helped to have a good job house, food and better social life. Tonga has none of these to offer.

If people were permitted to migrate overseas I am sure no one would want to remain in Tonga.

In countries like New Zealand no one pays any taxes unless they have some source of income. But in Tonga its different; every male over 16 has to pay taxes irrespective of whether he owns a tax allotment or not or whether he has a job or not. Is this in accordance with the principle of a Christian country?

Would anyone staying in a good country decides to stowaway and not want to come back? So, it must be better overseas, for better money, food, house, clothes. And better still no tax for nothing.

TEVITA LEI MO'ONI.

U.S.P. CENTRE NEWS

Last week there was a session for some of the external Diploma of Education students on the PEACESAT satellite communication. Further sessions are being arranged for students in individual subjects to be able to talk to their tutors.

In the evening class programme, there are additional places in the 'English for your Job' course taught by Vake Aho at 6.30 p.m. on Wednesdays, at the Centre. This is a very useful class for people whose work brings them in contact with people from overseas, whether they are in shops or offices or other employment.

We expect shortly to have two interesting tapes of lectures recently given at U.S.P. The first is Dr. Illyich whose work and ideas on education in Central America are among the most stimulating in recent education. The second is Dr. Lloyd Best, of the University of the West Indies, on the economics of developing countries.

If people are interested in hearing these, please contact the Centre so meetings can be arranged for listening and discussion.

We much regret the disappointment over Professor Crocombe's lecture on Monday and that the notice of its cancellation did not reach everyone. It is hoped to have a new date for this before long.

IMPROVEMENTS TO RADIO - TELEPHONE SERVICE THROUGHOUT THE KINGDOM

Improvements have been made recently to the radio-telephone service in the Kingdom, reports the Superintendent of the Telegraph and Telephones Department, Mr G. T .Simmons.

The radio-telephone service to Niuafo'ou was extended on Friday morning when test calls were made from Nuku'alofa.

The Secretary to Government, 'Inoke Faletau, who made one of the first calls, said the reception was "loud and clear."

Installation of the new radio equipment at Niuafo'ou was made by a party of T. & T. Department technicians consisting of the supervising radio technician, Mr Sid Glenn, Lemeki Malū and Viliami Vaka'uta.

Radio-telephone services to Niuatoputapu were opened on April 26, after new equipment was installed.

The department is at present replacing the equipment in all stations in the Kingdom with effcient, modern transmitters and receivers.

In addition to Niuafo'ou and Niuatoputapu, installation of new equipment has been completed at Vava'u, Ha'apai and 'Eua. Installation of new equipment at the remaining two telegraph stations, Nomuka and Ha'afeva will be completed during the next few weeks.

New transmitters for the internal services have also been installed at Nuku'alofa.

The improved technical standard of the Kingdom's radio-telephone stations, has in addition to enabling the service to be extended to all stations throughout the Kingdom, made an improvement to the quality of the service, said Mr Simmons.

An improved type of radio-telephone terminal and switching unit is to be installed at Nuku-'alofa during the next few weeks and is expected to make a substantial improvement to the quality of the overseas telephone calls. When this new terminal is brought into service it will also become possible to extend overseas telephone calls to all stations throughout the Kingdom.

Summary Of King's Speech From The Throne

At The Opening Of Legislative Assembly

Need Seen Now For Larger Patrol Boat

A much larger double-duty patrol craft than the small boat already on order for the Tonga Defence Force, was being considered under the development programme, because of the extension of Tonga's territorial waters, His Majesty, King Taufa'ahau Tupou IV, said in his Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Legislative Assembly last Thursday morning.

His Majesty pointed out the distance from Teleki Tonga in the south of the Kingdom to Niuafo'ou in the north was about 525 miles.

His Majesty also spoke about the progress of work at Fua'amotu Airport to bring it up to the requirements for medium jets and the preparation of the new airstrip at Vava'u for improved communications and national progress.

His Majesty added that the possibility of establishing a jet port up to international standards was under consideration.

Speaking about shipping under the Pacific Navigation Co. Ltd., His Majesty said that after three voyages, the "Tauloto" was carrying a capacity cargo from Australia to island ports.

The time had come, His Majesty said, to consider whether to employ two vessels, one to Sydney and one to Melbourne, or buy or charter a larger vessel.

Together with the employment schemes of Tongan nationals overseas, His Majesty pointed out the importance of developing new local industries to take up the slack of unemployment, particularly of those without land.

Provided sufficient capital could be found, the proposed scheme by the Indian Government for a complex of small-scale industries should be encouraged, His Majesty said.

There would be a slight deficit in the new estimates, His Majesty said, and there was a need therefore to introduce new revenue-bearing ventures "to meet our growing national obligations".

One way which had been suggested was to develop Nuku'alofa into a transhipment port. Cargoes from Europe, the United Kingdom, New Zealand and elsewhere could be run direct to Tonga and cleared by transhipment to other island ports.

His Majesty is filmed on his arrival for the opening of the Legislative Assembly by a TV cameraman of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission. A team is in the kingdom until next week filming a documentary for world-wide distribution.

Laboratory Opened By Her Majesty

The World Health Organisation Filariasis and Vector Mosquito Research Laboratory was officially opened by Her Majesty Queen Mata'aho on Saturday night. She was accompanied by Princess Pilolevu.

A cocktail party was held to celebrate the opening and the host was the director of the laboratory, Dr J. C. Hitchcock.

Before Her Majesty was handed the key of the laboratory by Dr Hitchcock, the building was blessed by the Cahtolic Vica-General, Father S. Foliaki.

Her Majesty inspected the laboratory and was later followed by the other guests, numbering about 400.

Entertainment was provided by the Police Band and a dance group.

The laboratory is at "Menlo Park" on the 'Alaivahamama'o Bypass.

Corporation's New Ventures

The Commonwealth Development Corporation intends to begin new ventures in Tonga, Western Samoa, the New Hebrides and New Guinea.

In the British Solomon Islands the C.D.C. will supply most of the $6 million needed for an 8000-acre oil palm plantation at Guadalcanal.

No specific project for Tonga has been quoted.

Although it has an obligation to make enough profit to cover its costs, the C.D.C's objective is to see ventures started by it turned over to wholly local ownership.

PIPA CONFERENCE IN COOK ISLANDS

REGIONAL SHIPPING LINE "WOULD LOSE MONEY"

A regional shipping line would lose money, according to a report studied by island leaders at the annual conference of the Pacific Island Producer's Association in the Cook Islands.

But the leaders have decided still to press ahead with their plans for a shipping company owned jointly by the island territories.

PIPA has studied the possibility of setting up a regional shipping line based on the Pacific Navigation Co. Ltd., formerly the Tonga Shipping Agency.

A report submitted by a firm of accountants referred to some of the agency's economic problems and pointed out that the agency had continued to make losses between 1965 and 1970 and these were expected to be a little higher in 1971.

The accountants felt that a regional shipping line would continue to make losses and would need to be subsidised by member governments.

The conference was told that the Cook Islands had bought a half share in the ship "Lorena" and took note of the transfer of the Tonga Shipping Agency's assets to Pacific Navigation.

Delegates from Tonga and the Cook Islands confirmed that these moves were merely to meet local shipping requirements. They said their countries were still committed to the proposed regional shipping line.

The conference decided the joint working committee should make further studies and recommendations and submit a report to a meeting in Apia, Western Samoa, in September.

TO OPERATE FOR AT LEAST 3 MORE YEARS

The Pacific Islands Producers' Association (PIPA) will continue to operate as an independent organisation for at least three more years, delegates attending the seventh conference of PIPA decided in Rarotonga, the capital of the Cook Islands.

Doubts about PIPA's future arose when the South Pacific Forum decided earlier this year to establish another regional trade organisation, the South Pacific Bureau for Economic Co-operation.

Observers suggested that PIPA, which has its headquarters in Suva, might be absorbed into the new bureau.

The future of PIPA was one of the main items on the Rarotonga conference agenda.

Delegates to the conference were met at Rarotonga airport by the Premier of the Cook Islands, Mr Albert Henry.

Replying to Mr Henry's welcome, the leader of Tonga's delegation, the Prime Minister, H.R.H. Prince Tu'ipelehake, emphasised the need for all South Pacific peoples to be "fellow travellers" in the future development of the region.

BULK BUYING

The Prime Minister of Fiji, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara urged the conference to consider establishing a bulk-purchasing agency.

Island territories have previously considered buying certain imports jointly in bulk as a means of cutting costs.

The conference discussed banana production problems. Delegates were told the quality of island bananas seemed to be improving and stem-end rot disease appeared under control.

There was discussion about banana prices. PIPA's secretariat will collect information from all the island banana producing countries about production costs.

H.R.H. Princess Melenaite and wives of other delegation leaders were the guests of the Cook Island Women Federation.

NEW COCONUT PRODUCTS

Massive changes in the regional coconut industry are planned by the member countries of PIPA.

The conference decided to move away from traditional copra production to new coconut industries.

Coconut planters in PIPA countries have been badly hit in recent months by a slump in the world copra prices.

Delegation leaders studied a general review of the coconut industry and decided to launch a drive for new markets and products like desiccated coconut, coconut meal for livestock, coconut fibre and margarine to lessen the costs of butter imports.

The conference decided against membership of the Asian Coconut Community — with the exception of Western Samoa which is already a member.

FERTILISER DISTRIBUTION

A United Nations observer reported that chemical manufacturers were interested in establishing a central distribution point for unmixed fertiliser imports.

The fertiliser would be mixed in the region according to the requirements of territories. The manufacturers would be prepared to finance a feasibility study, the conference was told.

Delegates agreed to choose an executive secretary from the PIPA area. The present secretary, Mr Herbert Elder, is seconded from Britain.

PIPA decided to protest officially about French Pacific nuclear tests. The test controversy was put on the agenda at the suggestion of the Cook Islands' Premier, Mr Albert Henry.

Twenty-one horticulturists from 13 countries have completed a unique training course in Australia that provided invaluable experience in every phase of fruit and vegetable production, soil management, irrigation, pest control, packaging and marketing.

Mosese Fonohea of the Department of Agriculture in Nuku'alofa attended.

The horticulturists' travels in three States took them into areas growing a diversity of crops, from macadania - nut plantations in Queensland to sweet potato farms in New South Wales and apple orchards in Victoria.

The 12-week course, which began with the arrival of the trainees in Brisbane, Queensland, on March 14 and ended in Sydey on June 2, was the first of its kind ever to be organised in Australia and was sponsored by the Australian Government under the Colombo Plan and the South Pacific Aid Programme.

The visiting horticulturists, from Bhutan, Fiji, India, Indonesia, Iran, the Khmer Republic, Korea, Laos, Nepal, the Philippines, Thailand, and Western Samoa, as well as Tonga, combined practical field trips to typical fruit and vegetable producing farms in each of the three States with visits to factories, research institutes, schools and plant nurseries during the course.

Among the tropical crops studied in Queensland were banana, pineapple, strawberry, ginger, passionfruit, avocado, custard apple, pawpaw and mango. In New South Wales the students visited the Tropical Fruit Research Station at Alstonville, as well as the Biological and Chemical Research Institute in the Sydney suburb, Rydalmere. Field trips in this State took them to citrus orchards, potato and asparagus farms, seed farms and nurseries. They also inspected the Agricultural Research Station at Orange, and the Hawkesbury Agricultural College.

In Victoria, the 21 horticulturists observed cold-storage techniques for apples and pears at Scoresby Horticultural Research Station studied peach orchard management at first hand, were instructed in modern fruit packaging and processing methods, and witnessed the research programmes undertaken at the Tatura Horticultural Research Station.

HIGH STANDARD OF PLAY IN RUGBY BOOTS CHANCES AGAINST FIJI

By HOPOATE MOENGANGONGO

There was considerable speculation in rugby circles after the trials on Saturday to select teams to play Fiji next monh. The high standard of rugby displayed by both backs and forwards boosted our chances of beating the Fijians, but also made things harder for the national selectors.

The trials were of four teams playing a 40 minutes each.

It was final game of Yellow and Blue that brought out the best of each individual and some very good team work.

The forwards in particular were most outstanding - quick on the loose ball. Rucking was also quick, giving the backline ample time to run freely.

There was great improvement in ruck formation with every forward going in making the effort to get the ball out puickly.

Yelow had the weight advantage and often pushed back Blue forwards in the scrums.

The Yelow forwards had the better combination and had several good moves which were only stopped short of the line.

Sione Mafi again showed his skill behind the scrum and at the end of the lineout.

In the 11th minutes from scrum 10yds from Blue goal line, Sione took the ball from behind, fended off several defenders to score under the post with Siaosi Sēlupe II. the opposing No. 8, hanging a round his waist.

He also set up another movement in the 25th minutes from a loose ruck, made a half-break then sent five-eights Malakai to score under the post for 'Ilavalu to convert.

Sione was also superb on cover defence.

Kimbu on the flank set up some very good moves for Yellow and shone up well with his strong running and sidestepping.

In the tight for Yellow, Manulevu, Polutele and Siaosi Sēlupe I toiled tirelessly. Manuleva scored a try following a good forward movement which started from between their own 25 and halfway. Polutele also scored a try.

Halfback, Fred Muller was very swift with his long passed and often broke off from the scrums.

For Blue, Taufu'i Moala was prominent with his strong and determined running, and sound on cover defence. Several times he made some good breaks.

Kei 'Iongi on the left wing was was also outstanding and scored a good try, running 30 yds.

Fa'aleo and Fakavā showed up well in the lineout but not in general play. Siaosi Sēlupe II, at No. 8, did well in the tight and in the loose broke up several Yellow attacking movements.

In general, the trial was one of the best games played on Teufaiva for some time.

The players named by the national selectors for final selection : 'Inoke Lūpina (Police), Molou Filimoehala (Ma'ufanga) hooker; Siō Motu'apuaka (Kolofo'ou), Manulevu Koloamatangi (Kolofo'ou), 'Eukaliti Hāhepoto (Police), props; Siaosi Sēlupe I (Kolomotu'a), Polutele Tu'ihalamaka (Police), Kuluni Motu'apuaka (Kolofo'ou). locks; Sione Mafi (Kolovai), No. 8; Kimbu 'Inoke (Kolofo'ou), Siaosi Sēlupe II (Police), Tevita Leger (Fasi), breakaways; Fred Muller (Nukunuku), Sāteli Tupou (Police), halfbacks; Malakai 'Alatini (Police), Uhila Tai (Fasi), first five-eights; Pānuve Fakaua (Mu'a), Taufu'i Moala (Kolovai), second five-eights; Tali Kavapalu (Tavatu'utolu), Sami Lātū (Police), centres; Kei 'Iongi (Police) Mōsese Tu'ipulotu (Kolofo'ou), Vāinikolo Vānisi (Police), 'Inoke Kolo (Mu'a), wings; Fatai Kefu (Tavatu'utolu), 'Ilavalu Tāufa (Police), fullbacks.

School Rugby Ends In Brawl

By HOPOATE MOENGANGONGO

A brawl broke out in the school rugby last Thursday, between the 'Atenisi and Liahona open grades. The referee lost control when many of the 'Atenisi students on the sideline joined in the fight.

Police were brought to the scene and arrested two 'Atenisi boys among the spectators and they are to appear in Court.

One Liahona player was badly cut above the eye, and was said to have been kicked by the 'Atenisi line umpire.

The game was called off, but at the time the fight broke out Liahona was leading 6 - 0.

Commenting on the game, the referee Palu Fihaki, said 'Atenisi played a dirty game, and could only be stopped if they are kicked out of the competition.

"They spoiled a very good game last Thursday," he said.

The brawal started when a Liahona player was knocked down by a 'Atenisi player, referee Fihaki said. He was on the other side of the field, but when he arrived at the fifight the spectators, mostly from 'Atenisi were on the field and had joined the fighting.

Three weeks ago when 'Atenisi seniors played Tonga High School a fight started and the police came on to the field to take control. No arrest was made.

On the same day the Liahona and Tupou College became involved in a fight when spectators also came on to the field.

A spokesman for 'Atenisi said a meeting of the Secondary School Rugby Committee on Monday decided to warn all schools that if such incidents occur again, the school responsible for causing the fight will be out of the competition.

Why Mani Vaka Got Angry With Filimone Naliva

By PETER LOMAS in Fiji Sports.

South Seas heavyweight boxing champion Mani Vaka was fuming as he marched across the Suva Town Hall ring to refree George Dass. "He hit me after the bell," he shouted amidst the confusion of the capacity crowd.

Across from Vaka the cause of the row, Fiji champion Filimone Naliva, smiled.

Unfortunately for Naliva he wasn't smiling two minutes one second later.

A left hook to the chin and an upper cut right from the furious Vaka put Naliva down for the eight count. Naliva came up but, moments later Vaka put him down again for the full count and ended the South Seas title fight in the ninth round.

Two hours later Vaka was still angry. "When he hit me after the bell he made me cranky," he said "That's why I tried to knock him out. If he hadn't done that I would have waited a bit longer."

The fight was pedestrian in the early rounds as 14-st 11-lb Naliva and 13-st 6-lb Vaka warily circled each other.

Naliva rushed Vaka in the fourth but the Tongan ducked and weaved and counterpunched his way out of trouble. The unruffled Vaka won all the rounds that counted. Naliva landed some good punches but they seemed to have little effect.

"I was just taking my time," Vaka said. "I knew he was a big guy. My trainer said take your time. That's why I watched and ran. I was not sure.

"When I go in I take my head back and see how his left was going.

"His mistake was when I ducked my head he tried an upper cut. I stepped back and bang, I catch him with a left hook.

"This time was easier than our last fight. It was different this time because last time he came in and punched.

"This time he did not. He should force me, push and punch. That's the way he can ko me. But he did not."

A lot of people thought Vaka punched Naliva when he was down. Mr Dass said Naliva was not fully down when Vaka delivered the blow. Other officials at ringside agreed. But it was pretty close.

It was 25-year-old Vaka's 50th fight since he turned professional in 1967. It was the 30th he had won in less than the distance. Ten other fights he's won on points and three have been draws.

Against that he's lost five on points, been disqualified once against Naliva in 1969) and lost once on a tko. The then Commonwealth-ranked Australian Trevor Thornberry stopped him with a cut eye.

The win over Naliva was far from the best of his wins, Vaka said.

"My best win was when I fought Leweni Waqa," he said. "He's an experienced and very hard fighter. He's the best fighter in Fiji.

"When Naliva beat Leweni I think it must have been a fluke punch. I fought Naliva three times and he never changes his style.

"He never changed till I punched him.

"I'd like to fight Leweni again —I like him very much. When I fought him in Tahiti the first time he looked after me. He's a nice guy.

"When we fought last time in the hangar and the mouth guard would come out we'd bend down and pick up. If it was Naliva I'd kick his arse.

"Nadumu wants to fight me but he'd better have more fights before I fight him. It would be better for me to fight Leweni. I know people will come. If I fight Nadumu no one will come."

Vaka gives himself another year in the ring. Boxing, he says, is only a business. The money he is earning he is saving for the future.

"If I get Empire or world title fights I will fight on."he says. "But if not I will take my championship belts and throw them in the ring and say : "Here they are, I'm giving them back. I'm not going to be a punch drunk."

A punch drunk is something there's little danger of Mani Vaka becoming the way he's fighting lately.

Republic Wants To Negotiate Proposals On Minerva Reef

The "Republic of Minerva" wants to negotiate a proposal for the Minerva Reefs and the "president", Mr Morris C. Davis, came to Tonga last week for talks with Government officials and hoping to see His Majesty.

Mr Davis had a meeting with the Secretary to Government, 'Inoke Faletau, but he was not able to see His Majesty.

Mr Davis arrived in the Kingdom on Thursday morning—about the time His Majesty was declaring sovereignty over the reefs in his Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Legislative Assembly. He left again on Saturday for Suva, Auckland and eventually the U.S.

His Majesty's proclaimation prevents Mr Davis British-British-American organisation, the Ocean Life Research Foundation, from going ahead with its plan to build a sea city at South Minerva.

Earlier this year the foundation declared the "Republic of Minerva" and erected flags on markers on both north and south reefs.

Mr Davis told the Chronicle he was not at liberty to say what the "republic's" intentions were in reaction to Tonga's action. This would have to wait until he had been able to consult the other trustees and directors of the foundation, he said.

Mr Davis said he did not come to Tonga at this time because he was aware of the Kingdom's intention to proclaim sovereignty over the reefs.

He said the "republic" had written to the Tonga Government about three months ago but had received no reply. He said he had come with material and a film which would explain the "republics" intentions for Minerva Reef.

"But no one here seems interested."

He was disappointed at not having an audience with His Majesty, he said.

"What we want to do on the reef would provide work for every unemployed man in Tonga for many years."

Mr Davis said his organisation still contended their claim to the reef was legal but did not want to get involved in a squabble in the United Nations over ownership.

Mr Faletau told the Chronicle he had talked with Mr Davis and he had asked Mr Davis to write if he wanted the Tonga Government to give consideration to any proposals.

The report Mr Davis brought with him to Tonga contained a feasibility study of the development and recommended construction at Minerva Reef of pier-supported concrete platforms to create an artificial land surface at a provisional cost of about $65,000 an acre.

Members of the Ocean Life Reseearch Foundation have formed a new company hoping to proceeded with Minerva's development.

The foundation foresaw a sea city which would provide facilities for a population of 30,000.

The report claimed the Republic of Minerva was now a fact. Its ownership was vested with Caribbean Pacific Enterprises, incorporated under the laws of the State of Nevada.

The film which Mr Davis brought to Tonga was shown to the Editor of Chronicle.

"Nobody else wanted to see it," Mr Davis said.

Made by the Glass Age Development Committee of Pilkington Brothers Ltd., British glass manufacturers, it showed a concept of a sea city envisaged in the North Sea within the next 50 years. A similar concept was planned for Minerva by the "republic," Mr Davis said.

Commenting on the film, the editor said:

"The idea, even in this advanced age seemed like something out of a science fiction movie. While the whole idea of living this way may be exciting to some people, I personally found it sterile and impersonal."

Mr Davis, as well as being president of the provisional government of the "Republic of Minerva" is president of Caribbean-Pacific Enterprises and a director of the Ocean Life Research Foundation. He was born in 1926 in Grey Eagle, Minnesota. He graduated from the West Coast University, Los Angeles, California, with a bachelor of science in electrical engineering. He served with the Army Air Corps in World War II and in the U.S. Air Force in the Korean War. He was 15 years with North American Rockwell as project engineer on the Minuteman missile systems.

Bread Regulation "Quite Absurd"

An irate Nuku'alofa baker came to the Chronicle office this week with a loaf of bread which had been sealed in plastic bag in compliance with health regulations—it was green with mold.

"The whole idea is impractical and quite absurd," the baker said. He was expressing the feeling of all bakers approached by the Chronicle.

They said they wanted to comply with the regulations, but the plastic bag idea was not feasible.

If bread was packed in a plastic bag immediately it came out of the oven, condensation would cause it to become wet and soggy, they said.

Cost was another factor, the bakers said. Wrapping in plastic would add at least four seniti to a loaf and this was taking into consideration the cost of the bag only. Special machinery was required as well as additional labour and overall the price of a loaf would have to go up to about 16 seniti

"This is a conservative estimate", another baker said.

A special machine for wrapping bread would cost about $8000, the Chronicle was told.

The Health Inspector, Tupou Vaipulu, said this week he still intended to enforce the regulation from October 1.

He said he was having a meeting with the bakers today.

NEWS IN BRIEF

PILOTS STOP

Fiji airline pilots stopped work at 6 p.m. on Monday for 24 hours in support of an international protest against hijacking and inadequate air security generally.

Air Pacific flights within and to other Island countries were cancelled, including Tuesday mornings HS 748 flight to Tonga. A replacement flight operated yesterday morning.

NEXT PIPA

The next annual conference of the Pacific Islands Producers' Association (PIPA) will be held in Apia in Western Samoa in April, 1973.

Niue will be the venue for the 1974 conference.

CAPTAIN DIES

Captain Norman Pearson, formerly master of the "Matua" and the Tofua died in Auckland on June 15.

Captain Pearson will be remembered particularly as master of the "Tofua" which he brought from Scotland in 1951 and of which he remained in command until his retirement in May 1963.

During that 12-year period, the "Tofua" made 141 voyages from New Zealand to the Pacific Islands.

INDIAN DOCTOR

Dr. Leila Mehra, who is assistant commissioner (family planning) in the Ministry of Health in New Delhi has arrived in Tonga.

She will be here for 10½ months as a World Health Organisation family planning consultant.

This And That

CHRONICLE DIARY

Fourteen worshippers at the English-speaking service in the Royal Chapel on Sunday came on their bicycles. As bicycles won't stand without something to lean on, their owners placed them against the wall by the gate to the chapel. When the worshippers came out of the chapel they found their bicycles scattered on the ground, some entangled on top of each other. Presumably the Palace guard has instructions not to allow people to place their bicycles against the palace, but nobody has thought to tell those who worship at the chapel. We sympathise with one worshipper who said: "They might have at least told us not to lean our bicycles against the palace wall. It all seems very petty to me."

The Chronicle has already been delivered to the new island of Teleki Tonga. On Thursday, June 8, when the "Ata" left Nuku'alofa for the reefs to replenish the "Hifofua" with supplies, on board were 30 copies of the Chronicle for that week, 20 in Tongan and 10 in English.

* * *

Delegates at the annual conference of the Pacific Islands Producers Association (PIPA) in the Cooks Islands supported Tonga's declaration of sovereignty over the Minerva Reefs. The Fiji Times correspondent said: "Some delegates jokingly congratulated Tonga on being the first Polynesian power to practise imperialism."

* * *

A Press report from Auckland quotes the consul-designate to New Zealand for the "Republic of Minerva", Mr Oswald Claridge, an Auckland lawyer, as saying Tonga's claim to the Minerva's is 'second and too late". He says his organisation is sticking to their claims of ownership and intend to carry out their plan to reclaim parts of the reef and a form a tax-free, utopian republic.

* * *

The vessel "Four Winds" will not now be coming to include Tonga in a feature film. Advice received from New York yesterday said the "Four Winds" was behind schedule and would have to forgo the Kingdom. Apia in Western Samoa will be the film company's next port of call.
